Over 1000 Different Heating Fittings Are Shown In The Handy Hand Book

Every kind of heating fitting that is being used today is there. Also hundreds of the ones that used to be used, which we keep in stock to take care of those who need some replacements every once in a while. There are close to fifty pages out of the 160 pages of the book devoted entirely to heating.

Don't Put Off

It seems almost foolish to urge any of you to get your heating in shape when all of you know so well what it means to put it off till frost comes. Get down your Handy Hand Book. Order what you need before the fall rush comes with perchance delivery delays that may cost you many a hard earned dollar. If you haven't a Handy Hand Book, send for one at once.

It's a counselor, friend and guide for all your greenhouse heating, equipping and building problems.

Paper White Grandiflora, French Grown

The following is extract from a letter received from our French Representative:—

"We know this—we have been able to give you bulbs at the lowest price which has been paid, giving you merchandise that will flower certainly well. You have received no bulbs of the doubles. All Narcissi sent you have a flower in them. We are sure you will have no complaints from your customers, as they are receiving TRUE GRANDIFLORA, which is the large flower type. We have, like every year, given you bulbs containing good flower centers. The 12 ctm. bulbs are likewise as good. We feel confident that in spite of the bad season and very short crop, you will receive favorable reports from your customers who buy your bulbs."

The well known scarcity of Florists' Bulbs in general suggests, we believe, the advisability of early purchase.

Don't Be Caught Short

Without our patented cardboard Wreath Forms

Experience has shown us that most of our trade has paid too much for their Wreath Forms because they held back their orders until shipment had to be made by express. This increased the cost of the merchandise from 25 to 35 per cent. Besides, our customers lost business because they did not have the goods on hand—their customers would not wait when delivery could not be made at once. The profit on such specialties comes through having the goods on hand when wanted. It does not pay to approach the Christmas holidays with little goods on hand.

Therefore we suggest to you that you place your orders now for fall requirements in Christmas Wreath Forms.

Send for our line of samples of cardboard Wreath Forms as illustrated in this advertisement. Do it now. Prices and samples will be sent gratis on request. We make the following sizes:

Wreath Forms—4, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 16-inch.
Star Forms—4, 6, 7, 9 and 12-inch.
Heart Forms—5, 6 and 7-inch.
Cross Forms—14x21-inch and 18x30-inch.

Write us today about your requirements.

Remember Them?

—at the Indianapolis Show

There were 12 of those big fellows, some with 140 flowers on them as big as your head. They all came from here. That Cleveland expert, Lars Anderson, grew them.

We have more of those big ones from the field at $7.50 apiece, and commercial sizes, any amount from 4, 5, 6, 7-inch pots and larger—your favorite variety, by the thousand.

Our last year's stock was very good. Some claimed, "Not a blind shoot in them," and this year's stock looks just as good if not better. No secret in growing them, just common sense. Anderson grows 18,000 and has not enough blind wood for cuttings—got to buy them and buys them here.

Order now and get them shipped as soon as ready, October 1st

PORTSMOUTH, OHIO
1 STORE

Buchbinder Bros.,
11 South La Salle St.,
Chicago, Ill.

August 25th, 1922.

Gentlemen:

Now that the writer is back from the opening of our new store at Portsmouth, Ohio, which was the biggest success we ever experienced, I want to tell you what we think of the part you played in it.

The Buchbinder fixtures were satisfactory beyond our expectations and up on time. We know you had to "step on it," as we allowed you only three weeks to make shipment after giving the order. The work of your man, Mr. Spack, who set up the fixtures in the store, was more than satisfactory.

As you well know, when we bought the display box of you at the flower show at Indianapolis last spring, we told you that we had another box in our main store from another firm and, after comparison, would give the next order to whichever one gave the best service. We soon found that yours was the best and, upon arriving in Chicago in July, called you without seeing anyone else in regard to the fixtures for our new Portsmouth store.

The people of Portsmouth all said that it was the finest store of its kind that they had ever seen anywhere. On opening day we had over EIGHT thousand visitors!

Again thanking you for taking such good care of our order and hoping that we may give you another order just like it in January, for another sto e, which will be opened if conditions warrant it, I am

Yours very truly,

T. Harold Coffman

The Letter on the opposite page shows what Mr. Coffman thinks of Buchbinder Service and Flower Store Fixtures.

The installation of modern up-to-the-minute Flower Shops with small initial investment, is an opportunity which the Buchbinder service offers.

It costs you nothing to get the facts. Why not get together or correspond regarding this idea.? Send for illustrated catalogue, which contains information you should have, and let us tell you how we have done it for others.

3-inch pots, $35 per 100.
4-inch pots, $50 per 100.

Every retail store and grower should feature Crotons this fall and winter. We know our stock will please you and your customer.

CROTON LEAVES AND SPRAYS

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the past years to some of the leading retail florists, who have featured them in mantel, table, and funeral work. Cut Crotons will last in a cool place from three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year.

Very highly colored sprays at 50c each; cut leaves, $5 per 100.

When you have orders for funeral or table work, "out of the ordinary," order Craig's Cut Crotons.

DRACAENAS

There is no variety of foliage plant so attractive as the highly colored Dracaena. The small and medium sizes can be used to great advantage in making up the popular Christmas baskets, while the large specimens have always been in great demand for decorative purposes. We are now growing more Dracaenas, in greater variety, than any firm in the country.

DRACAENA GODSEFFIANA

Green and white leaf, very hardy, fine for baskets.

TERMS

CASH WITH ORDER: Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers. REMITTANCE: Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net. SHIPPING INSTRUCTIONS: Give your name, post office, county and state and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier, and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. CORRESPONDENCE: We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. ERRORS: Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. When we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

USEFUL FORMS OF MAIDENHAIR FERNS

The genus adiantum, composed of what are commonly called maidenhair ferns, includes a number of varieties almost indispensable to florists. Those who grow these ferns, either in pots or for cutting, should know the traits of the various valuable members of the family, described in this article.

IN THE earlier days of commercial floriculture in this country, the name adiantum referred to practically one species of that large family, Adiantum cuneatum being the species indicated when it was said that one grew adiantum for the market, and this condition continued for a number of years, until Adiantum Roenbeckii was introduced by F. Roenbeck, possibly forty years ago.

The latter fern was apparently a seedling form of A. cuneatum, but had longer fronds and smaller pinnæ, and as A. Roenbeckii came true from spores and grew quickly, it superseded the original species with many growers, and much of the adiantum fronds that were cut for the market would prove upon examination to be A. Roenbeckii, and it is quite possible that many of the stocks of Adiantum cuneatum about the country are more or less mixed with that variety now. One of the distinguishing marks of A. Roenbeckii, in addition to those already noted, is found in the fact that the pinnæ are finely serrated on the edge, while those of the original cuneatum are comparatively smooth.

Peter Crowe's Fern.

About the year 1898 a new aspirant for commercial honors appeared under the name of Adiantum Croweanum, the name being given in honor of its introducer, the late Peter Crowe, a grower of considerable note and a man who was deservedly popular among a large circle of friends. Adiantum Croweanum seemed to be a sterile form of Adiantum decorum. It makes large fronds with stiff stems and is of excellent keeping quality when cut. On account of its usual habit of sterility, the propagation of A. Croweanum depends on division of the crowns, so that there is rather more difficulty in maintaining a stock of this variety than there is in the case of a fern that produces spores freely, but nevertheless A. Croweanum is a fine fern for the decorator and deserves extra attention.

Adiantum Hybridum.

Still another commercial adiantum that appeared a number of years ago is Adiantum hybridum, a variety introduced by John H. Ley, and claimed to be a hybrid between two species, a claim that is not easy to establish, because of the fact that fertilization in ferns takes place after germination, while in the case of flowering plants, as everyone knows, fertilization precedes the formation of seeds. But be this as it may, Adiantum hybridum is a distinct variety. It has some of the traits of Adiantum decorum, but is usually more upright in growth, with fronds of medium size and good substance, and stands up quite well after being cut.

"Queen of the Maidenhairs."

To those in need of larger adiantum fronds than are produced by the varieties already noted, Adiantum tenerum may well be recommended, this fern being a much stronger grower than either cuneatum or decorum, having much larger pinnæ than the latter and being altogether admirable for larger decorations. In addition, it grows rapidly and is easy of dissemination, producing spores abundantly.

Within a few years past, a variety of adiantum named California has been tried out by various growers. This was introduced from the Pacific coast, with high recommendations as a superior variety for cutting. A. California has many of the characteristics of A. Roenbeckii, though it is possibly of stronger growth, and may have originated from that variety, for seedling variations among ferns are a common experience where many of these plants are grown.

There is also a later introduction from California, in the form of Adiantum Plathii, a variety that bears some resemblance to A. California, though apparently smaller in the pinnæ and possibly somewhat stiffer in the stem.

Either of these varieties is likely to give a measure of satisfaction to the grower, even though they may not strike the average observer as being markedly distinct from existing varieties, for, after all, it is the method of growing and preparing the fronds for market that counts rather than the variety, so far as any of the cuneatum or decorum varieties of adiantum are concerned.

Queen of the Family.

For work of the greatest elegance and for patrons who appreciate such work, the "Queen of the Maidenhairs," as Adiantum Farleyense has been well named, is supreme, and this lovely fern in pots of from 4-inch to 6-inch sizes finds a ready market in our large cities. This fern, when occasion requires,

This fern, when occasion requires, may be grown into wonderful specimens, three to four feet across, if it is given the conditions and attention that these large plants require, but such plants are better adapted for a private conservatory than for a commercial establishment. Adiantum Farleyense is considered by botanists to be a cristate form of Adiantum tenerum, which was discovered in the West Indies many years ago, and differs greatly from that species in having much larger pinnæ and in being practically without spores. We say advisedly, practically without spores, for while spore cases are sometimes found on Adiantum Farleyense, yet during an experience of many years the writer has never seen a seedling from that variety.

Glory Fern.

But a later introduction, and perhaps a descendant from A. Farleyense, has been in the market for a number of years, and now has an assured place, Adiantum Glory of Moordrecht, also known as Adiantum gloriosum. The fronds of this fern are less symmetrical than those of Farleyense, but have greater endurance and stiffer stems. Consequently, little staking is needed to support them, and the "glory fern," as it is commonly known in the trade, has the great advantage of bearing spores, and the latter germinate with a reasonable degree of freedom.

A variation of the glory fern, having the young fronds much more highly tinted with rose color prior to their full development, has been named Adiantum Lemkesii, and by some growers has been given the preference over its parent, but as either the original or the variation is a satisfactory fern to the grower, the matter of color is of little moment.

Proper Culture.

It is, of course, recognized by most growers that there are some distinctions between growing ferns for exhibition or conservatory adornment and growing the same varieties for strictly commercial purposes, from the fact that the decorator needs fronds that will stand up after they have been cut. In order to get these in satisfactory condition for such a purpose, the grower gives them as much light and air as the plants will stand, only shading moderately in the summer and having no shade on the glass from October 1 throughout the winter.

The soil should be a good, well rotted sod, with a liberal allowance of dry cow manure, and either pots or benches should have good drainage, for after the plants are established they can utilize a considerable amount of water.

The smaller-growing sorts, such as A. cuneatum or A. decorum and their respective varieties, may be well grown in a temperature of 60 degrees, but A. Farleyense and the glory fern will make more satisfactory progress at 65 to 67 degrees.

The handling of spores and the subsequent seedlings may possibly be treated to some advantage in a future article. At this time may be added the brief mention that pot-grown adiantums in small pots for fernery use are much improved by being given both light and space, it being practically impossible to grow those dwarf, compact and well furnished plants that are most desirable for such a purpose unless they are given proper space in which to develop and are handled from time to time to keep them free from weeds and decayed leaves. At the time of handling these pot plants, a sprinkling of lime on the bench will help to keep the slugs away.

The Market.

The continued dry spell of weather has shortened the crop of gladioli considerably, but most of the flowers coming in last week were of inferior quality and the better grades brought a little better prices than at any other time during the summer months. Asters, however, have been plentiful and the supply has been much heavier than the demand. Carnations are beginning to make their appearance, but the stock is rather short-stemmed and of poor quality. There is a good supply of roses in the market, especially Columbia, Premier and Ophelia. These sold fairly well right along and the supply is equal to the demand, with the exception of white roses, which are scarce now.

Winners at State Fair.

There was a large display of plants and flowers at the Wisconsin state fair, which was held last week, and there were considerably more entries than in any previous year. This was largely due to the efforts of Nic Zweifel, assistant superintendent in the horticultural department, who is well known among the trade here, and who, through personal solicitation, got a number of the florists to enter. There were a great many pretty groups of palms, ferns and miscellaneous foliage plants, as well as a large display of gladioli and dahlias.

The Horticultural building was crowded to capacity. In fact, there was not enough room to take care of all the exhibitors properly, and the florists are in hopes of getting a new and larger building in the near future. The Horticultural building has been a feature at the fair the last few years, since the trade has been exhibiting. The following prizes were awarded:

Greenhouse plants—Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, first; C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, second; A. F. Kellner Co., Milwaukee, third.

Palms—A. F. Kellner Co., first; Charles Menger, Milwaukee, second.

Plants in variety—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; A. F. Kellner Co., third; R. Haasch, Milwaukee, fourth.

Boston ferns—Holton & Hunkel Co., first; C. C. Pollworth Co., second; A. F. Kellner Co., third; E. J. Hamme, Milwaukee, fourth.

Ferns for effect—A. F. Kellner Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second; E. J. Hamme, third.

Plants in bloom—A. F. Kellner Co., first; Hugo Locker, Milwaukee, second; Holton & Hunkel Co., third; Charles Menger, fourth.

exhibits were John Rindfleisch, Beloit, Wis.; James Taylor, Oshkosh, Wis.; C. B. Whitnall, Milwaukee, and James Livingston, Milwaukee.

Various Notes.

Among visitors to the fair were Guy Blondy, New London, Wis.; William Bucholz, Oshkosh, Wis.; R. E. Pamplin, Oshkosh, and F. Rhodes, Hartford, Wis.

Some of the first chrysanthemums made their appearance last week; these are of the Golden Glow variety, and the few that have been coming in have found a ready sale. There are also a few lilies coming in, and there is a good demand for them.

Most of the florists are just about finishing planting their carnations, and there are still many field-grown plants, which are being offered by the various growers. P.

Rudolph Preuss & Sons, doing business at 2602 Lisbon avenue, have been incorporated, with a captalization of $25,000. The incorporators are Rudolph Preuss, Oswald, Arnold and Ervin W. Preuss.

ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.

State Fair Opens.

The sixty-third annual state fair of Minnesota opened September 2 with a fine showing of products and exhibits. The Horticultural building was filled with fruits, vegetables and flowers. Holm & Olson, St. Paul; Swanson's, Inc., and the Chicago Avenue Floral Co., of Minneapolis, were the principal professional exhibitors. All had fine exhibits. Clarence Cary, of the Rose Hill Nursery, staged an attractive corner lot landscape and Mr. Bass, of Holm & Olson, put up a first-prize suburban landscape. Mr. Johnson, of the nursery department of Holm & Olson, made a pretty staging of nursery stock. Holm & Olson staged about 200 varieties of gladioli, winning the sweepstakes and the American Gladiolus Society medal. River View Gardens and the Rainbow Gardens each made a fine exhibit of gladioli. A large exhibit of zinnias was made on Saturday by amateurs. Collections of as many as fifteen varieties of everlasting flowers were made Saturday. Another interesting exhibit was a collection of blue flowers made by amateurs. Holm & Olson exhibited a large kentia tree, crotons and eighteen varieties of ferns. Their tree fuchsias and gloxinias attracted much attention. The Chicago Avenue Floral Co., arranged a pretty bed of lilies and a good fern group. Swanson's Inc., had a fine Polypodium Mandaianum in their fern collection.

The list of amateur exhibitors shows an increase of nearly fifty per cent, which indicates the amateurs' interest in flowers in this locality. About $3,000 was offered in premiums in the floral end of the building.

Awards in the commercial classes were as follows:

Decorative plants, covering 100 square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Floral Co., third.

Decorative plants, covering fifty square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Floral Co., second; Swanson's, Inc., third.

Blooming plants, covering 100 square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Floral Co., second; Swanson's, Inc., third.

Blooming plants, covering fifty square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenue Floral Co., second.

Collection of ferns, covering 100 square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Floral Co., third.

Collection nephrolepis ferns—Holm & Olson, first; Chicago Avenne Floral Co., second.

Collection fancy-leaved caladiums—Holm & Olson.

Collection coleus, covering twenty-five square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Swanson's, Inc., second; Chicago Avenue Floral Co., third.

Specimen pandanus—Chicago Avenue Floral Co., first; Holm & Olson, second.

may be grown into wonderful specimens, three to four feet across, if it is given the conditions and attention that these large plants require, but such plants are better adapted for a private conservatory than for a commercial establishment. Adiantum Farleyense is considered by botanists to be a cristate form of Adiantum tenerum, which was discovered in the West Indies many years ago, and differs greatly from that species in having much larger pinnæ and in being practically without spores. We say advisedly, practically without spores, for while spore cases are sometimes found on Adiantum Farleyense, yet during an experience of many years the writer has never seen a seedling from that variety.

Glory Fern.

But a later introduction, and perhaps a descendant from A. Farleyense, has been in the market for a number of years, and now has an assured place, Adiantum Glory of Moordrecht, also known as Adiantum gloriosum. WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Business seems to be picking up slightly, for people are returning to Washington for the fall season. A great many wedding decorations have already been arranged for. Indications are that business will be good this fall, for the wedding orders that have thus far been booked are good ones. The weather during the month of August was generally cool, which helped the sale of cut flowers considerably. Funeral work has been fairly heavy and the orders in many cases large.

Good gladioli were well taken up last week. The cool weather has materially shortened the supply of the local stock and flowers from the north and east have been rather welcome and have sold up well, the price averaging $4 per hundred. Asters are good and are selling freely at from $3 to $6 for the best, although there are rather inferior flowers that can be had for considerably less. Dahlias are beginning to come into the market in fine quality. Some exceptionally good specimens were offered by local growers last week. However, the prices are still low and the best can be had in quantity at from $2 to $4 per hundred. Roses were pretty well used up last week. There is not much good stock coming in, for some of the local growers have ceased to ship entirely, because they are engaged in replanting. A few carnations have made their appearance, coming from the new crop. They are still short-stemmed, but are bringing $1.50 to $2 per hundred. A few calls were received last week for stephanotis for use in wedding work. Delphinium is still plentiful and it meets with some demand. The stores are beginning to get orders for baskets in which this flower is used to good advantage. Fine ferns are finding a sale in all sizes. Many of the florists anticipate holding fern sales during the month of September.

To Hold Dahlia Show

Washington flower lovers are to be given an opportunity to see what local growers are doing in the production of dahlias. Plans are being made for a dahlia show, to be held the last Monday in this month under the auspices of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C. Efforts are being made to secure the large room of the Gavel Club, at 719 Thirteenth street, northwest, for this purpose and during the coming week committees will be appointed to make further arrangements for the show.

Before the war Washington had a number of successful shows and efforts are being made to revive this practice. Exhibitions of this nature have always resulted in a great deal of favorable advertising for the florists and they have been found helpful in moving the business generally. This city is fast going back to the pre-war volume of business; rather a sad fact, because the florists, during the time the city was filled with visitors having business with the government and the many thousands of people who were employed by the government and commercial agencies which were located here, did a business of previously unthought of proportions. The government forces have been cut down to a minimum and the offices of war-born commercial organizations have been closed and the local florists are faced with the necessity of increasing the love of flowers to keep up the volume of sales and income.

Initial arrangements were made at a special meeting held last week at the call of President O. A. C. Oehmler, attended by William F. Gude, Z. D. Blackistone and George C. Shaffer. They took under consideration the desirability of having the exhibition open to the public during the afternoon and evening and without any charge being made for admission. The Gavel Club quarters are ample in size and permit of an excellent show. The growers will, of course, make the main exhibits of cut flowers, while the retailers will each exhibit one basket, centerpiece or other design to show what can be done with dahlias. No flowers will be sold and it is quite possible that advertisements will be confined to the use of cards designating the exhibitor, his business and location.

Various Notes.

Z. D. Blackistone has redecorated his store, carrying out a color scheme in green with buff trimmings. George Meyer, successor to the Washington Floral Co., is also redecorating his store, the color combination being cream with green trimmings.

The Saturday holiday observed by the local wholesale establishments is at an end and hereafter each of the stores will be open daily, including Saturday, until 5 p. m.

George C. Shaffer was pathfinder for a party of eleven who went to Atlantic City over Labor day in three large automobiles. In the party were Mr. Shaffer's son, Clarence; his brother, Arthur, and his sister. T. N. S.

WASHINGTON'S "SAY IT" WEEK.

The florists of Washington, D. C., are making plans for their "Say It with Flowers" week, the last week of September.

The first activity will probably be the free distribution of flowers to all the churches Sunday, September 24. The following Tuesday, September 26, it is planned to hold the most pretentious dahlia exhibition that has ever been staged in that vicinity. This exhibition will be open to all amateurs, as well as the regular florists. There will be no entrance fee charged, and admission to the exhibition hall will be open to the public.

All dahlia growers are admonished to reserve their fairest blooms for this occasion, and there will doubtless be some wonderful flowers exhibited. Certificates of merit and prizes will be offered for the winning entries.

In order to insure that no favoritism or prejudice may be shown, the judges will be selected from the best dahlia experts in Baltimore and other neighboring cities.

All persons desiring to make entries are invited to address the exhibition committee of the Florists' Club of Washington, in care of Harry B. Lewis, secretary, 713 Thirteenth street, N. W.

One of the strict conditions of the exhibition will be that after the judging, all flowers entered are to be donated for distribution to the sick of the various hospitals.

President O. A. C. Oehmler, of the Florists' Club, has appointed the following committee to look after all details:

Z. D. Blackistone, chairman; William F. Gude, Otto Bauer, Albert Schnell, A. E. Gude, George C. Shaffer, J. Harry Ley, Henry Witt and Arthur Elliott.

Further information will be published, to keep the public advised on all necessary details.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

Stock is in ample supply and the demand has been fairly good. Roses are appearing in better supply, ranging from $4 to $20 per hundred. A few carnations, good for this time of year, are coming in and sell at $1.50 to $3 per hundred.

Some good asters, in large quantities, are to be had; poorer stock is all too plentiful. The prices range from $1 to $5, according to quality. The gladiolus market is tightening up, and the blooms bring from $4 to $6.

Lilies are scarce in all varieties, and bring $20 per hundred.

A better supply of dahlias is to be had. Delphiniums, buddleia, gaillardias and other garden flowers are available.

Various Notes.

The Indiana state fair, which is being held this week, shows prospects of an unusually large and attractive floral display. The Pahud Floral Co. has reëntered the race this year after an absence of several years. George H. Blackman is judge and A. F. Baur is assistant to S. W. Taylor, the department director.

Irwin Bertermann has just returned from a trip through Colorado, made after the S. A. F. convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Len Elder have just returned from Junction City, where they went to attend the funeral of Mr. Elder's uncle.

M. Brandlein has completed the rebuilding of his place. The houses are of uniform size and make a most attractive range.

Hartje & Elder have completed their new greenhouse and have planted it to carnations, the majority of which are their own new variety Winsome, a bright pink flower.

The Jacob Schulz Co., Louisville, Ky., and the National Coöperative Gardens, Spencer, Ind., have attractive dahlia displays at the state fair. E. E. T.

NEWARK, N. J.

Now that Labor day has passed, many Newarkers will soon return from their vacations. This should mean an increase in the volume of business for the Newark florists. Brisk business cannot be expected, however, until frosts have killed the flowers in the gardens. Asters and gladioli are plentiful now and are cheap.

Fred P. Wolfinger reports that funeral work forms the bulk of trade just now, and that there is not so much of this as there often is.

The management of the Greater Newark dahlia and flower show, which will be held September 13 to 16, plans to make this the biggest event of its kind in the history of New Jersey. It will be the first annual show of its kind and will be held on the main floor of the Globe Indemnity building, in Washington place. About two-thirds of the exhibits will be provided by dahlia and other flower growers in all parts of the state. There will also be exhibits from New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Massachusetts and Connecticut. The display will occupy about 20,000 square feet of floor space, subdivided into two large halls. High ceilings, large arched windows and natural light will make ideal conditions for a floral exhibition. Two hundred men and women of Newark and vicinity will sponsor the Greater Newark dahlia and flower show. The officers of the organization which is planning the show are as follows: President, Charles A. Gould; treasurer, Fred J. Hodson; assistant treasurer, Harold F. Sachs; secretary and managing director, Fred Sachs; vice-presidents, Louis V. Aronson, Colonel Lewis B. Ballantyne, William Bittles, Mayor Breidenbach, Joseph V. Clark, Colonel Austin Colgate, T. M. Griffith, C. W. Kinsey, Corbett McCarthy, Arthur Oliver, Colonel L. S. Plant and J. Herbert Reid. There will be one executive committee composed of men and another composed of women. Among the membership of these committees will be included many of the most prominent flower growers in New Jersey. The exhibitors will include commercial growers, amateurs, garden clubs and private gardeners. Dahlia, rose, gladiolus, cosmos and aster growers will be represented. The judging of exhibits will take place at noon, September 13. No one but the judges and the necessary officers will be allowed in the exhibition

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

CLEMENS C. POLLWORTH.

FEW men at 21 years of age are at the head of a leading business. Fewer men at that age have founded a successful enterprise. Yet C. C. Pollworth, of Milwaukee, at his majority was heralded by a leading Milwaukee newspaper as the proprietor of the largest rose growing establishment in Wisconsin. In that same year Mr. Pollworth was elected vice-president of the S. A. F. and was president of the Milwaukee Florists' Club. With so brilliant a start, Mr. Pollworth has never slackened his pace; he has kept "coming" and he has held many important posts in trade organizations, as well as in local business and fraternal circles. Today his wholesale supply house in Milwaukee and his large greenhouse establishment on its outskirts are known throughout the country. More recently, Mr. Pollworth has been a director of the S. A. F. and a member of the national publicity committee. At Kansas City his friends wished to elect him president of the national society. After a close contest, Mr. Pollworth made still more friends by his good-humored acceptance of second place and his promise of earnest support to his successful contestant. The admirable spirit of sportsmanship he displayed made many remark, with anticipatory intent, that "another year is coming."

halls at this time. Besides the prizes for blooms, there will be special prizes for the best exhibits of fruits and vegetables. R. B. M.

STILLMAN OCCUPIES BOOTH.

This is fair time. County fairs, state fairs and local exhibitions are attracting the country's attention. And the members of the trade are taking every opportunity to get in line and have something on hand at the various exhibitions. Of this number is George L. Stillman, of Westerly, R. I., who specializes in dahlias.

August 7 to 12 an industrial exhibition was held at Westerly and Mr. Stillman made it a point to reserve one of the main booths, where he displayed dahlias large and small in sundry vases. His name was prominently displayed also at the rear of the booth and a poster on a draped table at the front of the booth cautioned all those interested to "Order bulbs now for spring delivery."

F. T. D. MEETING

BALTIMORE CALLING.

An Invitation.

Hello! Is this a retail florist? This is Baltimore on the wire. With reference to the big F. T. D. meeting that will be held in our city October 10 to 12, will you be present? You don't know? Well, that's just why we are calling you up. You say, "We are situated too far from Baltimore." That is a poor excuse. Don't you know that F. T. D. service does not consider distance. What? "The expense will be too great."

Let us look at that side of the question. You are in the retail florists' business. You advertise that you are prepared to fill all telegraph orders on the usual basis. You want to fill all of these orders you possibly can, don't you? Then it's up to you to do all you can to build this business up. You can do this more quickly by working with others. One of the principal objects of this business meeting is that retail florists may get together and become acquainted.

You may be situated in San Francisco. Any day there may be an order in Toronto, New York, Atlanta or New Orleans for your city. If you have been rubbing shoulders with the men from these cities, have got to know them personally, is it not reasonable to suppose that your establishment is going to stand a good chance of receiving this order?

The members of the F. T. D. are a live bunch of business men—men who weigh carefully every business transaction. Don't consider expense in connection with this meeting. Whatever the cost of your trip may be, it will be money well invested.—Get off the line, Central; we are not half through yet.

Worth the Time.

"Can't spare the time" did you say? Why, that's worse than the expense alibi! Let us admit you are a good distance from Baltimore and that the expense will be considerable. Yet any member in this country should make the trip in one week, except, perhaps, some members on the Pacific coast and in western Canada. That week will accomplish more for your business than a month of your time sitting around the store worrying your brain how to increase your volume of business. You will meet men at that meeting who have taken time to come from England. A week spent with that live crowd will be the best tonic you ever took. It will enlighten your mind, broaden your vision. You will go back home a new man, ready to jump into the winter's business with new vim.

What's that, Central? "Time's up"? This is F. T. D. business; we know nothing about time limits; charge extra toll.

Hello, hello! You say, "I am not an F. T. D. member." That makes no difference; we want you anyhow. You will be just as welcome at this meeting as if you had been a charter member of the association.

In the F. T. D. we realize that we have the best business organization in the world. In the short span of ten years we have built up an organization transacting a volume of business amounting to $10,000,000 annually. These were the figures given at Toronto a year ago; they will be greater for 1922.

We want every retail florist in the United States and Canada to be a member. This means you. We know that if you attend the Baltimore meeting you will go home as enthusiastic an F. T. D. booster as any of its members. Don't let a little thing like membership stand in your way. You will find the glad hand out to welcome you at this meeting. Listen to its deliberations for two days; then we will leave the question of your becoming a member to yourself.—Get off that line, Central; never mind about tolls; charge them to the Baltimore F. T. D. committee. My orders were to send this message.

Hello! How is that? "I will think it over." That's what we call a man. No one ever gave this question serious thought who did not turn up at the meeting.

The Program.

Now, we are going to tell you some nice things about the meeting. For two days you will not have time to get outside the Emerson hotel. It will be business of the organization from the time you get up in the morning until you go to bed at night. Thursday, October 12, will be Baltimore day. The board of directors told us last May we could go as far as we liked on Thursday. There will be no business; this will be a get-together day. This will be the day when A. F. Borden, from Los Angeles, will be skylarking with Max Schling, from New York.

In Baltimore we play just as hard as we work. Everyone will be up bright and early; there will be plenty of automobiles. The committee wants you to see a brand-new city built in seven years. The old one was wiped out by fire in 1904; it was rebuilt in 1911. Then we want you to see the surrounding country and our big growing establishments. Did you ever eat lunch in the packing shed of a large range? No; then you don't know what you have missed. Uncle Dick Vincent, out at the White Marsh dahlia farm, will do the honors, and, believe me, he knows how they should be done. Then, when we get to the Akehurst range another lunch will be waiting. But Central will be butting in again if I keep on.

We must be back to the Emerson by 6 in order to give the ladies a chance to primp up for the banquet, which we sit down to at 7. We have ordered 600 covers to start with; we want to make it 2,400 if all the members will come. We are being guided by the hotel reservations we receive.

After the banquet there will be an entertainment from 9 until 11; from 11 until 1 you may dance as much as you wish. That is, if there is any dance left in you.

We can't reach everyone we would like to invite; so pass this invitation to your neighbor; bring him with you. The more the merrier. Will be on the outlook for you in Baltimore in October. Good-bye. R. T. P.

BALTIMORE HOTELS.

The Emerson hotel has been selected as headquarters for the annual meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, to be held at Baltimore October 10 to 12. The proprietor, it is said, is the man who originated Bromo-Seltzer; whether that had anything to do with the choice of the hotel is not stated. The rates at this hotel are as follows:

ATLANTA, GA.

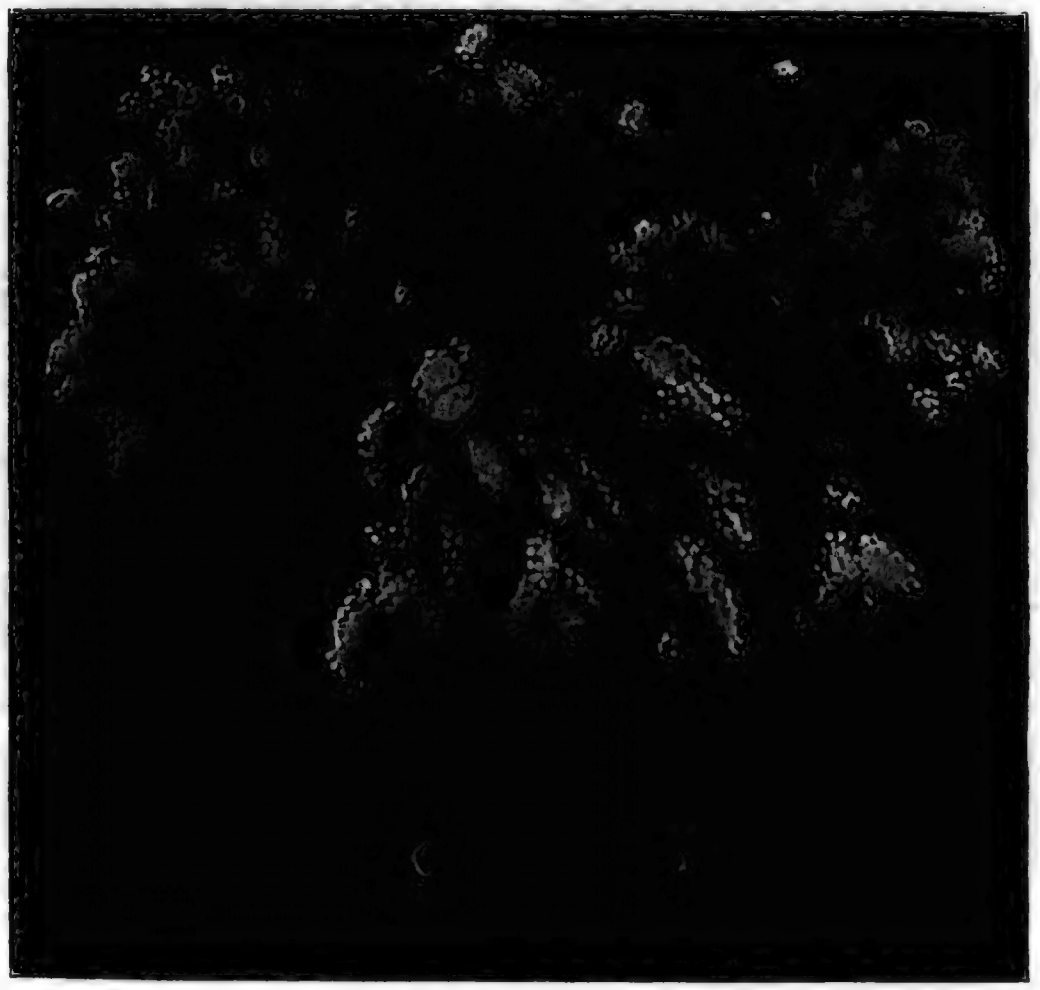
The many friends of Clifford J. Harrison were startled to learn that he has resigned as manager of the Thomas C.

Jay store, in Atlanta. He is returning to Nashville, his home city, and will announce his future plans in a short while. While he has not been a resident of Atlanta long, his personality has been such that he leaves many friends here who wish him all good luck. Thomas Joy announced that Miss Carrie Chance will take charge of both stores, making her headquarters at the downtown store. Buford Brown has been transferred from Nashville to Atlanta to assist Miss Chance.

Mrs. J. S. Garfield, of T. C. Joy's downtown store, has returned from her vacation.

Claude Barfield, manager of the West View Floral Co., has gone to North Carolina for a two weeks' vacation.

Rupert D. Wilson, of Rosemont Gardens, Montgomery, Ala., was a recent visitor with the trade. He has spent considerable time in the mountains of North Carolina and in visiting the growers in that section. J. S. H.



ACACIAS IN THE GREENHOUSE.

Acacias form a large genus of shrubs or trees. Those of most commercial value are from temperate regions, South Australia and New South Wales. Some of the species—armata, for instance—make neat, compact plants for pot culture, while pubescens, one of the most graceful of all, is not only of value for pot or tub culture, but is splendidly adapted for training on a pillar or wall of a light, cool house. A temperature of 40 degrees in winter will suit the commercial species. Their flowering can be hastened several weeks by more heat and an abundance of water, but the plants resent anything in the nature of forcing. They are most free-flowering. The prevailing color is yellow, ranging from lemon to orange. In a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees, most of the species flower from Christmas until April. A good loam, not too finely broken up, one-fourth leaf-mold, will suit the acacias in pots. If they are planted out permanently in a border, then the soil must be well drained; some charcoal mixed with the soil will greatly help to keep it in good condition.

Acacias are propagated from the half-ripened wood in May or June; that is, from the shoots made the previous spring. Insert the cuttings in pans of sand, or leaf-mold and sand, and place the pans in a coldframe, shading it on hot days and keeping it close till growth begins. When the cuttings are rooted, pot them off and grow on in a coldframe. During the following winter keep the plants in a cool house. After danger of frost is past in the spring, shift the plants into larger pots and plunge outside, where they must be well supplied with water. The plants should be stopped as soon as they grow in the spring, to induce a branching growth. Any plants unsold after flowering should be cut back half to three-quarters the previous summer's growth, shifted if needed, and plunged outside during summer. This applies especially to A. armata, so largely grown for Easter.

Few insects of any kind attack the acacia. Plenty of water at all times and syringing except when in flower is the proper treatment for acacias.

A. pubescens is unquestionably the most graceful and beautiful of the entire genus. While it is at its best when planted out, it makes handsome specimens in large pots and tubs and never fails to excite admiration at the spring flower shows. Propagated from cuttings, this plant makes a slow growth, but about 1913 the late Jackson Dawson, of the Arnold Arboretum, Boston, produced grafted plants over six feet in height within a year. Since that time a few others have succeeded in propagating it in this manner, but only to a limited extent, and the demand for the plant exceeds the available supply. A. Baileyana is the earliest bloomer among the acacias and can easily be flowered for Christmas. Its greatest value is for supplying cut sprays and not as a pot plant. A. Baileyana and A. pubescens are most generally used for cutting, the former blooming before the latter. A. Drummondii, of bushy habit, and A. armata make splendid pot plants. A. Riceana makes a bush or can be trained. A. longifolia is an erect grower. The varieties of acacia are legion, but for the commercial cultivator the small list here given will suffice. The greater proportion of this genus are better adapted for street trees or for hedging purposes than for greenhouse culture.

Acacia Pubescens.

LANCASTER, PA.

At J. Wade Gayley's range, near Strasburg, Pa., carnations are well under way. Varieties are confined to Matchless, Ward, Beacon and Laddie. Beacon, with Mr. Gayley, seems to possess all of the old-time vigor it had when first sent out by Peter Fisher. Accurate records prove Laddie to be the most profitable carnation at this establishment. A section of a bench is planted with Red Matchless, which last season proved to manifest all the splendid qualities of the mother variety and is well thought of. Mr. and Mrs. Gayley last week delightfully entertained some of their florist friends at a corn roast, followed by cards.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Brown, pansy and geranium specialists, recently returned from a ten weeks' trip on the continent. Mr. Brown spent some time with the seed growing specialists near Quedlinburg, Germany, and mentioned, in particular, one firm which has a great acreage planted to flowers for seed alone. His stock of pansies here at home is coming along nicely and soon he will be sending them to all points of the compass. The geranium houses are filled with big, healthy cuttings, ready for the propagating houses. Mr. Brown is ably assisted in the business by his son. H. K. R.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Last week there was no change in the condition of the cut flower market until Saturday, when buying was a little more active, requirements for funeral work taking a good deal of stock. Labor day caused no particular demand, nor was it expected, as on this holiday the exodus from the city is greater than on any other, not excepting July 4. There is an abundance of flowers of all kinds, but the general demand is poor. With the schools opening in a few days, and the return of many thousands of families to their city homes, retail business is expected to improve, but, really, it cannot be said that business during the last two weeks was materially different in volume from the business of previous years for the similar period.

Roses are not in great supply, yet there is a sufficiency for all demands. American Beauty is one variety that is somewhat in oversupply, and the price range last quoted is still in effect, $10 halls at this time. Besides the prizes for blooms, there will be special prizes for the best exhibits of fruits and vegetables. R. B. M.

The prevailing color is yellow, ranging from lemon to orange. In a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees, most of the species flower from Christmas until April. A good loam, not too finely broken up, one-fourth leaf-mold, will suit the acacias in pots. If they are planted out permanently in a border, then the soil must be well drained; some charcoal mixed with the soil will greatly help to keep it in good condition.

Acacias are propagated from the half-ripened wood in May or June; that is, from the shoots made the previous spring. Insert the cuttings in pans of sand, or leaf-mold and sand, and place the pans in a coldframe, shading it on hot days and keeping it close till growth begins. When the cuttings are rooted, pot them off and grow on in a coldframe. During the following winter keep the plants in a cool house. After danger of frost is past in the spring, shift the plants into larger pots and plunge outside, where they must be well supplied with water. The plants should be stopped as soon as they grow in the spring, to induce a branching growth. Any plants unsold after flowering should be cut back half to three-quarters the previous summer's growth, shifted if needed, and plunged outside during summer. This applies especially to A. armata, so largely grown for Easter.

Few insects of any kind attack the acacia. Plenty of water at all times and syringing except when in flower is the proper treatment for acacias.

A. pubescens is unquestionably the most graceful and beautiful of the entire genus. While it is at its best when planted out, it makes handsome specimens in large pots and tubs and never fails to excite admiration at the spring flower shows. Propagated from cuttings, this plant makes a slow growth, but about 1913 the late Jackson Dawson, of the Arnold Arboretum, Boston, produced grafted plants over six feet in height within a year. Since that time a few others have succeeded in propagating it in this manner, but only to a limited extent, and the demand for the plant exceeds the available supply. A. Baileyana is the earliest bloomer among the acacias and can easily be flowered for Christmas. Its greatest value is for supplying cut sprays and not as a pot plant. A. Baileyana and A. pubescens are most generally used for cutting, the former blooming before the latter. A. Drummondii, of bushy habit, and A. armata make splendid pot plants. A. Riceana makes a bush or can be trained. A. longifolia is an erect grower. The varieties of acacia are legion, but for the commercial cultivator the small list here given will suffice. The greater proportion of this genus are better adapted for street trees or for hedging purposes than for green house culture.

Acacia Pubescens.

LANCASTER, PA.

At J. Wade Gayley's range, near Strasburg, Pa., carnations are well under way. Varieties are confined to Matchless, Ward, Beacon and Laddie. Beacon, with Mr. Gayley, seems to possess all of the old-time vigor it had when first sent out by Peter Fisher. Accurate records prove Laddie to be the most profitable carnation at this establishment. A section of a bench is planted with Red Matchless, which last season proved to manifest all the splendid qualities of the mother variety and is well thought of. Mr. and Mrs. Gayley last week delightfully entertained some of their florist friends at a corn roast, followed by cards.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Brown, pansy and geranium specialists, recently returned from a ten weeks' trip on the continent. Mr. Brown spent some time with the seed growing specialists near Quedlinburg, Germany, and mentioned, in particular, one firm which has a great acreage planted to flowers for seed alone. His stock of pansies here at home is coming along nicely and soon he will be sending them to all points of the compass. The geranium houses are filled with big, healthy cuttings, ready for the propagating houses. Mr. Brown is ably assisted in the business by his son.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Last week there was no change in the condition of the cut flower market until Saturday, when buying was a little more active, requirements for funeral work taking a good deal of stock. Labor day caused no particular demand, nor was it expected, as on this holiday the exodus from the city is greater than on any other, not excepting July 4. There is an abundance of flowers of all kinds, but the general demand is poor. With the schools opening in a few days, and the return of many thousands of families to their city homes, retail business is expected to improve, but, really, it cannot be said that business during the last two weeks was materially different in volume from the business of previous years for the similar period.

Roses are not in great supply, yet there is a sufficiency for all demands. American Beauty is one variety that is somewhat in oversupply, and the price range last quoted is still in effect, $10 to $40 per hundred for special grades. Hybrid teas are plentiful in all except white varieties, which are unusually short and, when required for funeral work, are sometimes quite hard to get.

Cattleyas are in moderate supply, but the demand is not up to it, and sacrifices are necessary at times to effect clearances.

White lilies are plentiful, and a good many speciosum, rubrum and album continue to arrive, moving fairly well.

Asters continue abundant and much stock goes to waste. About 25 cents per bunch seems to be the extreme top price for the best; the rest move largely at prices determined by the possibility of a clean-up. The supply of gladioli is shortening, but there are still too many arriving, and the highest quality commands no more than $2 per hundred. Dahlia arrivals are becoming larger each day, and they are only cleared with difficulty. Good blooms on stems two to three feet long occasionally bring 50 to 75 cents per dozen, the rest moving at any price from 25 cents per dozen down to the lowest bargain figure. Other miscellaneous flowers are plentiful.

Various Notes.

A few changes of note have occurred in the Eighteenth street cut flower market. The store formerly occupied by Clarence Slinn has been taken by James Rutig, for many years with Joseph S. Fenrich. Mr. Rutig is entering the wholesale business under the style of James Rutig & Co. The store formerly occupied by Polykranas has been leased by Lecakes, Chingos & Co., a new firm. The Lecakes for some time have had quarters with the Henshaw Floral Co., where they have handled vast quantities of green goods. Chingos handled a similar line in quarters with Joseph S. Fenrich. The Henshaw Floral Co. has moved the supply stock depot from the old Slinn stand to the quarters on the mezzanine floor formerly occupied by the Julius Roehrs Co. The sales department continues on the main floor.

The annual exhibition of the American Dahlia Society will open on the roof of the Pennsylvania hotel September 26, to continue until September 29. Every foot of available trade space has been sold, and the quarters this year include the lobbies and foyer. J. H. P.

Friends of Sam Seligman will be pleased to learn that he now is in the employ of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., as manager of that firm's New York store, 146 West Eighteenth street.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Afterthought of the Convention.

Looking back at the thirty-ninth convention of the S. A. F., everybody interested in it has cause for the greatest satisfaction over its successful outcome, and it has gone down into history as one of the best conventions the society has held. All taking part in the work of preparation for it seem to be pleased and happy that a big success was accomplished without a hitch or the slightest suggestion of friction. The exhibitors in the trade exhibition generally express themselves as pleased with the amount of business done; and the exhibition itself was a wonderful exposition of florists' supplies and accessories, in spite of railroad conditions, which made it impossible for some contemplated exhibits to arrive in time for display.

Especial thanks of our officers and members are due to the chairmen of the different local committees in Kansas City and their capable fellow-workers for their most efficient services, and to the trade in general for their hearty support. The society's vice-president, Samuel Murray; executive chairman, William L. Rock; state vice-president, W. J. Barnes; chairman of the transportation commitee, William Wade; chairman of the entertainment committee, E. A. Humfeld, and secretary of the Kansas City Florists' Club, Glenn K. Parker, would appear to have devoted to the society their entire time for weeks in advance of the convention and during convention week, in order that every detail planned should be properly carried out.

Too much praise could hardly be given Frank M. Robinson, secretary of the convention bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, who, though handicapped by two broken legs, sustained in an automobile accident while in St. Louis several weeks before the convention, insisted upon visiting Convention hall to see that, in so far as his bureau was concerned, everything arranged for had been taken care of. He made the Savoy hotel his headquarters during the three days' sessions, and was constantly in touch with the secretary.

William Symon, who has charge of the publicity department of the convention bureau, not only took care of the publicity work, but assumed the duties of Mr. Robinson in an executive way, and was present during the whole of the convention, becoming affectionately known to all of the officials as just plain "Bill" Symon.

Concerning the Budget.

The report of the proceedings of the board of directors at the spring meeting printed and distributed at the convention, was, as usual, rather voluminous. It has been customary to make this report as brief as possible, while aiming to include all essential details. One particular matter, it would seem, might have been presented a little more fully, and that was in connection with the publicity campaign, page 8 of the report. In the discussion noted on that page Mr. Ammann is reported to have stated in effect that the campaign had a good working capital, while his remarks really implied that the society had a good working capital. In the discussion on publicity, which formed an important part of the proceedings, the matter of financial assistance from the society itself was a feature, and was the subject matter of the paragraph referred to. As a result of this discussion, the directors passed a resolution unanimously deciding that in future the expenses of the publicity campaign be paid from the society's general fund.

This is really as it should be, for up to the present time the society has not contributed a dollar of cash to the campaign. It is true that at the St. Louis convention $5,000 was appropriated, and at the Detroit convention another $5,000 was voted to the campaign, but when the publicity committee realized that the general fund was short of cash and could not afford to pay these appropriations, the two amounts, which had been provided and partly used, were returned to the treasury of the society. While the society has not subscribed anything toward the publicity campaign, an amount equaling $3,000 has been contributed yearly from the funds raised or subscribed, the same to go toward the maintenance of the administration office, from which the campaign was promoted and is conducted. This matter was taken into consideration by the budget committee, which consisted of Herman P. Knoble, Paul Klingsporn and Treasurer J. J. Hess, and the estimated budget of receipts and disbursements for the current year, which was approved by the convention assembled in Kansas City, provided that the new arrangement as to expense should prevail. The details of the budget as submitted by this committee, which show the approximate disbursements for the year, are as follows:

Traveling expenses of officials	$ 600.00
Printing and stationery	1,000.00
Officers' salaries	5,300.00
Clerical assistance	3,000.00
Expenses of state vice-presidents	500.00
Light, heat, telephone, telegraph	300.00
Membership drive	500.00
Office expenses	500.00
Postage	500.00
Furniture and fixtures	300.00
Rent	780.00
Tariff and legislation	200.00
Miscellaneous	750.00
Total	$14,230.00

And the estimated annual income was based on the following:

Annual dues	$ 7,000.00
Initiation fees of new members	2,500.00
Income from investments	2,400.00
Income from convention	5,000.00
Total	$16,900.00

The expenses of the publicity campaign are thus included, and the appropriation of $3,000 usually set aside as coming from the funds of the publicity campaign are not included in these figures. Indications are that, while the expenses of the society will not exceed the amount estimated, the receipts will undoubtedly be more than has been suggested. The $2,500 appropriation voted by the convention in Kansas City to the publicity campaign will be used entirely for national advertising.

In the list of deceased members noted in the report of the committee on memorials presented at the convention, only the name of J. E. McAdams, Fort Worth, Tex., who died October 31, 1921, appeared. The date was omitted, but will be printed in the official proceedings.

Next Convention.

The next convention, which will be held at Hartford, Conn., comes later in the month than did the Kansas City meeting. The dates are August 21 to 23. At this early date prospective exhibitors in the trade section are inquiring for particulars as to the hall and accommodation, which indicates that the 1923 convention will be thoroughly in keeping with the exhibitions of previous years. Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., vice-president-elect, is already busy on preliminary preparations, and it goes without saying that the Hartford convention is likely to break all records for interest and attendance.

John Young, Sec'y.

TORONTO, ONT.

Business was improved last week. The influx of exhibition visitors by hundreds of thousands has helped the trade. There is a plentiful supply of blooms of high quality. In abundance are asters, gladioli and roses. In addition, sweet peas are arriving. These are the best we have had in years. During the last month there has been a heavy demand for design work and both local and telegraph delivery business has been good.

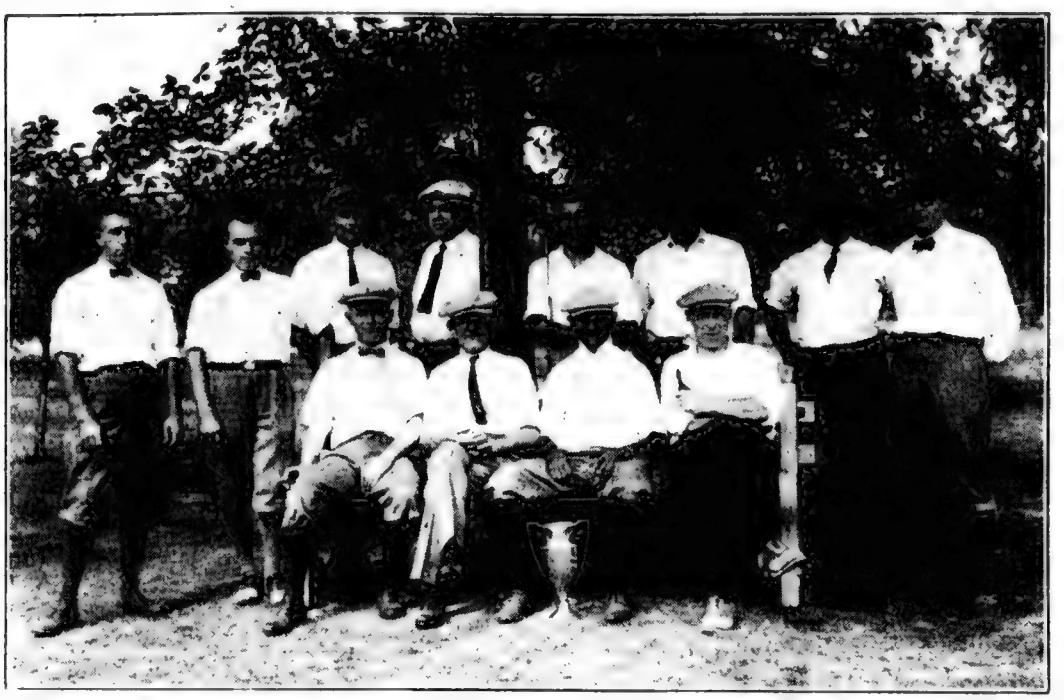
Mr. and Mrs. H. James motored to New York and are spending a holiday at their summer home, at Long Island.

An assistant storekeeper has come to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Higgins. He's a boy.

An account of the demise of Arthur J. Frost will be found on the obituary page of this issue. J. J. H.

AUBURN, MASS.

With the opening of schools and the advent of fall weddings comes an improvement of trade and a brisk demand for flowers, which are still plentiful. The market is glutted with asters of good quality, with prices low to the grower. Potted plants are making their appearance in a few of the stores.



Two or three florists in this city were well employed for a few days through the death of a former mayor of Worcester. There was a wealth of floral tributes and more than 700 people attended the funeral.

The Worcester Horticultural Society omitted the weekly show, because of the many exhibitors, who were and are members, exhibiting at the New England fair, September 1 to 5.

Serious alarm is being caused by the short supply of coal among the growers under glass. E. A.

A. Henderson, Winner of Ziska Cup.

Contestants in Chicago Trade's First Golf Tourney, at Briergate Club, August 31.

CHICAGO FLORISTS GOLF.

The distinction of holding the first local golf tourney in this trade belongs to the florists of Chicago by virtue of the initiative of John Ziska, who invited his fellow craftsmen to compete for a silver cup, donated by Joseph Ziska & Sons, at the Briergate Golf Club, Deerfield, Ill., August 31. An even dozen responded to his invitation. A number of others expressed their desire to participate, but were kept away by business demands. Theirs was the loss, for those who partook of Mr. Ziska's hospitality spent a most enjoyable day on an interesting golf course and discovered that in the ranks of florists in this town are some players of exceptional caliber.

One surprise was in store for the boys. Upon arrival at the course, about 10 o'clock in the morning, a round was made of the first nine holes. When all had completed this, Bob, the genial and ever-helpful club professional, announced that the scores would be used as the basis of handicaps for an 18 hole contest in the afternoon. Though the handicaps held by the players at their individual clubs had been noted, all agreed that the plan proposed was most fair and sportsmanlike. The announcement, however, cast a shadow of gloom on the usual cheery face of Morton Poehlmann, who had in the morning round shot a superb 41 for the nine holes, par of which is 36, a feat which he admitted he did not expect to equal in the afternoon. The three representatives of the Poehlmann family, however, turned in the three lowest scores of the afternoon, Roland and Walter finishing a few strokes ahead of Morton. The foursome composed of these three and Homer Lange was easily the stellar combination of the day, Bert Chadwick being the only one besides them who turned in a score of but two figures.

Alex Henderson declared the day contained more than one surprise for him. Shooting several strokes over his usual score, he was given the limit in handicap, 30 strokes. He shot a little better in the afternoon, just good enough to win. His victory was a close one, however, for his net score of 76 was closely followed by the 77 made by Roland Poehlmann and the 78 of Walter Poehlmann and A. R. Weissgerber, while the host, John Ziska, came next with a net of 80, edging Arthur Anderson with a net of 82 out of fifth place. Homer Lange, who wore the silver medal he had won in a former year's golf tournament at Lincoln park, admitted that yachting had deprived him of the practice needed to play prize-winning golf. H. N. Bruns explained his absence of better form by the fact that this day was the first this year on which he had played more than fifteen holes.

The individual scores were as follows:

	Morning 9 holes	Afternoon gross	Handicap	Net
Henderson, A.	54	106	30	76
Poehlmann, Roland	46	89	12	77
Poehlmann, Walter	48	92	14	78
Weissgerber, A. R.	59	108	30	78
Ziska, John	55	110	30	80
Anderson, A. M.	64	112	30	82
Lange, Homer	48	98	14	84
Chadwick, Bert	49	99	15	84
Poehlmann, Morton	41	95	8	87
Kilner, F. R.	56	118	30	88
Bruns, Herman	55	119	30	89
Bruns, H. N.	69	134	30	104

Host Ziska supplied a round of refreshments at the nineteenth hole, which everyone appreciated, since the day was hot and the hour was late. Herman Bruns and his Graflex camera were on the job to provide the illustrations which you see on this page.

This tourney is anticipated to be the forerunner of an annual golf tournament for the Chicago trade, since Champion Alex Henderson, upon receiving the beautiful silver cup from Mr. Ziska, declared that it should be put up for competition another season. His less fortunate competitors heartily agreed, while they voiced praise of John Ziska for having so happily inaugurated the trade's new sporting event.

NEW YORKERS TO MEET.

The meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Florists' Clubs will be held in the commissioner's office, at the New York state fair, Syracuse, N. Y., Wednesday, September 13, at 2 p. m.

E. A. White, Acting Sec'y.

Adolph Brix

News of the death in Mahrisch-Trubau, Czechoslovakia, of Adolph Brix, head of the A. Brix Floral Co., St. Louis, Mo., was received last week. Mrs. Brix is now on her way over and will take the remains to St. Louis. Mr. Brix, who was 69 years old and a native of Czechoslovakia, left St. Louis early this summer on a business trip.

Besides his wife, he leaves a son, Dr. Arthur Brix, and a daughter, Mrs. A. Grimm. Mr. Brix was a member of the St. Louis Florists' Club. J. J. B.

F. A. Knull.

F. A. Knull, president and general manager of the Knull Floral Co., Tampa, Fla., died at his residence in that city Tuesday, August 29, at 2:42 p. m., after an illness that lasted about three weeks. His death was caused by heart trouble and Bright's disease. He was taken suddenly ill at Madison, Fla., while driving his car through the country on a trip for his health. He was given medical attention at a hospital at Madison, but not much hope was given for his recovery and the family was advised to bring him home, which was in accordance with his wishes.

Mr. Knull was 46 years of age. He was born near Larwill, Ind., and went to Florida some years ago. In 1908 he established the present firm, which has been successfully conducted by him.

The deceased was a member of the S. A. F. and was first vice-president of the Florida State Florists' Association. He was a member of the Tampa board of trade, and belonged also to the Moose and Woodman lodges.

He is survived by his wife, one son, William H. Knull; two sisters, Mrs. C. S. Phillips, of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Mrs. Dr. N. Z. Souder, of Auburn, Ind., and one brother, C. E. Knull, of Twin Falls, Ida.

Funeral services were held at 3:30 p. m., August 30, with interment in Myrtle Hill cemetery in the family plot. Pallbearers were selected from the staff of the firm's greenhouses.

The business of the Knull Floral Co. will be conducted by Mrs. Knull and the son, William H. Knull.

Not every man is so universally beloved and respected as was Mr. Knull, as evidenced by the following editorial in the Tampa Tribune on the day before his funeral:

"Frank A. Knull, who died Tuesday in this city, was one of the class whose loss is a distinct blow to any city. It is not every man who devotes his life to flowers, who encourages the spreading of blossoms and verdure. For more than fourteen years Mr. Knull was engaged in proving to the south that Florida's botanical splendor eclipsed that of any other state. His flowers and his plants, like himself, gladdened all about them, and many who knew him will be glad that they can 'Say It with Flowers' at his funeral, and know that the heart of him knows and would have it no other way. He will be missed, and his place will not be easily filled, for as an experimenter and a skilled gardener, a florist and a friend he had few equals in the south."

At the suggestion of C. Leslie Whipp, president of the Florida State Florists' Association, Secretary N. A. Reasoner sent as a floral tribute a large and beautiful wreath of magnolia leaves decorated with a spray of cycas leaves and two dozen choice Red Radiance roses. The chiffon tie bore the association's name in gold lettering and a card was attached bearing the message of the sincere sympathy of the association to his family. The floral department of the Royal Palm Nurseries, at Oneco, furnished the piece and surely deserves credit for the exquisite workmanship.

Arthur J. Frost.

The trade lost a well-known figure when Arthur J. Frost, of Toronto, Ont., passed away August 27. He was born in Suffolk, England, in 1863, and went to Toronto at the age of 11 years, with his parents, in 1874. Since that time he had been connected with the florists' business. For some time he worked at growing and in 1890 he rented the greenhouses of his employer and started out for himself. Two years later he purchased ground at the corner of Concord and Hallam streets, Toronto, and erected a series of six houses, comprising about 17,000 square feet of glass. Here he conducted and built up a large retail and wholesale trade. All the houses are devoted to growing flowers, smilax and asparagus.

Associated with him in the business were his two sons, Arthur George and Frederick Butler. Besides these two, surviving are his wife, a daughter, Mrs. C. H. S. Hunter, and a son, William Jonathan.

For thirty years the late Mr. Frost supplied the church of which he was a member with a bouquet every Sunday. His beauty spot at the corner of Concord and Hallam streets was one of the landmarks of the district.

Louis Clesen.

Louis Clesen, a reticent, retiring, hard-working man who was a good grower of carnations, died August 29, at his home, 6150 North Robey street, Chicago. Mr. Clesen, who was a bachelor in the early forties, was a member of the firm of Clesen Bros. They built their first greenhouses in 1910 and for about eight years forced vegetables in them. Then came a time, just after the war, when carnations seemed to promise better returns and they have been at it ever since. Their stock is now being sold by Peter Reinberg, Inc., and has averaged 25,000 to 30,000 a week during the season. There were many flowers at the funeral, which was held August 31, as not only the deceased, but his brothers, are held in high esteem in their community.

Alfred H. Wingett.

Alfred H. Wingett, for about thirty years superintendent of the extensive and beautiful estate of Charles Lanier, of Lenox, Mass., died suddenly August 30, of heart failure. Mr. Wingett, who was a native of England and had an excellent training there before coming to America, was one of the best known professional gardeners in the east, and his genial, courteous and gentlemanly ways endeared him to all who knew him. Many men now holding good positions secured some of their early training under the deceased gentleman.

Mr. Wingett was a member of the American Orchid Society and attended the great wild flower show in Boston last May and a subsequent dinner given by Albert C. Burrage. He was a prominent member of the Lenox Horticultural Society and a member of a number of national societies, including the National Association of Gardeners. At the funeral service, at Lenox, September 2, there was a large attendance of mourning friends and a great wealth of magnificent floral tributes, including a number from wealthy Lenox summer residents. W. N. C.

Mrs. G. Robert Miller.

August 13, Mrs. G. Robert Miller, wife of G. R. Miller, manager of the Kunzman Floral Co., Louisville, Ky., passed away. Before her marriage to Mr. Miller, Mrs. Miller was the widow of C. H. Kunzman and with him about twenty-five years ago started in the florists' business near the present location of the company.

After the death of Mr. Kunzman in 1906, Mr. Miller came into the business as grower and manager. Mrs. Miller's second marriage took place in 1908. Mrs. Miller was a member of the Kentucky Society of Florists and was an active attendant at meetings of the S. A. F.

Mrs. Miller is survived by her husband, a son, G. Harry Kunzman; a daughter-in-law; four grandchildren, George Harry, Dorothy Mae, William Desha and Virginia Courtenay Kunzman; three sisters, Mrs. Carrie Quarles, Mrs. Edward Bunting and Mrs. C. Pavoley.

The funeral was held at the Church of Our Lady, Louisville, and interment was made in Cave Hill cemetery. The following florist friends of the family served as pallbearers: J. S. Miller, Milton Reimers, Louis Kirch, George E. Schulz, Joseph Able and August R. Baumer.

William F. Thomas

The trade extends its sympathy to the family of W. F. Thomas, of St. Louis, who died at his home in that city August 31, after a short illness. Mr. Thomas went to St. Louis from Chicago in 1919 to open an office for the A. L. Randall Co., in the Victoria building. After a year he resigned and since then has been on the road for the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., traveling in the east. His family resided at St. Louis. Mr. Thomas was a member of the St. Louis Florists' Club. He leaves a wife, two daughters and a son to mourn his loss. The funeral took place Sunday, September 3. Many friends sent floral emblems and attended the services. J. J. B.

Lawrence, Mass.—The Success Dahlia Gardens, owned by Charles G. Reed and Harold G. Reed, scored a victory at a horticultural show held Saturday, August 19. Messrs. Reed were presented a silver cup for winning first place for the most meritorious display in the dahlia section.

Washington, Pa.—The Warrick Floral Co. is about to open a new and up-to-date retail store in the George Washington hotel building. William Abrahamson, manager of the store fixtures department of the A. L. Randall Co., was here from Chicago September 2 to make plans for equipping the store, for which his company has the contract.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

A PAGE OF TIMELY AID AND ADVICE TO GROWERS

PROPAGATING GERANIUMS.

It does not pay to start propagating bedding geraniums too early. The later the cuttings are put in before the advent of frost, the smaller will be the percentage of loss from damping off. In August and early September, geraniums make rapid growth and their wood is soft and succulent. The cuttings from this wood are far more liable to damp off than where the first cold nights have checked the growth and hardened the wood. There is always far less liability of the cuttings from greenhouse-grown plants damping off, as the wood is so much firmer. Do not, therefore, be in too much of a rush to put in your cuttings. A propagating bench will answer the purpose, while flats with a layer of coal ashes covered with moss, with sharp sand to fill the balance, will make excellent rooting mediums. These can be placed in frames temporarily and moved to shelves in any of the houses later. Never shade geranium cuttings, but, after the first watering, run them somewhat on the dry side. Trim the leaves closely from cuttings and, if they are quite sappy, it will be better to let them lie on the potting bench for twenty-four hours before placing them in the sand. C. W.

GARDENIAS.

These popular, sweet-scented evergreen flowering plants are outside the range of most growers, being mainly in the hands of specialists. No one should attempt their culture unless he has a house with a winter minimum of 60 degrees. Of course, they can be grown 10 to 15 degrees lower, but in such a temperature the buds will all drop in winter. Plants in pots grow well outside in summer, if plunged to their brims and kept well syringed to keep that arch enemy, mealy bug, under control. If in a bench, it will be necessary now to reduce the number and weights of syringings. Only spray them on clear, warm days and be sure the plants are dry before night. A top-dressing of partly decayed leaves, old well-rotted cow manure, with a little Clay's fertilizer added, proves much to the liking of gardenias. Until nights get colder, it is best to leave a little night ventilation on.

BERRIED SOLANUMS.

While some florists continue to grow their Jerusalem cherries through the summer in pots, the majority of them prefer to plant cherries out, potting them in the early fall. Any time after the first week in September, solanums, which are now heavily fruited, can be lifted carefully and potted. Endeavor to get as many roots as possible and some soil with each plant, and pot firmly. Stand the plants in a position where they can be shaded from strong sunlight and reduce the length of time they are shaded a little each day. It is a complete mistake to place the plants, when potted, in a heavily-shaded frame or greenhouse to prevent wilting. There will be far more loss from plants thus treated than where they are merely protected from strong sunlight. The sun warms the pots and starts root action, and if you will remember to spray the plants frequently and give them a little more sun each day, you will be surprised how soon the plants will become established and cease wilting. As a rule, 5 and 6-inch pots will be found large enough for practically all of the solanums. The Cleveland cherry produces berries more abundantly than any other solanum. While scarlet is the popular color, there is also a moderate sale for the newer orange variety introduced by Carl Hagenburger one or two years ago. Small-sized plants of both colors, nicely fruited in 3-inch and 4-inch pots, sell well.

ARDISIAS.

Where plants of these bright and attractive berried subjects are wanted in good condition for the holidays, they should be given a warm, sunny house, so that the fruit will color well. Spray them frequently, as this will help to keep the foliage glossy and discourage the attacks of mealy bug and other insect pests. Ardisias will never be cheap plants, as they are slow growers and several years are needed to produce a plant the size of a solanum a few months old. The fruit of the ardisia has wonderful lasting qualities and, even in the dry condition of the average home, will not fall off as does that of the solanums.

MIGNONETTE.

A portion of a bench may be profitably occupied by mignonette in winter. A good rose or carnation soil suits this plant, in a house which does not run over 45 degrees at night in winter. While the plants of this popular, fragrant annual succeed best in solid ground beds, they flower extremely well in raised benches in winter, particularly where no heating pipes run below them. This plant dislikes bottom heat and the finest spikes are produced in a comparatively low temperature. This does not, of course, mean that it cannot be grown several degrees warmer than advised. There are some fine special forcing strains of mignonette on the market and the best is none too good to plant. The seed may be started in small pots or sown where it is to flower. It is difficult to transplant successfully, on account of the nature of its roots. A few seeds should be sown at intervals of fourteen to fifteen inches apart in the rows, running these rows eighteen inches apart. Thin the seedlings, leaving a couple in each little patch. Look out for caterpillars, which are the larvæ of the white butterflies, so abundant somewhat later. These caterpillars will speedily clean up the mignonette, if they are not looked after carefully.

SCHIZANTHUS.

Sometimes called the poor man's orchid or the butterfly flower, the schizanthus is one of our most beautiful annuals for pot culture, succeeding much better under glass than outdoors. Previous to the introduction of the variety wisetonensis, by the firm of Stuart Low & Co., in England, the schizanthus had but little popularity as a pot plant. Now great numbers are grown and, while wisetonensis still holds its popularity, there are a number of improved, large-flowered strains, which show considerable advances over wisetonensis. Seed of schizanthus can be sown now. Put two or three seeds in small pots and then cut to one, or sow in a pan or flat and later pot off singly. Never allow the plants to become potbound until they are in their flowering pots, and always grow them cool and well up to the light. There are no more charming annuals in pots than schizanthus. They keep well cut in water and come in useful for design work. Try a few and you will want more the next season.

FERNS FOR DISHES.

The demand for ferns for dishes each year is tremendous and there never appears to be any surplus of the standard, reliable sorts. A limited number only of florists grow ferns from spores and it is best for the small grower to purchase what he needs in summer or early fall, either in flats or in small pots, and grow along any he may want into larger sizes. Many of the pteris make splendid table ferns—such sorts as P. cretica, P. cristata, P. Wimsettii, P. Victoriæ, P. rivertoniana, P. serrulata, P. Wilsonii, P. albo-lineata and others; also some of the aspidiums and adiantums and even the dwarfer growing nephrolepis. Lay in a stock now and do not be looking for ferns when cold weather is upon us and the holidays are near.

TRANSPLANTING.

There will be much transplanting necessary, at this season, of biennials and perennials, such as hollyhocks, Canterbury bells, foxgloves, delphiniums, aquilegias, etc. Some of these it will pay to carry over winter in coldframes, especially the weaker growers, while the more lusty ones can be set out in nursery rows or beds, where they can be kept well cultivated for some weeks yet. Cultivation is the salvation of plants, especially if, after planting, a dry spell should prevail. Keep the weeds down and a fine dust mulch on the surface and it is astonishing how well the plants will grow.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

NOT all publicity is advertising, but all advertising is publicity.

IT is an axiom of the economists that business goes where it is wanted and stays where it is well treated.

TIMES surely change, and for the better. Golf, not bowling, now ranks as the favorite recreation of florists.

NEXT Monday, September 11, E. G. Hill, at Richmond, Ind., will celebrate his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary.

WITH an increasing demand for common labor, higher prices for coal and continued high express rates, the growers' costs exhibit a strong resistance to descending.

TIMES have not changed so much that business men cannot make money. They have merely changed to the extent that those who are not business men can no longer reap profits.

WITH the ending of the anthracite strike last week, florists are assured of getting their fuel supply the coming season, though at prices advanced instead of reduced from those of last year.

IT doesn't seem to do much good to save coal. When lack of demand creates a surplus they simply shut down the mines, wait until the surplus is consumed and, when we come into the market again, add the cost of the shutdown to the price we previously paid!

A RECURRENCE of the episode of wages chasing costs to ever-higher levels would just now lead to a sorry reaction. There is not the demand for our products from abroad that there was during the war and our markets are open to foreign competition, while Congress, it seems, cannot revise the tariff upward with the same speed that wage scales can be boosted.

WHAT are the American people going to do with the coal trade? Here is a basic industry expanded to a capacity for far oversupplying the needs of the country, with men and mines to spare, idle nearly half the time and exacting two prices, or three, for its product. We would, none of us, stand for it another day if we knew how we, individually, could help ourselves.

PEOPLE who are tired of geraniums gladly will fill their window boxes with petunias next spring.

THE only way the greenhouse men can recover the extra cost of coal this season will be by getting a little more money all through for their output. The price-cutter should be in special disfavor on that account.

ONCE you get one man, in the middle of a neglected block, to fix up his grounds and take care of them, you have started something that will not stop. Pretty soon real estate values will begin to rise in that neighborhood.

ASK the neighboring merchants to use flowers in the window and store decorations for their fall openings. You can get some good orders for baskets and, if you do yourself credit with the work, it will lead to further business.

SOME people cannot stand prosperity and more money than is required for their present needs—more's the pity! Such ones will have to exhaust the money they put in the bank in the boom time before the present propensity for strikes is ended.

ONE thing we should all take pleasure in is the present great activity of the concerns supplying store fixtures. Every new outfit of fixtures, whether for a new store or only modernizing an old one, means a permanent increase in the sale of flowers, plants and accessories.

TOO often a florist picks a site close to a hospital or a cemetery, or some other favorable location, and waits for customers to drop in. He finds a fair livelihood. But if he knew how some of his fellows draw trade to less advantageously situated stores, he would realize how great opportunities he has overlooked.

THE statisticians' prediction of a labor shortage in this country when the law restricting immigration was passed is supported by the announcements of increased wages in the steel and textile fields. There is competition between industries for the workmen available.

HOW many retailers have made definite plans for the season's advertising? Every florist who sells to the public should devote a definite portion of his sales to advertising, say two and one-half per cent of last year's gross, and he should consider carefully its purposes, and the places and manner in which it is to be spent.

IT may be that some florists have not realized the development which has taken place in the flowering plant business. There is record of the shipment of a solid carload of cyclamens to one party. The same shipper last spring dispatched four solid carloads of Easter plants to Chicago, to be distributed among his customers there.

THE miners are back at work, the shop forces of the railroads appear to be nearing normal, factories are opening up upon assurance of coal, good crops are in harvest and the end of summer is at hand—time, from all evidences, for a decided picking up in business. After a quiet summer, though no duller than usual, most florists are preparing for a good autumn and winter.

WHO KNOWS?

A subscriber writes that he has heard of waxing the stems of strawflowers in order to preserve foliage and stem when dried. If any reader has done this, will he please tell us how?

A BUSINESS STRAW.

P. L. McKee, the widely known president of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, has another gauge by which he measures the rise and fall of general business activity. It is the number of orders his company receives for conservatories, for greenhouses of other than the purely utilitarian type. Among the company's recent bookings have been the following:

At Milwaukee, private conservatory for W. D. Van Dyke; at Highland Park, Ill., private conservatories for Morris Wolf and for Paul W. Chapman; at Champaign, Ill., public conservatory attached to natural history building at the University of Illinois; at Fargo, N. D., curved-eve show house attached to store of the Shotwell Floral Co.

From which straw Mr. McKee gathers that the returning tide of prosperity already has spread quite generally over the middle west.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS

Chicago, Ill.—Bids will be received until 9:30 a. m., September 12, by Fred E. Hummel, receiver, for the property of the Western Pottery Co., at 5220 Norwood Park avenue. The assets consist of a large stock of flower pots of all sizes, machinery for molding pots, kilns, automobile trucks, furniture and fixtures, real estate and buildings containing 68,000 square feet of ground space on the St. Paul tracks, with a switch track into it. The real estate is subject to a first mortgage of $25,000. Bids will be reported for approval at the first meeting of creditors, to be held at 11 a. m., September 12, before Sidney C. Eastman, referee in bankruptcy, 903 Monadnock block.

Chester, Pa.—A trustee's sale of the greenhouses and one refrigerator of Benjamin S. Italia, alleged bankrupt, was ordered held on the premises, at 921 Edgemont avenue, September 5, at 10 a. m.

BUSINESS GOOD IN MIDDLE WEST.

All sorts of stock seem to be selling briskly in the middle west, although the season is young. Advertisers report like this:

Please take out our ads on roses and carnations, as we are sold out; many thanks to you.—Peter Morgen & Co., Huntingburg, Ind., August 21, 1922.

Kindly stop my ad on carnation plants, as I am already sold out.—W. H. Francis, River View Greenhouses, Pontiac, Ill., August 23, 1922.

Please discontinue our ad regarding callas; we sold out, thanks.—Knightstown Greenhouses, Knightstown, Ind., August 24, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BRIEF ANSWERS

A. L., Mich.—See page 30 of The Review for August 10.

W. A. S., Ariz.—Consult series of articles under heading, "Hardy Perennial Garden," beginning in June 8 issue of The Review.

D. F. C., Minn.—Probably Gleditsia triacanthos, or honey locust, though identification without flowers or seeds is not positive.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Last week conditions at the cut flower markets remained unchanged. The last week in August was an exceedingly dull one, as the weather remained hot and dry. Cooler weather is needed to stimulate business conditions among the retailers. The fall season is now upon us and, with the opening of schools, the return of the vacationists should start business back to normal. Retailers are looking forward to a good business this month. The consignments at the various wholesale markets last week were large in all seasonable stock, but most of it is still inferior. Roses are looking well and some excellent stock was seen on the wholesalers' tables in Premier, Columbia, Ophelia and Butterfly.

Carnations are as yet small. There is no oversupply of these at present. There is an oversupply of asters. Gladioli are not in as heavy supply as they have been; still, enough come in daily to supply the demand, with prices somewhat higher than at last quotations.

There was a splendid lot of Easter lilies and valley last week, in active demand. There are plenty of everblooming single tuberoses in daily and many outdoor flowers.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting Thursday afternoon, September 14, in Kirkwood, Mo., at the greenhouses of the E. A. Rowe Co. Features during the meeting will be the installation of the officers elected, the attendance prize drawing and a talk on the S. A. F. convention. The officers will meet at President Rowe's home and arrange for all these features. The yearly report of the secretary and treasurer will also be an interesting feature. President Rowe says, "Bring the ladies." For them a special program is being arranged. The largest attendance of the year is looked for.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners held an outdoor meeting, Sunday morning, September 3, at Clayton, Mo., at the country place of T. Porter Tirrell. President George H. Pring presided over the meeting, which was well attended. After the business meeting the members made a tour over this fine place and those who attended the meeting here last summer were much surprised to see the progress made in a year's time.

Souvenir postals have been received from F. H. Weber, mailed at Yellowtone park, where he and his family and the Misses Bruenig are spending the summer months. They are expected home this week.

The new west-end store of Young's, the Florist, Inc., is rapidly nearing completion and the firm expects to open the new shop early in October. The Delmar avenue front of the store will be fifty feet wide. Edward H. Harvey, vice-president of the new company, says that it will be one of the finest florists' establishments in the west. The old quarters, at Fourteenth and Olive streets, will be retained. It makes a fine appearance since being remodeled. An architect's drawings of how the new building will look appeared in a daily paper of recent date.

The George H. Pieser Co. has been receiving California shipments of yellow mums during the last week and reports that they are clearing satisfactorily.

August 28 marked the thirty-fifth anniversary of the death of Henry Shaw, the founder of the Missouri Botanical Garden. The mausoleum in the garden was filled with beautiful flowers on that day.

The many friends of C. A. Kuehn were pleased to see him around again after a few weeks' confinement to his home with fractured limbs, the result of an automobile accident.

The wholesale houses which have been closing their stores at 12 o'clock noon Saturdays will again keep them open until 5 p. m., on and after September 16.

The trade extended sympathy to Miss Genevieve Kilcullen in the loss of her mother, who died August 27. Miss Kilcullen is designer for Thomas C. Carr. The trade sent many beautiful floral emblems.

Fred Hermann, proprietor of the Taylor Avenue Flower Shop, is sporting a new Columbia sedan. Mr. Hermann is also treasurer of the Mother Goose Candy Shop.

The Bergstermann Floral Co. and Haun & Menges were out last week with new automobile delivery trucks.

Samuel Lyle, construction superintendent for Carters Tested Seeds, Inc., of London, England, and New York, who is here to direct the laying out of the golf links of the new North Hills Country Club, received what is said to have been the largest single shipment of foreign grass seed ever consigned to the United States from Australia. The seed is valued at $36,000. The seed is known as Australian fescue and will be used in seeding the 45-hole golf course. The seeding will start this week.

Joseph Frank has reopened his florists' department in the store of the S. S. Kresge Co., at Sixth and Lucas avenue. He reports splendid trade the opening week.

Montrose W. Hayes, meteorologist at the St. Louis weather station, said September 1 closed an abnormally warm and dry summer in St. Louis. The total rainfall through a normal three months' summer period is 9.68 inches, whereas in the three months just closed it was only 5.88 inches.

The executive committee of the St. Louis district of the National Flower Growers' Association will meet at Springfield, Ill., September 19, at 8 p. m., in the St. Nicholas hotel. This meeting comes during the Illinois state fair, at Springfield, which opens September 16 to 23. President Walter Amling, of Pana, Ill., says he looks for a full attendance of this committee.

The A. W. Gumz Wholesale Floral Co. has met success with opening its plant department. The firm handles, on commission, blooming and decorative plants of several of our leading plant growers and the retailers have been good customers for these since the opening of this department.

The drawing for prizes at the recent growers' picnic, for members of the association only, resulted as follows, as announced the past week: John Steidle, first, 300 feet of pecky cypress; W. J. Edwards, second, 200 feet of cypress; W. J. Pilcher, third; J. Rudolph, fourth; George Steitmann, fifth; L. Eleaber, sixth; Charles Meier, seventh; George Deutschmann, eighth, all winning $5 worth of merchandise; Paul Ude, ninth, a box of glass; Gus Hartman, tenth, and G. Deuys, eleventh, each a Stillson wrench; Henry Meyer, twelfth, 100 tulip bulbs; Carl Swenson, thirteenth, an automobile wrench set; Thomas Kirkwood, fourteenth; Harry Wagner, fifteenth; A. F. Kopp, sixteenth, and W. A. Rowe, seventeenth, each receiving a special pocket knife as prize.

All who were interested in the coming season's bowling held a meeting August 30, at Schlink's alleys. The six teams that compose the "Say It with Flowers" bowling league were kept intact. A few of the older ones dropped out, but plenty of new names were added and placed on the waiting list. The season opened September 6. The league has contracted for all seven alleys, the seventh being open for any florist visitor who wishes to try his hand at bowling on any Wednesday night for the next thirty weeks.

The big blackboard at the Windler wholesale market has been put in shape for all announcements of interest to florists. The bowling scores and club and association meetings will be posted daily during the season. J. J. B.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

To throw a flossy bit of language, the juxtaposition of Labor day and the Sabbath creates a mercantile hiatus somewhat severe on the flower market. The usual effects were intensified this year by the fact that the two days preceding the double rest day were among the hottest of the summer. The official thermometer registered 94 degrees September 1 and 98 degrees September 2. Of course, this forced open large numbers of roses and helped still further to overload a market in which demand had not overtaken the supply. The market was far from clean when closing hour arrived September 2. Most of the wholesale houses were open half a day September 4, but their sales did not exceed the day's receipts of stock, so that it is likely to take three or four days of cool weather to enable the market to work out from under its load and get to the point of firm prices. At the moment prices average much below those of a year ago.

Nearly everyone in touch with the situation in this market is confident there will be good business once we get past the things which have interfered. It was noted that the first two days of September were much more active than the last few days of August. Shipping, particularly, has taken a spurt, but city demand, which seldom seems strong except on a fairly clean market, probably is not far behind.

As regards supply, there is as yet little change. As stated before, the aggregate receipts have exceeded the demand. Since last report roses have increased and gladioli have gone down. The supply of asters has been little affected, because the wholesalers have discouraged shipping anything but the best; it would be possible to call in large quantities of low-grade, farmer-grown asters should there be any demand for them. The receipts of carnations have increased, both field-grown and from under glass. The stock is what you would expect at the season. The few chrysanthemums received have not created any excitement; the local stock would not be good enough even if the demand were stronger, and the California mums have not stood the heat well, so that most of those who started to handle them have telegraphed to hold off a few days.

Aside from these items there is not much in market which calls for comment. Valley has been so scarce that most of the recent brides have carried a lot of milkweed gypsophila, and orchids have been almost out of the question. There are some sweet peas, but they need cooler weather. There are considerable quantities of outdoor flowers, such as celosia, cosmos, centaurea, liatris, tritoma, gaillardia, etc., and, while they sell steadily, they do not meet with anything which could be called a "demand."

has been clearing the ground on which his older greenhouses stood and the tract is now ready for the new development. This is the story as it appeared in the newspapers last week:

From the Tribune: "With the purchase of five acres at the northwest corner of Robey and Foster yesterday by Clara Reinberg, wife of George Reinberg, and their daughter, Mary Krueger, from Anna Hoffman for an indicated $55,000, it was disclosed that Paul Krueger, husband of Mary and a son-in-law of George Reinberg, had acquired a total of twenty acres and would subdivide it. The property is bounded on the north by Balmoral, on the south by Foster, by Robey on the east and Hoyne on the west. It is just north of Winnemac park. George Reinberg, by the way, is a brother of the late Peter Reinberg, president of the county board. Mr. Krueger will cut Farragut avenue through his subdivision and will install improvements, set out trees and do considerable building. Work already has started on two 2-flat buildings."

From the Economist: "George Reinberg and Paul Krueger have purchased from Charles and Anna Hoffman five acres bounded on the south by Foster avenue, on the east by Robey street, on the north by Balmoral and on the west by Hoyne for an indicated $55,000. It will be combined with fifteen acres adjoining and subdivided and placed on the market. The tract, which comprises eight blocks, overlooks Winnemac park on the south. The subdivision will be restricted. Street improvements are being put in and work is under way on a number of 2-apartment buildings."

The Weather in August.

In the midsummer month of August the weather always is too hot for the retail flower business; that is, it never is cool enough to encourage social activities which call for the use of flowers. So our principal interest in August weather is from the production point of view. The mean temperature this August was 5 degrees below last year, but four-tenths of a degree above normal. The highest temperature was 92 degrees August 17 (but it was 98 September 2). There was only 1.45 inches of rainfall, as compared with 4.92 inches last August and 2.88 as the August average. There were 323 hours and thirty-six minutes of sunshine out of a possible 428 hours and forty-two minutes, which is seventy-five per cent. So it was a hard month for stock out of reach of the hose.

How, Indeed?

The growers say: "Coal is costing fifty per cent more this season; we must get more money for our flowers."

carnations, so most wholesalers have all the shippers they want on such stock.

The death of Louis Clesen, one of the firm of Clesen Bros., carnation growers at 6150 North Robey street, is recorded in this week's obituary column.

Milady will not be an abundant rose in this market this season; most of the growers who produce any red roses at all will have only Crusader in this color.

This will be, for the E. C. Amling Co., its thirtieth year in the business.

There has been a wonderfully attractive display of Celosia chrysantheflora on the counters of Poehlmann Bros. Co. Seed of this attractive novelty was rather widely distributed last spring, but the Poehlmann exhibit is the stock of the originator, S. Bryson Ayres. The celosia will be largely used in window displays for fall openings, both for flower stores and other specialty shops.

A. T. Pyfer returned to business September 5. He had not been at the store since he started in his car to attend the S. A. F. convention.

Arthur M. Anderson has at last converted Eric Johnson to golf. Having induced him to procure an outfit of clubs, they had their first round together on Labor day.

Al. Fischer, Otto Goerisch and their motor party returned September 4 from Minong, Wis., where they had been fishing for a fortnight.

It will be good news to E. B. Washburn's many friends in this market that his summer on Monterey bay, in California, has built his weight to 146 pounds and that he never felt better than now.

John P. Risch says he is repeatedly solicited to buy coal, but that the price is $5 per ton for prepared sizes of the Franklin county product, take it or leave it. Those who can use mine-run can get a proportionately lower figure, as the demand for that grade seems to make the market less firm.

If you want to take a look at a showy place, drive past George Schwing's place at Fifty-sixth and Rockwell streets. On the lawn, in addition to the famous pond of colored water lilies, are some glorious beds of cannas and of salvia.

The A. B. C. had another of its outings at the Hazel Crest gladiolus farm September 3. A big tent is erected at the edge of the woods and there is food, not only for the members of the firm, employees and families, but for any florists who drop in, and there always are several.

Hilmer V. Swenson and H. E. Larsen, with their wives, motored to Green Bay, Wis., and back over Labor day.

Blaine Wilcox, of J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Council Bluffs, was here this week to arrange for fixtures and a stock of accessories for the new retail store his firm is about to open in the Martin Hotel building at Sioux City, Ia. It is understood that a chain of retail stores is contemplated, all to be within easy shipping distance of Council Bluffs.

W. J. Keimel celebrates his fiftieth birthday anniversary today, September 7.

W. J. Smyth, who has spent the summer quietly at his country place at Antioch, is at home again, but plans to spend week ends at the lake until frost.

A. J. Zech and Mrs. Zech completed their summer outings September 5, when they returned from Lake Delavan.

Eugene Dramm said last week that with the temperature outside September 1 at 98 degrees, 110 under glass and mine run coal $6.75 a ton on track, the grower was having a hot time.

Promptly on time, but under difficulties, Charles London has opened his new store in Evanston. His troubles all lay in the circumstance that the building in which his store is located, on Sherman street, was not finished according to schedule, although the Buchbinder fixtures in the flower store were in place on the day set.

Visitors.

C. G. Anderson, formerly of Morton Grove, now manager of the plant department of Davis Gardens, Terre Haute, Ind., has been spending his vacation here, returning to his home September 3. Mr. Anderson now uses three of the big Davis houses, 15,000 feet of glass, for his plants, and has a stock far larger than ever before. Customers are found in all parts of America. It is planned soon to erect a separate range of about 200,000 feet of glass and service building for Mr. Anderson's use.

Mrs. Swanson, of Minneapolis, was here last week, and it is understood in this market that she soon will open a store in Minneapolis on her own account.

The Market.

From all indications, it will not be long before the fall rush of business will be on. The fore part of last week was extremely slow, but it ended with a "bang." There are many weddings at this time, making a big demand for white roses; in fact, roses of all kinds, with few exceptions, were scarce last week. Gladioli are getting smaller, as this crop is nearly done and the late crop has not begun yet. Asters also are in the same condition. Some exceptionally fine marigolds are coming in and have been moving nicely. Prices on all stock have been reasonable this summer. Carnations are beginning to appear, but the flowers and stems are still small and short. Easter lilies have been scarce, but another crop is expected in soon, which will fill the demand to some extent. Some fine dahlias are arriving, but the big crop has not as yet put in an appearance. Orchids were in demand last week, but the supply here has been temporarily exhausted. Garden flowers, such as calendulas, celosia, zinnias, bachelor's buttons, marigolds, scabiosa, blue lace flower and tritomas, are arriving daily.

Various Notes.

The big meeting of the Florists' Club will be held Monday evening, September 11, at the Hollenden hotel, with the election of officers ranking first in importance in the evening's business. There will also be a luncheon, for which a nominal charge will be made, and a general good time is to be expected. Everybody should attend this important meeting.

Albert Barber and his assistant, Albert Heil, of the Park Flower Shop, have gone on a short business trip to Chicago.

W. J. Cowee and son, of Berlin, N. Y., dropped in on the trade last week.

Charles Woodman, of Alliance, O., was a visitor in town last week, as was C. F. Barton, of Norwalk, O.

William Behl, of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., is away on a two weeks' vacation, while Frank Williams and son, Bob, have returned.

Frank Kocour, of the J. M. Gasser Co., is away on a two weeks' vacation.

F. C. W. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., has just returned from a trip to the Ohio state fair at Columbus. W. A. R.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The opening of fall finds the market well supplied with flowers. The late assortment has been augmented by dahlias, tritomas, celosias, cosmos, Chrysanthemum Golden Glow and Bouvardia Humboldtii. To meet this additional supply there is no additional demand. The market is dull. There are a considerable number of roses, mostly cut from young plants, necessarily with little foliage. There are a few fancy roses, mostly Russell, that bring high prices.

Asters and gladioli still form the main supply. Both are dealt in heavily at prices that are rather low. Taking them all through, both are better than the Philadelphia market has ever seen them.

Coal.

The hard coal strike was settled September 2. The present wages will continue for one year. This means that we are likely to get our coal, but not at the lower prices that we were told to expect. The United States fuel board has ruled that we are non-essential and are not to have any soft coal as long as the essentials need it. This rule is not being enforced. The fuel board has not yet said anything about hard coal. It is generally believed that we can get all the coal we want this season if we are willing to pay for it and that we can buy at lower prices next spring.

Mistress Barbara Rules Secane.

W. W. Crawford, representing the estate of Robert Crawford, Jr., has leased to Gustave Koethe the property and six greenhouses at Secane, Pa., for a number of months, with an option of buying at a price said to be $15,000. Mr. Koethe will run the place in connection with his present place at Roxborough. He will plant carnations and a variety of other stock at Secane. It is a well known fact that woman rules the world; that man's greatest deeds are inspired by her. So it is believed it is in this case. Mrs. Gustave Koethe is a keen business woman. She has pep and grit. When asked what could be done with the flowers, Mrs. Koethe at once replied, "Why, I will sell them," and she will.

Gustave Koethe and Mrs. Koethe conduct a successful retail grower's place at Roxborough.

The Secane place was established by Horace T. Dumont and Harry R. Crawford, who traded as the Philadelphia Carnation Co. Later Robert Crawford, Jr., bought the place, disposing of the stock in his Eleventh street store. Carnations were the principal crop.

Clarence Alwine rented the place until a short time ago, when he relin-

The Coming Season.

The social season of 1922 and 1923 promises well. There will be October weddings and there will be a goodly number of debutantes, who will be introduced into society at coming-out teas.

The social season proper will come a period of just one day less than eleven weeks. There are two oddities of the floral calendar. St. Valentine's day will fall on Ash Wednesday and Easter will fall on All Fools' day. Here is the floral calendar:

Thanksgiving day	Thursday, November 30.
Christmas	Monday, December 25.
New Year's day	Monday, January 1.

Various Notes.

H. Bayersdorfer announces that Sam Seligman will manage his house's New York branch. Mr. Seligman, who is widely known by his sobriquet of "Sprinkleproof Sam," is there, going carefully over the stock. He is enthusiastic over the good things that he will have to offer this fall.

Emil H. Geschick precedes his homecoming with gaily colored picture cards from abroad.

A close observer of the market says that southern asparagus is gaining ground, although some buyers will not use it.

The Market.

"Just a little better" seems to be the general verdict. Labor day has passed, schools are about to resume, vacationists are returning from mountains, the sea shore and Europe; nights are growing a little more suggestive of fall, trees here and there are beginning to show autumnal tints, the coal situation is better and florists accustomed to the use of hard coal feel a little easier. These and other conditions all combined are bound to give business something of a fillip soon. No one anticipates a "boom," but about everyone looks confidently for a fall and winter of good normal business.

The gladiolus wave is slowly, but surely, on the wane. The quality is not what it was and far too many flowers are still coming in, but the clean-up is a little improved. Asters are still in oversupply; the drenching rains for several days spoiled a good many, but several clear, warm days have brought later batches in with a rush. Few dahlias arrive; most of those used by the retailers are sent in direct from the specialists; they are now smothered with fine blooms.

Roses are selling better and flowers with long stems bring up to $16 per hundred, even a little more in special cases. Short-stemed stock moves better. Some new crop carnations come in, but no one is anxious to buy them. Moderate lots of white and yellow chrysanthemums move slowly. There are now plenty of outdoor speciosum lilies; L. album sells the best. Easter lilies bring $12 to $16 per hundred.

There are good supplies of cosmos; everlastings in variety, statices and helichrysums mainly; zinnias, coreopsis, delphiniums, physostegias, annual gypsophilas and other outdoor flowers, for which the demand is uncertain.

A few cypripediums are seen, but they sell slowly. Cattleyas are practically out of the market and, while few are wanted, fancy prices must be paid for them. There is little call for valley and the demand for asparagus is not robust.

Pot plant trade is still mostly for ferns, palms and foliage plants.

Gardeners Plan Good Time.

The local committees of the National Association of Gardeners had a well attended meeting at Horticultural hall, August 30. Excellent reports were made by the finance, transportation and other committees. Addresses on the opening day, September 12, at 2 p. m. will be delivered by Mayor Curley, for the city of Boston; Commissioner of Agriculture A. W. Gilbert, for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts; Albert Burrage, for the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, and Miss M. R. Case, for the Garden Club of America. There will be an illustrated lecture at the evening session. September 13, there will be two long business sessions, concluding with a banquet at night at the Hotel Brunswick.

At 9 a. m. September 14, a fleet of automobiles will start from the Brunswick, via Revere beach, Lynn, Salem, etc., to Manchester, Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms and other north shore points. Short stops will be made at the estates of Mrs. Gardner, M. Lane, Mrs. Henry C. Frick, William H. Moore and Albert C. Burrage. The last-named gentleman's famous orchid collection will be inspected and refreshments will be served. Leaving here, the romantic ocean drive, via Magnolia and Gloucester, will be followed to Ipswich. At Castle Hill Farm, the estate of R. T. Crane, Jr., a regular New England clambake will be served. Afterwards an inspection of the 2,500-acre estate will be made. Leaving here, the next stopping place will be Thomas E. Procter's, Topsfield, where James Marlborough's wonderful collection of winter-flowering begonias and rock gardens will be seen. From there the road will be taken to Cedar Acres, Wenham, where Mr. and Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy will act as hosts. A drive over the famous Newburyport turnpike to Boston will complete the first day's outing.

September 15 the first stop made will be to inspect the famous collection of glass flowers at the Agassiz museum,

Cambridge. From there the route will be via Arlington and Arlington Heights to historic Lexington and Concord. From Concord the road will be taken through Wayland, past Lake Cochituate and Natick to Wellesley, where the famous Walter Hunnewell estate, with its wonderful specimen trees and shrubs, and the extensive Henry S. Hunnewell estate will be inspected. Lunch will be served by H. S. Hunnewell. After leaving Wellesley, part of the Greater Boston park system, including Franklin park; the Arnold Arboretum and various Brookline estates, including Faulkner Farm and the estates of Mrs. C. J. Welds, Prof. C. S. Sargent and Larz Anderson, will be visited. Lunch will be served at the last-named estate.

The ladies' reception committee, of which Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy is chairman, held a meeting September 5 and made plans for the proper entertainment of ladies. Many reservations have already been booked at the Brunswick and word has been received that a considerable number are planning to make the trip to Boston by automobile. Everything points to a record-breaking convention.

Various Notes.

Chester Paine, of Paine Bros., Randolph, with his wife and family, is enjoying an automobile trip through the White mountains of New Hampshire and will make a short stay at Old Orchard Beach before returning.

Miss V. Mellen, bookkeeper for the Boston Rose Co., has returned from a vacation spent along the New England coast.

William H. Carr, the well known salesman at the Boston Flower Exchange, had remarkable success at the late Marshfield, Mass., fair, winning about a dozen premiums for vegetables, fruits and poultry, all raised on his Pembroke farm.

August proved to be a moist month, with a local rainfall of four and three-fourths inches, which was seventy-two hundredths of an inch over normal. The year to date shows a rainfall of thirty-one and sixty-five hundredths or two and eighty-three hundredths inches above the average. The average temperature of the month was only four-tenths of a degree over normal.

Herman H. Bartsch, of the W. W. Edgar Co., finds that fine powdered clay makes an excellent and lasting shade. A little linseed oil is used to make it adhesive and the cost is a mere fraction of other forms of shading used in the past.

James McHutchison, of New York, who met with an accident some weeks ago, is still an inmate of the Waverley hospital. The plaster cast has been removed from his leg, but severe rheumatic ailments have now to be overcome. Mr. McHutchison hopes to get back to normal in a few weeks and his many friends in the trade heartily wish him a speedy recovery.

The various wholesale markets and commission houses which closed early on Saturdays during July and August, resumed normal hours September 2. The half-holiday period another year might well be extended another week, as business Saturday before Labor day is always slim.

The Budlong Rose Co., of Auburn, R. I., always sends in fine shipments of high-grade summer roses. This firm is sending an average of 5,000 flowers a Use It With Flowers!

It was a blind man who had lost the sense of smell that said flowers were a luxury.

Those with sight and smell see that which gladdens the eye and touches the soul; marvelous colors that the Almighty had brought forth so gloriously beautiful and so exquisitely fragrant that it intoxicates the senses and arouses the tenderest emotions.

Flowers! They live, and breathe and dwell with radiant beauty and have graced all mankind.

day and many of the Columbia, Premier, Hadley and Butterfly have stems twenty-eight to thirty-six inches long.

Edward Winkler, of Wakefield, has his new Hitchings house completed and planted with carnations. He is already shipping in flowers of the new season's crop.

Harold A. Ryan has the floral decorations for the whole of the present week for the fall opening of the great department store of William A. Filene's Sons Co., on Summer and Washington streets.

A. Dyke, formerly with A. S. Parker, of Stoneham, opened a new retail store on Main street, Wakefield, September 2.

Edward J. Ragean, who met with a serious automobile accident in New Brunswick some time ago, arrived at his home in Everett September 4, accompanied by his wife and family. He is rapidly getting back to normalcy.

No finer house of carnations can be seen locally than Charles Holbrow, of Brighton, can show visitors in his new King house. It contains 25,000 plants in all the best varieties, is built on a side hill and is a handsome picture.

A tremendous display of dahlias is assured at the combined exhibitions of the New England Dahlia Society and Massachusetts Horticultural Society, September 9 and 10. All available hall space will be needed to house the exhibits.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston will resume its meetings on September 19 at Horticultural hall. Gustave Thommen will speak on his Florida trip; Herman H. Bartsch, on Canada; W. H. Judd, on a trip to Bar Harbor and points of interest along the Maine coast. There will be exhibits of dahlias and other seasonable flowers.

The Horticultural Club of Boston is planning a complimentary dinner, to be held during the present month at the Parker House, to E. H. Wilson, president of the club, recently home from a long world tour. W. N. C.

The Market.

Easter lilies are off the market. Gladioli and valley are scarce. There were no orchids to be had the latter part of last week. Asters are plentiful and of good quality. Enough roses for average business are being cut. Celosia is being cut in quantity. Business was good all week. Saturday, September 2, was an extremely busy day in some of the shops; there were three funerals that day for which the orders were numerous.

Various Notes.

Glenn K. Parker spent all of Saturday, September 2, carrying children in his car to and from the mayor's "Kiddies'" picnic, at Swope park. This was an event for all the children of both Kansas Cities, originated and planned by Mayor Cromwell.

John Stevens has two houses planted in roses. He is cutting Premier and Butterfly roses.

H. Kusik & Co. cleaned up every day last week. They had to have some gladioli shipped in, as they could not get enough for orders in this market.

The Stuppy Supply Co. shipped Charles P. Mueller, Wichita, Kan., a fine lot of celosia and other stock for the opening of a new theater in Wichita. Mr. Mueller had the decorating of the new house. He used more than 300 marigolds, 600 roses and about 100 large heads of celosia.

Carl Hagemeyer, of Paola, Kan., was in the city Wednesday, August 30. He bought a new smokestack for his greenhouse.

This market will be supplied from 35,000 more carnation plants this season. This number has been planted in Leeds, Mo., three different growers having added to their houses.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Newell are in Minnesota on a fishing trip.

The Alpha Floral Co. is beginning to make up Christmas wreaths. Last week the show window here contained an attractive display of strawflower arrangements and baskets in the autumn shades.

Samuel Goldfaden and David Kiefer, who recently bought the Owl Floral Co., are making many improvements in the store. They have expended about $1,000 in redecorating and new fixtures. The interior of the store has been rearranged. A new safe and a new Dodge truck have been bought.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Bohannon drove to Pittsburg, Kan., Monday, August 28, accompanied by Edward Lowry.

Samuel Murray had orders for a casket spray of pink roses, clematis and valley for the funeral of Mrs. George B. Peck, and a casket cover of pink roses and valley, besides a large number of other orders, for Mrs. Homer Berger's funeral.

The Stuppy Supply Co. will move September 9 from 1020 Oak street to 1012 Oak street. The new location is on the first floor.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Rock have returned from Lakeview, Kan.

William Wade is visiting relatives in northwestern Missouri, while on his vacation.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. has received a shipment of yellow mums from California.

A. N. Nielsen's mums are in fine condition. He expects a big crop. He has cut a few carnations this month and will soon send in a good lot. By rearranging and rebuilding his benches he has gained the space of an entire house.

Hugo R. Neff has bought a new model Buick car.

J. E. K.

Great Bend, Kan.—Mr. and Mrs. Will E. Stoke sold their greenhouse and business to their son-in-law, William Edman, September 1. Mr. Edman has been connected with the concern as grower for the last ten years. Mr. Edman is contemplating the erection of one or more new houses the coming year.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE NEW WRIGHT FERN?

WRIGHT'S FLOWER SHOP
224 W 4th St., Los Angeles

THE RETAIL STORE

A PAGE OF HINTS AND HELPS FOR THE RETAIL FLORIST

CUSTOMERS WRITE OWN ORDERS.

Almost every retailer will agree that no two customers who enter his store are alike in all respects. Every person who comes to buy flowers has his own little likes, dislikes and idiosyncrasies. And everyone must be studied. Among the usual run of customers, for instance, there are many who dislike what they call "telling me what I ought to buy"; then there are others who like what they term "helpful suggestions on the part of the dealer."

The Venetian Flower Shop, of Chicago, is always desirous of giving the customer just what he wants; so order blanks are at all times lying on a desk within easy reach of the customer, along with pen and ink. In this way, if the customer so desires, he may write out his own order and put the prices opposite, so that he will know exactly what the order will cost him. This little plan has pleased not a few customers, who, perhaps, order more than they would if they merely gave the order orally. It is a peculiar trait of people that when they are writing notes, they are more likely to remember everything they had planned buying in the first place.

The Log Cabin Store of William Korb, at Louisville, Ky., Is Believed Unique.

RUSTIC FLOWER SHOP.

One of the most distinctive stores ever seen in Louisville, Ky., is William Korb's new shop. Built entirely of logs and boulders and decorated inside with nothing but bark, it has a most unusual appearance. Before entering the flower business Mr. Korb was an interior decorator and his ability along this line is clearly shown in the shop.

The icebox is made of concrete and the figures are done in plaster of Paris, all the work of Mr. Korb. The walls are paneled with birch bark, around which is pasted tan bark. The ceiling is also of tan bark, and in the center of it is an old and valued painting which Mr. Korb had when in the decorating business.

The workbench in the rear has a cement top, made in such a way that it will hold moisture, keeping the flowers fresh as they are made up. The bottom is covered with bark also. Every detail was carried out with care and on entering the shop one feels the freshness of the outdoors. The conservatory adjoining, also done in rustic finish, is quite pretty. Rustic furniture was used throughout; even the partition wall between the display room and workshop is of willow branches twisted by the clever hands of Mr. Korb to make a pretty design.

The store is thought to be the only one of its kind in the country and has attracted much attention not only from the public in general but from men who are in the decorating business. Mr. Korb conducts the store under the name, Korb's Florist & Art Shoppe, with address "at the 'Log Cabin.'" The store is at 1043 South Twenty-eighth street. Greenhouses are at 2720 Greenwood avenue. E. G. R.

All the Fittings of William Korb's Log Cabin Store Are Rustic in Appearance.

MAKING STRAWFLOWERS.

The Shelby Floral Co., Shelby, O., has found, as the firm says, "the easiest and best way to dry strawflowers." This is it: The flowers are pinched off, leaving a stem one-half to one inch long. Then into this stem is run a 12-inch or 18-inch wire, the kind florists use. With the wire thus inserted, the flowers are put away to dry.

The stem tightens around the wire so securely that the wire can hardly be extracted. On this wire stem are used old

UPHOLDING TENANT'S RIGHTS.

An interesting and important decision bearing on the rights of lessees of business buildings was handed down lately by the Iowa Supreme court in the case of McDermott vs. Amend, 183 Northwestern Reporter, 489. It was decided that in the absence of agreement to the contrary, such a lessee is entitled to reasonable control of the use of the outside walls of the building. And it was held that where part of a wall was exposed by the remodeling of an adjoining building a tenant was entitled to the use of the exposed part of the wall to the exclusion of the occupants of the adjoining building, although the latter held a 99-year lease on both buildings. The opinion, in part, reads:

"It is true that in the instant case the wall in question was not exposed as an outside wall at the time that the appellee leased the premises, but we think that makes no difference in the application of the rule. It must undoubtedly be true that when the appellee leased this building he leased the walls thereof, both inside and outside, for such purposes as were consistent with the use for which it was rented. He could not mar, disfigure, or improperly use the outside walls, but, subject to proper limitations, he had a right to use them. No question of rights to a party wall or of lateral support, or any similar matter, is here involved. The sole question is whether or not, when the wall was so exposed by the change in the front of No. 618, the owner or the tenants of these premises could use the outside of the wall of No. 616. We think it makes no difference in regard to the rights of the appellee whether this wall was originally exposed as an outside wall at the time of leasing the premises, or whether it became an outside wall by change in the conditions of

"Ain't Nowise Homesick"

Wonder if you disliked to be thumped and banged with a broom with a sawed-off handle, by those brush boys in barber shops?
Well, it sure makes me peeved.
It's too much of a painful reminder of house-cleaning time when I was a boy and had to beat the carpets while the rest of the gang was playing ball or off nutting.

At the Kansas City Convention, I went into a barber shop for a shave.
When my hair was being combed, I saw in the glass a colored lad with a threatening look in his eye.
He was just laying low to thump the very stripes off my suit.
So before leaving that chair I said to him: "Black man, don't you dare brush me off, for just as sure as you try it, there is going to be a strange face in Heaven."
"Boss," says he, "compose you'self. I sure ain't goin' tech you. Ain't goin' because I ain't nowise homesick."

Left that shop laughing and in such good humor that I told several that it was the shop to go to.
Went myself every day in spite of the fact, I generally shave myself.
What a powerful business builder is a pleasant impression! How you and I will frequently go 'way out of our way to buy something from a store where we have received a courtesy!
Often it was a small thing of itself, but it looms up big and convincing when it comes to parting with our money.

In connection with our F. T. D. business, we have received some truly delightful letters.
Letters that are just bound to make you think of the writers when we have an order for their town.
What a tremendous power for happiness and business building is a little courtesy!

THE RETAIL STORE

CUSTOMERS WRITE OWN ORDERS.

Almost every retailer will agree that no two customers who enter his store are alike in all respects. Every person who comes to buy flowers has his own little likes, dislikes and idiosyncrasies. And everyone must be studied. Among the usual run of customers, for instance, there are many who dislike what they call "telling me what I ought to buy"; then there are others who like what they term "helpful suggestions on the part of the dealer."

The Venetian Flower Shop, of Chicago, is always desirous of giving the customer just what he wants; so order blanks are at all times lying on a desk within easy reach of the customer, along with pen and ink. In this way, if the customer so desires, he may write out his own order and put the prices opposite, so that he will know exactly what the order will cost him. This little plan has pleased not a few customers, who, perhaps, order more than they would if they merely gave the order orally. It is a peculiar trait of people that when they are writing notes, they are more likely to remember everything they had planned buying in the first place.

The Log Cabin Store of William Korb, at Louisville, Ky., Is Believed Unique.

RUSTIC FLOWER SHOP.

One of the most distinctive stores ever seen in Louisville, Ky., is William Korb's new shop. Built entirely of logs and boulders and decorated inside with nothing but bark, it has a most unusual appearance. Before entering the flower business Mr. Korb was an interior decorator and his ability along this line is clearly shown in the shop.

The icebox is made of concrete and the figures are done in plaster of Paris, all the work of Mr. Korb. The walls are paneled with birch bark, around which is pasted tan bark. The ceiling is also of tan bark, and in the center of it is an old and valued painting which Mr. Korb had when in the decorating business.

The workbench in the rear has a cement top, made in such a way that it will hold moisture, keeping the flowers fresh as they are made up. The bottom is covered with bark also. Every detail was carried out with care and on entering the shop one feels the freshness of the outdoors. The conservatory adjoining, also done in rustic finish, is quite pretty. Rustic furniture was used throughout; even the partition wall between the display room and workshop is of willow branches twisted by the clever hands of Mr. Korb to make a pretty design.

The store is thought to be the only one of its kind in the country and has attracted much attention not only from the public in general but from men who are in the decorating business. Mr. Korb conducts the store under the name, Korb's Florist & Art Shoppe, with address "at the 'Log Cabin.'" The store is at 1043 South Twenty-eighth street. Greenhouses are at 2720 Greenwood avenue.

All the Fittings of William Korb's Log Cabin Store Are Rustic in Appearance.

MAKING STRAWFLOWERS.

The Shelby Floral Co., Shelby, O., has found, as the firm says, "the easiest and best way to dry strawflowers." This is it: The flowers are pinched off, leaving a stem one-half to one inch long. Then into this stem is run a 12-inch or 18-inch wire, the kind florists use. With the wire thus inserted, the flowers are put away to dry.

The stem tightens around the wire so securely that the wire can hardly be extracted. On this wire stem are used old the adjacent property. If the building at No. 618 had been destroyed by fire, the owner or tenant of the premises would have had no right to go upon the then exposed outside wall of No. 616 and place advertising signs. No different rule should obtain because a portion of the outside wall of No. 616 was exposed, instead of the whole thereof. That the lessee of a building has a right to the use and occupation of the outer walls thereof for the purpose of posting bills and notices thereon, providing the same is done in a manner that is not harmful or injurious to the building, is well recognized and supported by the authorities." LIKE A WORLD TOUR?

Many in the trade calculate that when they take a trip they might just as well make it a worth-while trip; say, around the world. S. C. Templin, of Garretsville, Ky., has just that idea. As a matter of fact, he is planning to enjoy a cruise around the world within the next two years, as has been mentioned in the columns of The Review before this.

Perhaps there are other florists of the same mind. If so, maybe they would be interested to know that R. S. Elsworthy, general agent of the Canadian Pacific, is arranging for a world cruise, to start January 23, which will cost $1,000 and up, the cruise to last four months.

The trip will be made in the Empress of France. The itinerary will include a stop at Havana, fourteen days in Japan,

FLOWERS AT SING SING.

Preach Excellent Sermon.

When the poet penned the lines, "Stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage," he little thought that the couplet could be aptly applied to Sing Sing prison, one of New York state's penal institutions.

Several months ago B. H. Farr, of Wyomissing, Pa., learned of the efforts made by a "lifer" at Sing Sing to beautify a portion of the prison grounds. Mr. Farr made a few inquiries and then sent to the man a collection of irises, delphiniums and other perennials that were likely to prove most desirable under the working conditions in the yard.

Letter writing is a restricted privilege at the prison and it was some time before the receipt of the box was acknowledged. However, the letter came and readers of The Review will surely be interested in the joy that the garden gives to a man who must spend the rest of his life back of stone walls and iron bars:

"I am most grateful for the generous contribution to our prison garden. I will report the result to you in the spring. Will you be interested in knowing what I am attempting to do? Almost four years ago I entered Sing Sing to serve a life sentence and, until its suspension for lack of funds, I was editor of our prison paper, the Sing Sing Bulletin. Because of the suspension of our paper, the warden granted me the privilege of caring for the lawn and growing as many flowers as I could.

"My greatest handicap has been lack of material, for the appropriation is so small that almost a quarterly allowance was exhausted in purchasing for my use a lawn mower and garden hose; so I have been almost entirely dependent on my own slender resources and the contributions of a few friends for what has so far been accomplished.

"We now have three fine beds of cannas, bordered with salvias and fountain grass, our prize flowers, and several beds of zinnias, petunias, cosmos, ageratums, etc. One other inmate joined me in purchasing a collection of geraniums, and we almost bankrupted ourselves in getting a moderate number of gladiolus bulbs.

Conversion to Beauty.

"Until now my activities have chiefly been in converting black stretches of cinders into green lawns, and this has been most gratifying in results. I am preparing the soil for an ambitious dream garden for next year, the warden giving fine coöperation by having truckloads of top soil and fertilizer brought in from outside. Such aristocrats as peonies had not come within the horizon of my dreams; so you will know how happy your contribution makes me. Some day I hope to have roses climbing over a 62-foot wire screen here, and I have visions of wistarias, clematis and honeysuckle growing over forbidding walls.

"A collection of annual seeds came today and was put away until spring, while beds for them will be made ready during the fall. Wish you could have seen how hungrily I devoured the attractive bulb catalogue you sent. I was like a starved child gazing into a bakeshop window. I asked our chaplain several days ago to offer up a special prayer for bulbs to put in the canna beds and I am hopeful that it will be answered before planting time comes. Cultivating flowers is the greatest happiness I have known since entering prison, for the joy of it melts the bars and levels the walls and makes me unmindful of where I am. You will understand how interested I am when I tell you that I

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

The store of the Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., was filled with stock for funeral work, ready to be dispatched out of the city. "Quite busy now," observed Thomas H. Joy, "but not so last week, when we gave away 10,000 roses to girls in stores and mills. For the retailer who grows his own stock we consider this a most effective form of publicity. We have the birthday dates of some 2,500 of the fair sex and intend sending each a few flowers. To the men, as we locate them, we shall send a notice. Next week we propose to invade every cotton mill here with flowers, figuring it requires such heroic individual effort to stir up a real longing among the middle class, which constitutes the majority of the average flower lovers."

The Joy ladies have their little joke, as is seen in the window; there is a small heap of coal arranged in a bouquet, with collar of lace and trimmed with asparagus, labeled, "Very rare anthracite, obtained only in small quantities. How about a dozen?" Grower William Smith is taking a vacation. Harold Joy says stock never was in better shape, Carnations Natalie and Thomas C. Joy in crop heading the list. Rose Angelus is promising.

An item of importance, inasmuch as it affects the sale of flowers on the market at Nashville, was an interview with A. J. Kinle, who operates a farm and has been selling produce on the public market for fifty years, which, by the way, coincides with the history of the Joy establishment. There is a movement on foot to compel the selling of all garden truck through commission men. This would abolish the sale of outdoor flowers, which is a big factor throughout the year. It will be fought with the florists, interested spectators, lending their aid, by the combined efforts of the new truck and fruit growers' association, according to Mr. Kinle. Seedsmen lending their aid and being directly interested are C. C. Waggoner & Bros., Hudmon Seed Co., and McKay, Reece & Co., all of whom have enjoyed an average season's business.

The Chattanooga store of the Joy Floral Co. is in the transitory stage, passing from summer lethargy to fall stimulation, the cool water scene being replaced with baskets and vases of the best product from the Nashville range, which is illustrated by a fine, big photograph placed advantageously in the window. Window boxes around the outside were to be filled with choice stock, permissible owing to the mild winter season.

"They sure do come high," observed John Karsten, Chattanooga, Tenn., while lowering several cases of Narcissus Paper White into the cellar from a new Dodge delivery truck. A new Packard Six is used for combined business and pleasure. "Though not to be thought extravagant," continued our veteran confrere, "we feel we must measure up to what must be considered the leading profession and educate the public up to our high standard. We have no store expense; so we put the greenhouses and office in as attractive a condition as is possible, with rolling stock to correspond." W. M.

WHY ENGLAND EATS TOMATOES.

Fed by Publicity.

It is just about accurate to say that publicity is the pulling and the pushing power of business. Just the other day an entire page of a Chicago daily was devoted to telling how a publicity campaign, well planned, had put Salt Lake City butter on Los Angeles bread in the face of keen competition. And we know what the "Say It with Flowers" campaign has done for our own trade. We have learned how the western fruit growers campaigned successfully to take care of a tremendous supply by educating the public to a sufficient demand.

Campaigns of this nature are not confined to this country alone. For instance, there is the campaign that is now being put on by the British Glasshouse Produce Marketing Association, a campaign to sell an abundant supply of vegetables by training a demand. Right now the main object of the campaign is to sell tomatoes and to show the English public how to use them. Fifty years ago the tomato was a curiosity to English eyes. Today the Britishers are consuming 150,000 tons of the vegetable per year and the demand is rapidly increasing. Why? Publicity.

Going to the People.

The advertising campaign for British tomatoes, as launched by the association above mentioned, is now in full operation. Contracts have been entered into for advertising space with eight newspapers of national reputation in England; the combined circulation of these journals is 5,809,309. The advertisements run lay special stress on an invitation to the public to write the secretary of the association for a tomato recipe book. The response to this invitation has been overwhelming. More than an average of 6,000 applications per week have been received. The effect of the publicity was at once noticeable and higher prices were easily traced to the campaigning of the association.

In this campaign advantage has been taken of the possibilities presented by the London subway. Here large posters are being displayed in the interest of the campaign. These posters are seen in London by about 50,000,000 passengers each month.

In addition to the poster advertising in the subways, show cards are furnished to retailers and the demand for replicas of the large poster on the part of retailers has been so great that the number given out has had to be limited. This goes to show that the retailers are falling in line.

The cinema likewise has been used to further the publicity movement. An attractive film called "The Love Apple" has been made and is being exhibited at 104 movie theaters over a period of seventeen weeks. The possibilities of film advertising are great in England and it is expected that another year this form of publicity will be used more and that it will become a more important feature of campaigning plans.

Cultivating Ideas.

In the main the association is striving to improve marketing conditions and to secure a wider scope of distribution. It is felt that in order to obtain this not only must a high standard of grading be maintained, but the tomatoes should be packed in containers that are non-returnable and plainly marked with the trade-mark of the association. It is believed in England that the use of non-returnable containers throughout the industry is inevitable. Right now the association is experimenting with the non-returnable container. Two types have already been evolved and are now being tried out.

The association has been much hampered in its work by the pledge to limit the expenditure on tomato advertising this year to 12,000 pounds. As the scheme developed it became apparent that much advantage would accrue from slight extensions in certain directions, but the association has felt bound by the pledge given at the Central hall, Westminster, and has, therefore, strictly limited its activities.

Other sections of the industry have approached the association with a view to advertising their specialties, and the project which started in a relatively small way in the Lea valley promises to become a national concern of vital importance to English greenhouse produce growers.

LILACS AT AALSMEER.

In the years before the quarantine, the name of Aalsmeer, Holland, meant more in this country than it does today. But the famous lilac-growing industry of that place is, at the same time, far from faded in our minds here. A description of a recent visit to the noted little township and its odd market, in a recent issue of the Gardeners' Chronicle of London, is interesting, therefore.

"Here, within about a score of years," says the writer, "a wonderful industry has been built up, until now, each winter and spring, sprays of forced lilac are produced and distributed over a considerable part of Europe. Intensive cultivation plays its part, as the lilac plants are given every attention outdoors for two years after forcing, before forcing is attempted again.

last so well that they are beautiful for a week or ten days after reaching Covent Garden, if put in water as soon as the long boxes are unpacked.

"Many thousands of these especially grown lilacs are forced each year in Aalsmeer, and the cultivators are not merely two or three people who conduct large businesses, but there are scores of growers, and most of them live and have their compact little establishments on one side or the other of the canal which is virtually the main street of Aalsmeer. There is such an abundance of water in this district that almost every nursery is separated from its neighbor by a small canal. Communication across these canals is by means of a swing-bridge arrangement, and if the bridge is 'against you,' there is no real difficulty, because a long rod with a hook at the end is sure to be found close by, and with it the visitor pulls the bridge around, replaces the pole and walks over, not forgetting by a deft push with his foot to 'shut the gate.'

"Surprising as are the quantities of forced lilac, not less so is the manner of marketing the flowers. The market is a large building, well lighted and of light structure. Into this building the flowers are brought and laid out in bunches on movable 4-wheeled stalls, each 2-tiered, like a dinner wagon. These are arranged in regular rows down the market building, and each grower's contribution is booked, item by item, on a sheet especially designed for the purpose, and this 'invoice,' which accompanies the flowers, has columns wherein, in due course, are placed the sale price and the number of the purchaser.

"But where are the buyers? To find them it is necessary to follow a porter who wheels one of these flower-laden wagons into a side building. Here, on a sharp-pitched gallery constructed on flower-pot-stand lines, but quite substantial, the buyers sit, each with a notebook and pencil. The only noise beyond an occasional observation in undertone is the voice of the one salesman who sells for all the growers, as the whole of the business connected with the marketing of the flowers is done on coöperative lines.

"The method of sale is by Dutch auction. Facing the tiers of buyers is a huge dial with a large, ever-moving hand. Round the dial, near its circumference, are figures representing values and ranging from a low price to a high one. Within this circle of figures is a large square, composed of small squares which correspond with the number of seats in the buyers' gallery. Each little square is numbered and has its own tiny electric light. The porter displays a bunch of lilac. The hand on the dial, commencing at a value the salesman considers full high, swings steadily along on the downward scale, when it suddenly halts, and at the same moment a tiny light appears on one of the little squares. The salesman, who watches the dial and has his back to the buyers, observes in a steady monotone that Number 10 has purchased the lot for, say, sixpence a spike, and, while he gives this information, his clerk makes the necessary entries, the porter places a numbered card on the lot and passes to the next. The secret of the whole business is that each buyer has an electric push-knob in the book-board in front of his seat, and, directly the hand on the dial is reaching the figure he are effected in the time it has taken a reader to read this paragraph.

"As soon as one wagon-load is sold, it is pushed back into the market hall, and thence the contents are taken into the packing sheds attached to the market, where the flowers are packed for transit to Amsterdam, Copenhagen, Brussels, Paris, London or elsewhere. It is in these sheds that everybody hustles, as trains and boats will not wait beyond the appointed time, even for the beautiful lilac from Aalsmeer. Sometimes, when supplies are heavy, the sale may continue beyond midday, and even on occasion to so late as 2 p. m., but generally it finishes in the forenoon."

GREENHOUSES AS FIXTURES.

Determining Relationship to Land.

Where greenhouses are to be treated as removable trade fixtures, as distinguished from a part of the real estate, it is always best to have a carefully drawn agreement to that effect, as a means of guarding as fully as possible against some claim afterwards being made by one of the parties, or a third person claiming under him that the structures are a part of the land.

In one of the leading cases on this subject—Royce vs. Latshaw, 62 Pacific Reporter, 627—the Colorado Court of Appeals decided that a greenhouse and heating apparatus installed in it constituted removable trade fixtures of a florist, as against one who claimed them as purchaser of the real estate under foreclosure of a mortgage on the same. This is a particularly interesting case, because the mortgage was given at a time when the ownership of the real estate and of the greenhouse and heating plant was identical. It was not until after the mortgage had been given that the mortgagor leased part of the premises to defendant's predecessors, under permission to remove the greenhouse and heating apparatus at the termination of their lease. Disposing of the case, the court said:

As Set Forth by the Court.

"The first and main question to be determined is one of fact; namely, were his greenhouse and the heating apparatus trade fixtures? We might content ourselves by saying that the court found them to be such; so, also, did the jury which it called for advisory purposes, and, such finding not being manifestly against the weight of the evidence, we would decline to interfere with it. We have, however, gone further, and read the evidence bearing upon this fact, as set forth in the abstracts, and we are thoroughly convinced that the finding was clearly correct. The greenhouse was a mere temporary structure, composed of 2x4-inch pieces, with boards nailed on the sides, and a glass roof. The whole simply sat upon the ground. Possibly, although this does not positively appear, a few of the posts were inserted in the ground only a few inches, so as to steady the structure. The same was true of the heating apparatus, which consisted of two Hotchkiss hot water furnaces. Everything could have been removed without the slightest damage to the estate. All of the various parties interested during this period of seven or eight years paid ground rent to Mrs. Bain. They were tenants of hers, and in 1892, as we have seen, she executed a written lease to the firm, of which she was herself a member, providing, among other things, that at the expiration of the lease the parties might have the privilege of removing the greenhouse and all appurtenances. That the lease theretofore was by parol is immaterial, because such lease was lawful and binding. The written lease was, so far as we can gather from the acts of the parties and the circumstances, but the reduction to writing of what had been the understanding of the parties theretofore. Fleischer succeeded to the rights of Webster, and each succeeding partner to the rights of his predecessor in the business. We think there is no question that they were trade fixtures, and that the owner had a right to remove them, unless for some reason this right had been forfeited."

Removing at Expiration of Lease.

But a decision of the Nebraska Supreme court (39 Neb. 220) draws attention to an important qualification of the right of a florist tenant of real estate, or of one claiming under him, to remove such structures as greenhouses after the lease term has expired. In that case (Free vs. Stuart), it appeared that plaintiff held a chattel mortgage on two greenhouses. The mortgage was given by Stuart & Schmensky, who were lessees of the premises on which they had constructed the buildings. Because neither the tenants nor their mortgagee removed the greenhouses during the term of the lease, it was decided that the right of removal was lost. The court said, in the course of its opinion:

"The point in dispute is, which party is entitled to the buildings covered by the mortgage? The mortgagee claims them by virtue of his mortgage, while the appellants insist that, as the improvements were erected by tenants on leased premises, they are a part of the realty, and neither the tenants nor the mortgagee had a right to remove them, at least after the expiration of the tenancy.

"The larger portion of the brief of counsel on either side is devoted to the discussion of the law of fixtures, and what are, and what are not, movable fixtures. The decisions on the subject are at variance and irreconcilable. For the purposes of this case we will assume that the buildings in controversy were trade fixtures, and were erected under such circumstances as to entitle the tenants to remove them, had they exercised that right in time. The authorities are quite uniform to the effect that, in the absence of an agreement or understanding to the contrary, a tenant cannot reënter and remove his fixtures and improvements after the expiration Regarding Growing Plants.

The remaining leading case on this subject was decided by the Maine Supreme Judicial court—Young vs. Chandler, 102 Maine Reports 251. In that case it appeared that the plaintiff bought from James Fyles, Sr., a greenhouse with its contents, consisting of potted plants, and plants maturely grown, but not severed from the soil, and loam prepared for gardening purposes. The greenhouse had been removed from its original location by the seller, and was placed on posts on land belonging to Mr. Fyles' son. The greenhouse was attached to a barn, into which a door was cut to pass pipes from a heating plant in the barn. The Messrs. Fyles had conducted a business on these premises, under this situation, for some time before plaintiff succeeded to it. But before the greenhouse was placed on the land the younger Fyles had mortgaged the real estate to the defendant. After the plaintiff bought the flower business, defendant foreclosed his mortgage on the real estate and claimed not only the greenhouse, but also the growing plants, loam, etc. Deciding the case in favor of defendant as to the greenhouse but against him as to the plants, etc., the Maine court said:

"Where a structure is affixed to the premises of another by a temporary occupant thereof, or by a licensee, it is deemed temporary in its purpose and not part of the realty.

"Annexations with the consent of the owner or mortgagee of the realty, made by a bare licensee, are presumed to be removable and to remain the property of the one annexing, in the absence of facts indicating a contrary intention, even against a subsequent purchaser without notice; also by agreement between the owner of personal property and the owner or mortgagee of the realty, personal property may retain its status after annexation; and such agreement or intention may be inferred from circumstances.

"As to what are fixtures, substantially the same rules prevail between grantors and grantees as between mortgagors and mortgagees, but different rules apply in relation to landlords and tenants from considerations of public policy and because of the temporary nature of the tenure.

"In some jurisdictions it is held that, even without their consent or agreement, the rights of prior mortgagees, they having parted with nothing on the faith of the fixtures, are subject to those having rights therein; but in others, including Maine, it is held that a mortgagor cannot, by any agreement with a third party, diminish the rights of a prior mortgagee.

"If the defendant's title to the realty had been acquired simply by his deed from James G. Fyles, by whose stance from which any agreement on his part may be presumed that the greenhouse should remain personal property after annexation.

"The status of the other classes of personal property described in the writ is to be determined by the more liberal rule which prevails between landlord and tenant. The plants in pots and fertilized loam remaining on the premises were not of the nature of fixtures, but movable property, which the florist had the same right to sell as was his admitted right to sell the greenhouse plants. The stock plants, which, though matured, had not been severed from the soil, were emblements which the tenant, or his vendee, had the right to remove during the term, or within a reasonable time after its termination. As to this class of property the case is to be distinguished from Bryant vs. Pennell, 61 Maine 108, where the mortgage included plants and shrubs, and it was there held that the cuttings passed to the mortgagee by accession; but these plants were a new acquisition of property, having no relation to any class existing at the time the mortgage was given, and belonged to the tenant as the fruits of his industry." GUTTER SUPPORTS SINKING.

In repairing my greenhouses I find that the supports under the gutters seem to have sunk, although set in concrete. This seems to have been due to a great deal of water continually getting inside the houses and causing the soil to become soft. I believe that I can stop the entrance of water by putting in down pipes. I should like, however, to put in some solid or ground beds in one of the houses. I hesitate to do this, because the soil along the supports would, of course, be wet again, due to the watering of the plants in the beds and the subsequent seepage downward. What is your opinion? I also note that some of the wood purlins curve downward considerably. Will it be necessary to replace these? I do not care to do any more repairing than is absolutely necessary, for I do not think the range can stand more than five years.

C. T. H.—Ill.

If the location of the greenhouses is such that an outlet can be readily secured, it will be possible to correct the difficulty, and not only keep the subsoil dry from the drip, but from water applied to the solid beds, if a line of drain tile can be laid at a depth of two feet near each side wall and also through the center of houses more than thirty feet in width. For houses less than 200 feet in length, 3-inch tile may be used, and if given a regular fall of one inch in twenty feet, all surplus water in the soil will be quickly carried off.

It is impossible to offer any definite advice regarding replacing the purlins, without at least knowing more regarding the actual conditions. If the settling of the sashbars has not gone so far as to cause the glass to crack, and provided everything indicates that there will be no further settling, we do not advise that the repairs be made. On the other hand, if the house in other ways appears good for five years and the settling of the purlins is likely to require attention within one year, it will perhaps be advisable to attend to the matter at once. CLEANING GLASS.

What is the best method of cleaning glass without affecting its tensile strength? I have a large amount of second-hand glass which I wish to use immediately. M. P. G.—Ind.

Within a reasonable time limit the soaking of glass in lye water will not be injurious to glass and it is certainly helpful in removing paint and putty.

It is suggested that the glass be soaked in kerosene for six hours and then in lye for twelve hours. After that any putty which still adheres to the glass may be readily scraped off and the glass should then be thoroughly rinsed. L. R. T.

USING ROUGH WIRED GLASS.

I am building three greenhouses, 14x100 feet, with no glass in the side walls. The houses run north and south. I should like to know whether or not it is feasible to use rough ¼-inch wired glass for the roof. The house is to be for growing radishes, lettuce and potted plants. This glass will allow plenty of light to enter, but it will to some extent exclude the sun's rays. T. S.—Ia.

While the kind of glass described is sometimes used in large conservatories in which ferns, palms and many other plants of the same nature are kept, it would be inadvisable to recommend the use of this glass for the actual growing of the vegetables named or for the ordinary lines of florists' stock. The glass might be used for some of the leaf varieties of lettuce, but it is not adapted for growing head lettuce or radishes. This glass not only obstructs to an appreciable extent the amount of sunlight that enters, but also the heat from the sun, which should certainly be

SEEDLING DAHLIA.

I am sending a yellow dahlia that was grown from seed. Can you give me the name of it or tell me if there are any on the market of its kind?

J. B. H.—Mo.

All seedlings are entirely new varieties, and there are none identical to them now on the market. You, the originator, therefore have the privilege of giving your yellow seedling a name, provided, of course, it is worth while and worthy of being named. Many ordinary varieties are named and introduced, and as there are now some 6,000 named varieties of dahlias on the market, you surely would not wish to name the seedling and introduce it unless it is meritorious. The flowers you sent were in such poor condition when they arrived that they were indistinguishable. However, if it is from seed, it is a new variety, and you can name it if you choose.

Before naming it, it would be well to write the secretary of the American Dahlia Society, to secure registration of this variety and to ascertain if there are any others at the present time by the name you propose to use. The address of the secretary is William J. Rathgeber, 198 Norton street, New Haven, Conn. J. K. Alexander.

Jacksonville, Fla.—S. C. Brendel is opening another store under the name of the Florist Co.

Mansfield, Mass.—The Saunders Gardens are making wonderful progress in the growing of gladioli. The gardens occupy more than three acres and include about 300 varieties, both commercial and fancy. Of this year's cut, Dr. Van Fleet is the principal variety.

A Horticultural Library In Six Volumes

The Review is able to announce that it is in position to make immediate shipment of

BAILEY'S STANDARD

Cyclopedia of Horticulture

at a new low price. The last printing was sold out at $48.00 the set of 6 volumes—a very reasonable price considering war-time costs of printing. Now a new printing has been made and the publishers authorize The Review to give its readers the benefit of the saving made in recent competitive conditions in the book-making trades in the East. This means a new price of $40.00 per set for the CYCLOPEDIA—a saving of $8.00 per set.

Send Your Orders Now—Delivery by First Express, Prepaid

REMEMBER—BAILEY'S STANDARD CYCLOPEDIA OF HORTICULTURE is in 6 large volumes, over 3,000 pages. It is authority in all matters of plant names and spellings. Besides the purely botanical matter one would expect to find in such a work, there are many hundreds of cultural articles, chapters on insects, diseases, remedies, etc.—a veritable horticultural library, all carefully and completely indexed.

MRS. DARBEE WRITES HOME.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee, of San Francisco, and her husband and son are enjoying a delightful trip abroad. August 13 they were at Sestri Levante, Italy. From there Mrs. Darbee wrote the following letter for readers of The Review:

"I have met many people from California interested in the florists' business. We have just returned from a wonderful tour of Italy by automobile. We were accompanied by Natalie Rossi, of G. Rossi & Co., and his two sons, Albert and John, and his daughter, Marie. They are now visiting Mr. Rossi's aged mother, at Castilioque Chiavarese, while we are sojourning at this lovely spot, Sestri Levante, taking sea baths and enjoying the beautiful surroundings. Mr. Rossi and family will sail for America, probably on the Conto Rossi, October 18.

"We are going to southern France shortly and then to Milan for the international automobile races. Then we shall go to Switzerland for a month.

"H. Plath, of the Ferneries, visited Oberammergau August 12, after having been in Chemnitz, Germany, visiting his brother. He will go up the Rhine and then to Brussels. He expects to be in London August 23, ready to sail for America.

"Mr. Dinucchi, of the Belmont Florist, was met at Monte Cathini, a famous health resort. Mr. and Mrs. Dinucchi had completed a tour of Italy and were about to return to America.

"Ernest Creshio, of the Western Evergreen Co., and his wife and little daughter are at Cassasa. Figs and grapes are ripe there.

"George Rerasso writes from Berlin that it is an ideal place for Americans. Good things to eat and drinks are cheap there.

"Virginio Azzaro, of Stockton, Cal., and his wife are visiting at Castiglione, but they expect to return to America after the St. Helena festival, which was held there August 20.

"Other California florists seen are S. Pardini, formerly a grower of San Bruno. He and his wife have no intention of returning to America as yet.

"Nat Rolleri, brother of Manuel Rolleri, of the California Evergreen Co., has recently been married. His wife is a doctor's daughter and distinguished looking; she has considerable wealth. They will soon move from their country villa to their town house in Sestri Levante.

"Many will remember Adolph Travaserro, who came to Sestri Levante in 1917. He hopes soon to return to America and will bring with him an interesting little wife."

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market

Last week was a dull one both in the wholesale market and the retail stores. The heat continues at a level that makes shipments impossible. Roses are worse than in midsummer. Dahlias and gladioli glut the market.

Various Notes

The Broadway Florists have purchased a new delivery car, the fifth now in use. Funeral work has been heavy.

Roy F. Wilcox, who was ill several days after his return from the S. A. F. convention, at Kansas City, is around again.

Walter Armacost is on a fishing trip in Mono county.

Walter Garbett underwent an operation September 3, at Rochester, Minn. His friends are anxiously awaiting news of his convalescence. H. R. R.

OAKLAND, CAL.

The Market.

A growing scarcity of flowers is the chief characteristic of the local market at present, the lessening supply being particularly noticeable in the more staple varieties. Good roses are scarce and are selling considerably higher, at $1.50 to $1.75 a dozen. Carnations are also scarce, and in both carnations and roses the quality of the outdoor stock has deteriorated. Tiger lilies are gone; so are sweet peas, except a few high-priced greenhouse flowers. Mums are coming in nicely, both as to quantity and quality. The big rush in mums will not begin until about September 10, when they will be in better shape for shipping than they are now. Asters are plentiful this year and will last for some time yet. There are plenty of small flowers available, with an abundance of valley. Gladioli are still in. Cyclamens are beginning to arrive.

Various Notes.

than last year. This applies not only to the Oakland store, but to the various branches in the interior. Business has improved considerably with the opening of the schools. In witness of the latter fact, a new Dodge delivery truck has been added to the delivery department, to care for the increased trade. Funeral work and wedding decorations are good at present.

W. S. Harmon, of the H. M. Sanborn Co., is back on the job after his vacation, spent in the Santa Cruz mountains. Mr. Harmon states that the fall business will not really begin to pick up until the Holland bulbs arrive. There is a little business in winter vegetable seeds and in Gladiolus The Bride and freesias. This has been the greatest year for gladioli that has ever been experienced here. Many new shades were introduced for the first time and more of these flowers were used in decorative work than ever before. The new shades produced charming effects in sprays and floral pieces.

Hogan & Evers will move shortly to their new location. The original plans called for the move to be made August 1, but, because of the slowness of the former tenant to vacate and the difficulty of getting workmen, the opening has been postponed several times.

J. J. Thomas, of Thomas & Harris, has returned from a trip to British Columbia. On the trip, which was made by motor, Mr. Thomas visited about thirty of the leading florists in the various towns he passed through. After looking the ground over pretty thoroughly, he has decided that conditions in Oakland, from the florists' standpoint, are about the best there are. He reports a wonderful trip, with perfect weather the entire time. Funeral work seems to be gradually increasing, after a lapse during the summer months. Weddings seem to be much later this year than previously. The June weddings this year were entirely unsatisfactory and were far exceeded by the August weddings, both in number and size. Among the important weddings for which Thomas & Harris decorated during the last month was that of Miss Anne Kelsey, one of the leaders in society around the bay. A rare Bird of Paradise flower is being exhibited in the windows at present. The flower is imported from Hawaii and is quite unusual in its appearance.

The Varsity Gardens, Berkeley, report business opening with a rush with the beginning of the university year. Sorority and fraternity houses have placed big orders for so early in the season and a number of desirable new accounts have been taken.

The Flowershop, in Berkeley, has been sold to Gus Toso and Dan Traversaro. Mr. Toso was formerly with the Oakland Flower Shop. Mr. Traversaro was formerly with G. Rossi & Co., of Oakland, and with Pelicano, Rossi & Co., of San Francisco. The Flowershop is being completely remodeled, and it is predicted that when finished it will probably be the finest store in the east bay district. The interior is being finished in an antique Italian polychrome that is highly effective.

The Oakland Flower Shop has noted an increase in its shipping business since the return of people from their vacations in the inland cities at the reopening of schools. V. Costa says that conditions are quite satisfactory now and the fall prospects are bright. M. M.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Quantities of stock flooded the market last week. Fortunately, business was a little better and between the shipping, which is beginning to revive, and the improved local demand, the stock was better taken care of than could have been the case a month ago. Cut cyclamens, zinnias, amaryllis, rubrum lilies, delphinium, French and African marigolds, scabiosa, and many other summer flowers were abundantly displayed. The early chrysanthemums vied for a place with the dahlias, fresh crops of fine gladioli and quantities of asters. Early violets were in the market, too, though, owing to the warm weather and the time of year, they will not be ready for immediate shipment. Lilies of the valley were plentiful. Roses were not all of good quality. In fact, the best grades of roses were scarce. Baby roses were fairly plentiful. Orchids were scarce and gardenias were not more than enough to take care of the demand. The stock most in evidence, however, were the asters. Owing to various circumstances, there has not been much shipping of asters this season and floods of them have come into the market.

Various Notes.

Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has been busy with preparations for the big annual dahlia show at the Palace hotel.

Daily San Francisco newspapers have devoted considerable space to the way in which Miss Irma Copeland, daughter of Mrs. Copeland, of the Misses Hannon store, routed a footpad who attacked her in broad daylight at the steps of the Stockton street tunnel. After nearly choking the young woman, he snatched her purse and ran. She pursued him, calling for help, and he dropped the purse, retaining the money, however. The hold-up occurred in a busy part of the city, where numbers of people pass.

N. Cananvero, a popular member of the staff of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has just returned to work after an accident which laid him up in the Dante sanitarium. While bathing in the surf, near the Cliff House, his foot was cut and seriously injured by a piece of glass. Mr. Cananvero has been with Pelicano, Rossi & Co. for a number of years, and was warmly welcomed back.

The De Luxe Flower & Bird Shop is now doing business at 551 Sutter street. The proprietress, Mrs. Irene Price, who recently came to this city from Salt Lake City, stated that she is trying to make her store a little different. In addition to flowers, she deals in foreign and domestic birds of many kinds. Mrs. Price is a decorator, and plans to make a feature of table decorations and baskets.

E. W. McLellan seems to be traveling far and fast, in spite of the railroad strike. He is visiting a number of points in the southwest, and is not expected back for two weeks or more. The E. W. McLellan Co. is shipping a good many chrysanthemums, including some Oconto, in addition to Chrysolora and October Frost.

J. A. Axell started shipping chrysanthemums the first week in September, and expects to handle large crops, if railroad conditions remain satisfactory. At present the express cars seem to be getting through in satisfactory shape.

Victor Ferrari, of Ferrari Bros., expects to begin cutting orchids about October 1. The crop of orchids will probably be heavy until March 1, with an especial supply for the Christmas holidays.

A visit to all the rose nurseries that supply F. C. Jaeger & Son was made by F. C. Jaeger, Jr., August 27. He found that everything was being dried, but indications pointed to fine crops of roses coming in about October 1. "We expect to have some exceptionally fine cuts early in the fall season," he said.

General and Mrs. Gooch, of Darbee's, are now in their new home at Burlingame. Letters from Mrs. Darbee state that she and her family have hired an automobile and a chauffeur and are seeing Italy from the car. They have been entertained by visiting San Francisco growers and by relatives of growers who are here now. Mrs. Darbee is about to visit Switzerland, France, Holland and Germany.

The Charles C. Navlet Co. still continues its dahlia window displays, which lead to orders for many bulbs for future delivery. The dahlia season is now at its height, and this firm is constantly showing new varieties.

Podesta and Baldocchi have been busy with wedding bouquets, in addition to their usual trade in baskets and cut flowers. They have just had a large wedding at the Fairmont hotel.

The Terminal Florist decorated the S. S. Wilhelmina, of the Matson line, for an entertainment given on board the day before her sailing, August 30. She sailed with a full passenger list and many bon voyage baskets.

George Wagner, of Joseph's, arranged an oriental window in berries, oriental pods, chrysanthemums and lilies, to serve as a background for some new flowers of colored glass imported from China.

Enomoto & Co. started their chrysanthemum shipments September 1. They had previously sent consignments of their chrysanthemums as far as Spokane and Texas, and believe that these got through all right. The crop is stated to be good, both in quality and quantity.

Domoto Bros. have been shipping their early chrysanthemums, beginning with September 1. Their early crops, especially of Chrysolora and October Frost, are looking fine.

H. K. Tanaka, manager of the United Flower & Supply Co., will not start shipping large crops of chrysanthemums till sometime between September 5 and 10. Chrysolora and October Frost will be the first of heavy cuts which will continue throughout the mum season. The firm is filling a number of orders for strawflowers.

The California Floral Co. had its first wedding of the season last week. Customers are rapidly coming back from the country.

It is announced that approximately 9,000 acres on the Merced river, north of Merced, Cal., will be developed by one of the largest seed growing companies in the country. The deal, which in-

Orchards will be planted and large asparagus beds are one of the activities being considered. The land included in the scheme is being handled by the Merced Orchard Co. The president of the company to develop the acreage is stated to be Frank C. Sloan, head of the Sloan Seed Co., Los Angeles. M. M.

The Market.

Some improvement was noticed in business last week, which is an encouraging sign for good sales this coming fall and winter. The improvement in the quality of cut flowers is surprising in so short a time. The dry spell ended two weeks ago and several good showers later have put a different aspect on the face of nature, and no one can expect better cut stock than is now shown by all the florists.

Sweet peas are hanging on better than usual, with long stems as good as those seen early in the season. Asters are beautiful, but the dark red Heart of France has not appeared yet. One grower told the writer that he seeded this variety four times, with seeds from as many different seed firms, and never one seedling showed.

Various Notes.

Business must be good with the Smith Floral Co., as Dad Smith, who is the head of the firm and also runs the greenhouses, was in the store waiting on a customer last week. The display of flowers and ferns there was attractive, and many huge vases of gladioli added their stately beauty to the arrangement.

The florists' picnic last week was a big success. With games, refreshments and dancing, the day ran far into the evening. Everyone had a fine time and the weather was ideal.

At the Florists' Club meeting Monday, August 28, after the business was attended to, interesting talks on soil and fertilizers were enjoyed by all. Many experiences were related, most of them good, some with sorrow as the results. A warning was given to use chemical fertilizers with understanding, and not by experiment. L. B. M.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

There is nothing new to tell of the market this week. Business has continued under the same conditions as in the preceding weeks. There seems to be an increase in the receipts of indoor roses, but they are not in great demand. Of the outdoor flowers, gladioli, asters, zinnias and marigolds are the only ones meriting special mention. The supply exceeds the demand. Lilium rubrum and auratum are making a fine show in the store windows. Sweet peas are past their prime and, with the continued rain which we have at present, will soon be a thing of the past.

Various Notes

J. A. Wilson, of the Wilson-Crout-Gehr Co., left August 31 for his home town, Olney, Ill., to visit his parents. He expects to be gone one month.

A small fire started Saturday evening, August 26 in the boiler shed of the Van Kirk Floral Co. It was extinguished in time to avoid damage to the four greenhouses adjoining the boiler room. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Forshaw, of Pendleton, Ore., drove to Portland in their new Ford coupe a few days ago, and are visitors in this city.

The Oregon Florists' Club held its monthly meeting at the regular quarters Tuesday evening, August 22, with a small attendance. B. R. Amend, fig specialist, gave a short address on the beginning of a new industry, in fig raising, telling the history and culture of figs and of the realization of the first fig acreage in Oregon. Many varieties are under Mr. Amend's supervision from all parts of the world. This year five acres of fig trees will be set out in one tract in Oregon by Mr. Amend. Mr. White, of the White Dahlia Co., exhibited a few novelties of gladioli, some of his own creations.

An invitation was extended by the Seattle Florists' Club to the Portland florists to attend the annual picnic, Sunday, August 20, at Enumclaw, located between Tacoma and Seattle. Thirty-five Portland florists were there and all reported an excellent time.

W. L. Crissey, of Boring, Ore., made a grand display of gladioli in one of the leading department stores last week. Many varieties were exhibited. He has specialized in gladioli for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Clarke attended the Seattle florists' picnic, August 20, after which they took in Mt. Rainier national park. They did not climb to the summit, but made their stopping place at Paradise inn. They reported a grand trip.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Chervenka, of Sumner, Wash., were visitors for several days in this vicinity. Mr. Chervenka, connected with the Woodland Park Floral Co., reported that many improvements are under way at that establishment.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Garside and Mr. and Mrs. H. Niklas, returned from a week-end fishing trip on Salmon river. They were well repaid for their time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Forbes have returned from a two weeks' vacation in Puget sound cities, and report a fine trip.

R. Kent Beattie, pathologist of the federal horticultural board, is a visitor in this city. N. V. H.

Fernandina, Fla.—The Gerbing Floral Garden has been sold to C. F. Borges, of Cleveland, O., who is building a new greenhouse and auxiliary buildings. AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Alexander Forbes, Newark, N. J.; secretary, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE J. K. Rugowski Seed Co., of Manitowoc, Wis., won several prizes for its large-flowered asters at the Wisconsin state fair last week.

THE official roster of Beckert's Seed Store, Pittsburgh, is: President, A. L. Beckert; vice-president, A. F. Frishkorn; treasurer, John W. Edwards; secretary, Robert D. Edwards.

ACCORDING to 1919 census statistics, vegetables grown for sale on farms amounted in value to $193,248,964, while those grown for home use had an aggregate value of $344,665,728.

BERMUDA appears to have staged something of a "come-back" in the matter of Lilium Harrisii, though, of course, there will never be the quantities of bulbs imported from that island that there once were.

FROM 800,000 to 900,000 pounds of cucumber seed are consumed annually in the United States. To yield a pound of seed forty to fifty fruits are required and there are 12,000 to 15,000 cucumbers to the acre. There are about thirty-five varieties in general use.

THE Western Canners' Association is planning a big convention in Chicago next November. The association includes members in seventeen states and is said to be the oldest canners' association in the world. The convention will be held at the Hotel Sherman. The office of the association is at 12 East Grand avenue, Chicago.

MORE ABOUT FRENCH BULBS.

One of the French bulb exporting houses has written a long, confidential letter to its principal clients in America, reporting in detail on the disposition of practically the entire crop of Paper Whites. The quantity, in round numbers, purchased and shipped by each of the half-dozen exporters is reported on, with the approximate quantities sent to each of the principal American dealers. The letter indicates that the French exporters shipping to American houses supplying the florists' trade only, have sent no 11-centimeter bulbs, while only small quantities of this size have been sent to American houses known to have a department store trade. Information is given that one Holland concern purchased, through a French dealer, 2,000 cases of 11-centimeter bulbs, 700 cases of which had been sent to America. It is stated that 700 cases of bulbs also have been bought in Italy by a Holland concern and sent to America. Experience indicates that these Italian Paper Whites will not force; they throw up a flower stalk, but the buds dry up under the conditions which bring forcing-size French bulbs into flower in the greenhouse.

American dealers are greatly interested, and hope unforceable bulbs will not reach the American florists in any form, as they believe every failure, especially with high-priced bulbs, reacts on the demand for next year. Maybe any kind of bulb is good enough for a department store, but only the best will do for florists. The best assurance, of course, lies in dealing with a house which has sent satisfactory stock in the past and which will want the same order next year.

RECEIVE FRENCH BULBS.

On the steamer Bankdale, which arrived from Marseilles August 27, there were forty cases of bulbs consigned to R. F. Downing & Co. and 210 cases consigned to the International Forwarding Co. There have been previously received 11,232 cases of French bulbs. Adding the latest consignments to the total just given makes a grand total of 11,482 cases received to date.

Keur, J.	141
Van Doorn, W.	30
Total	1,325

The total number of cases on board the two steamers above mentioned was 1,896 cases.

The steamer Eastern Dawn, which arrived at New York from Rotterdam September 1, brought 127 cases of bulbs consigned to F. Rynveld & Sons. On board were also ten bags of clover seed for J. Loewith, Inc., and ten bags for Ostfeld, Rosenberg & Co.

On the Vechtdyk, which reached New York from Rotterdam the same day, were eighty-nine cases of bulbs consigned to M. Van Waveren & Sons and ninety-two cases to W. Van Doorn.

The consignments on the above vessels brings the season's importation of Dutch bulbs to a total of 2,204 cases.

CONNECTICUT SEED NOTES.

Comstock, Ferre & Co., Wethersfield, Conn., report normal stands of sweet corn and, with good weather conditions, a normal crop is anticipated. Tomato picking started September 6, two to three weeks later than usual, due to the wet weather conditions which prevailed here in August. In that month, twenty-three days were cloudy and on eleven days there was rain, with heavy thunder showers and hail.

F. B. Dawson, representing the Charles Sharpe & Co., Sleaford, England, and Harry Stimpson, with Cooper, Taber & Co., London, England, were recent visitors at Cadwell & Jones, Hartford. They reported many shortages and said higher prices are looked for on many items for the year 1923.

W. D. Smith, with Vaughan's Seed Store, New York, called on the florists' trade at Hartford recently, offering bulbs and other seasonable stock.

Everett P. Jones, of Cadwell & Jones, Hartford, Conn., is touring the Catskills, in New York, and will return to his desk early in September. C. B. M.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

ing upon the late season's business, delayed by so much rain in the spring, looks for a prolonged fall trade and a possibly good bulb demand.

The T. J. Lutton Seed Co., Atlanta, Ga., commenting upon the fact that it is the first time in twenty-five years Valentine beans have been out of the market, significantly added that the arrival of the Mexican bean bug from Alabama gives new cause for anxiety. This pest attacks the bean in the flowering stage and is a blighter. Wachendorff Bros. had a field of corn, peas and Kentucky Wonder beans that was fairly wiped out by this latest bug. W. M.

VEGETABLE CROP REPORT.

The September 1 report by the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb., and Rocky Ford, Colo., shows the vegetable seed crop, in the several items, to be as follows:

Field and sweet corn—The condition of Nebraska seed corn crops continues favorable. The crop is a little late, but we expect it to mature fully.

Cucumber and muskmelon—The condition is not so good as it was three weeks ago, owing to a temporary shortage of irrigating water. Inspection shows cucumber affected more than muskmelon. A few more hails in August have cut down the acreage materially. We believe that some shortages will develop, more particularly in cucumber.

Watermelon—The condition of watermelons for seed continues excellent and we expect at least a normal yield. Some aphids have appeared and may do some damage.

Squash—Summer squash is as nice a crop in eastern Nebraska as we have ever seen, but winter squash in central Nebraska is nearly a failure. With the exception of one small district, the crops will not return the seed planted.

Pumpkin—A failure in central Nebraska, owing to insects, drought and hail. Eastern Nebraska pumpkins are from poor to good. The winter squash and pumpkin in central Nebraska are about the poorest we have ever had.

Beans—Our Minnesota crops are about a failure in every case, owing to drought. Colorado crops are from fair to good.

Auburn, Ind.—Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Maynard went from the S. A. F. convention to Des Moines, Ia., with J. T. D. Fulmer and his daughter, Miss Perle Fulmer. They report a delightful visit. They returned home via Chicago August 25.

Clarkdale, Ariz.—J. C. Thomas, one of the pioneer florists here, will celebrate his seventy-fourth birthday September 10. Mr. Thomas is in the best of health and is a constant reader of The Review, from which he derives much interesting and useful material.

ZVOLANEK'S NOVELTIES FOR 1922-23

The Best Blue Sweet Peas Ever Produced to Date

Zvolanek's Blue Sensation—A self of clearest blue. Similar to Zvolanek's Blue and twice as large. The best blue ever produced. Four flowers to a long stem; they hold their color to the very last.

Zvolanek's Blue Wonder—A large clear blue flower upon opening, but changes to a light violet as it ages. Slightly larger than the above.

Zvolanek's Blue Chief—A blue self which is slightly darker than Zvolanek's Blue Sensation, but in all other respects is the same.

Zvolanek's Comet—A large salmon on cream ground. A good bloomer and holds color very well. If well grown, majority of flowers produce four on a long stem and with double standards or wings—very large.

Price—¼ oz., $4.00.

Zvolanek's Pink—Practically the same as Zvolanek's Rose, but shorter grower. Color of more intense pink, which holds color to the very last.

Price—1 oz., $2.50; 4 oz., $8.00; 1 lb., $25.00.

Zvolanek's Rose—This is the very best commercial Sweet Pea ever produced to date. Every one who has ever tried it cannot say enough for it and wants it again in larger quantities. The flowers are of the most beautiful self-rose color, double the size of Mrs. Skach; holds its color to the last and is a free bloomer, also unexcelled for outdoors.

Price—1 oz., $2.00; 4 oz., $6.00; 1 lb., $20.00.

Zvolanek's Perfection—Dark pink or old rose of very largest size; similar to Zvolanek's Rose in shape and size. Holds color to last; short crop.

Price—1 oz., $2.00.

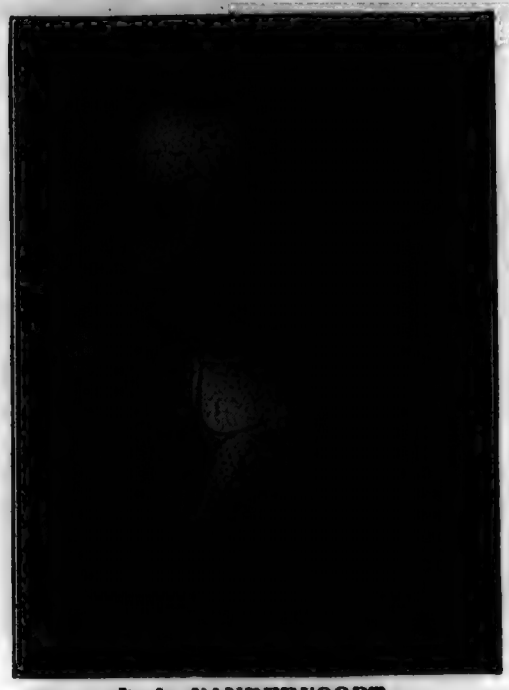
Zvolanek's Xmas Gem—Same color as Xmas Pink, only double the size. One of our 1919 introductions. Short crop.

Price—1 oz., $2.00.

White and Blush Colors

Zvolanek's White—The largest white-seeded white in existence; flowers are wide apart with nearly all fours; majority with double wings or standards. The very best commercial white to date.

Zvolanek's Swan—The very best black-seeded white; rather short grower, with very ruffled flowers. One of our 1920 introductions.



Ed. Zvolanek—Purest lavender, similar to Mrs. Chas. Zvolanek in color, but very large. A good bloomer in darkest winter. If well grown the majority of the flowers produce four to a long stem, with double wings or standards. This variety is a great improvement over all other lavenders. May revert to some extent, but we guarantee it about 90 per cent true.

Price—1 oz., $2.00; 4 oz., $6.00; 1 lb., $20.00.

These are the best commercial varieties and all of largest size. There are none better. Send for complete list.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE annual meeting of the Southwestern Nurserymen's Association will be held September 27 and 28 at the Oriental hotel, Dallas, Tex.

THE summer meeting of the Eastern Nurserymen's Association will be held September 21 at the Hotel Stacy Trent, Trenton, N. J. Luncheon will be at 12:30; the meeting at 2.

THE Northern Nut Growers' Association will meet at Rochester, N. Y., September 7 to 9. President James S. McGlennon will preside at the meetings. It is expected that more than 100 members will attend.

WITH their fall bulb catalogue, Rock's Flower Gardens, Independence, Mo., enclose a folder showing two planting plans for small city residence lots. A letter on the outside of the folder offers the services of a landscape department. A. Pharo Gagge is consultant.

JOHN J. TWOMEY and Albert H. Bubb, both of Williamsport, Pa., have purchased two acres of property on the Gee estate here, with an option calling for two more acres. Operations have been started by the two toward constructing the Lycoming Nurseries.

THE New York State Nurserymen's Association will hold its summer meeting and outing at the Rod and Gun Club, on Seneca Lake, Geneva, N. Y., Saturday, September 9. Those intending to be present should notify Secretary C. J. Maloy, 209 Linden street, Rochester, N. Y.

THE Weller Nurseries Co., of Holland, Mich., reports that the locality is enjoying wonderful late summer weather. The company states that early in the summer many young plants, especially phlox and delphinium, perished on account of a lack of rain, but from June on the weather has been just about right. A. Weller and N. J. W. Kriek, who represented this firm at the S. A. F. convention, returned satisfied with the interest shown in perennials. One of the items this firm had on exhibit in Kansas City was Ashillea The Pearl. In spite of the sultry weather, the plants of this variety kept their pure white color through the week of the convention.

C. A. KRILL, president and general manager of the Prudential Nursery Co., Kalamazoo, Mich., reports that the firm is experiencing a lively demand for all kinds of fruit trees and small fruit plants and that there is a satisfactory demand for ornamentals. During the last year the company has bought another farm, on which planting began last spring. Plans are being drawn for an addition to the storage cellar, which will be started this fall. "So far as we can anticipate future orders," says Mr. Krill, "it is our opinion that many lines of nursery stock will be scarce for spring delivery. We believe that dealers and landscape architects will do well to locate sources of supply and secure bookings on what stock they anticipate using, particularly in the spring."

PACIFIC COAST COMMITTEES.

The Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, headed by Charles T. Hawkes, Caldwell, Idaho, president, and C. A. Tonneson, Burton, Wash., executive secretary, has the following official roster for the coming year:

Vice-president—C. E. Wright, Kimberly, Idaho; C. B. Miller, Milton, Ore.; F. W. May, Yakima, Wash.; M. R. Jackson, Fresno, Cal.; C. H. Smith, Centerville, Utah; Richard Layritz, Victoria, B. C.

Board of trustees—F. A. Wiggins, Toppenish, Wash.; M. McDonald, Orenco, Ore.; S. A. Miller, Milton, Ore.

Executive committee—C. E. Wright, Kimberly, Idaho; C. H. Smith, Centerville, Utah; C. D. Hobbs, Milton, Ore.

Legislation committee—A. A. Kelly, Spokane, Wash.; Anton Diederichsen, Payette, Idaho; F. E. Walton, Salt Lake City, Utah; C. T. Trotter, Vancouver, B. C.; J. E. Bergtholdt, New Castle, Cal.

Transportation committee—C. J. Atwood, Toppenish, Wash.; B. A. Mitchell, Orenco, Ore.; A. T. Gossman, Wenatchee, Wash.

Landscape committee—H. E. Weed, Beaverton, Ore.; J. J. Bonnell, Seattle, Wash.; H. E. Burdette, Orenco, Ore.

Membership committee—A. Brownell, Portland, Ore.; B. H. Bower, Provo, Utah; Chas. T. Trotter, Victoria, B. C.; Chas. W. Howard, Hemet, Cal.; J. J. Mathis, Salem, Ore.

Reception committee—J. E. Carnefix, Fruitland, Idaho; Mrs. Ruth Day, Spokane, Wash.; Mrs. Carl E. Wright, Kimberly, Idaho.

The 1923 convention will be held at Boise, Idaho.

ROADS OF REMEMBRANCE.

The doughboy of the A. E. F. who traveled the weary kilometers under the heavy pack remembers the French highways. And standing out in pleasant memory are the trees that lined the long roads, trees that added much pleasure to an otherwise wearisome march.

Those trees are not to be forgotten. The American Forestry Association, under the leadership of Charles L. Park, started the "roads of remembrance" idea in this country and is registering a vast number of memorial trees on the national honor roll. The idea has taken hold in a number of states.

The "roads of remembrance" idea is to have an actual beginning in New York state on a large scale. Trees will be planted as long as weather conditions permit and the supply of trees holds out. The work will be carried on by those who understand trees, so as to reduce the upkeep and replacement of trees as much as possible. When completed, in accordance with present plans, the planting will be more than 400 miles in length.

Nurserymen should be only too glad to boost this idea.

GEORGIA'S NURSERY BILL.

The nursery bill recently passed by the legislature of the state of Georgia is of interest to the nurserymen of not only Georgia, but to outside states as well. Numerous features of this bill affect interstate shipments. The following brief summary of the law contains the salient points:

Every nurseryman, dealer in nursery stock, agent, salesman or solicitor must receive a license from the Georgia state board of entomology.

All licenses must be in the name of the person, firm or corporation licensed, show purpose for which issued and the name and location of the nursery or place of business of the nurseryman or dealer licensed or represented by the agent or salesman.

No license may be granted until the party applying for the same has filed with the Georgia state board of entomology an application giving "Prolonged lives of trees for many years"

The tribute of Edward Parker to Davey Tree Surgery

A difficult operation performed by Davey Tree Surgeons on the roots of 350-year old white oak on the Oliver Ames estate

Tree Surgery

The Davey Tree Expert Company,
Kent, Ohio.

Dear Sirs:

It is a pleasure to commend the Tree Surgery operations executed by your men on the Oliver Ames Estate over which I have charge.

My careful observation has shown me that these men are most industrious workers, take a careful interest in their duties at all times, and certainly know their business as far as difficult surgery on valuable trees is concerned. Our many trees needed expert treatment and I feel that the work recently completed by your men will be of great material benefit and has prolonged the lives of some of them for many years to come.

Very truly yours,
Edward Parker, Supt., Oliver Ames Estate.

Every gardener and estate superintendent has a most important work in the saving of trees under his care.

Davey Tree Surgery brings to his aid the highest development of science plus a generation of experience. A careful examination of your trees will be made by appointment.

the approximate acreage and kinds of nursery stock grown by him, the name and location of the nursery, or place of business in case of dealers, or nursery represented in the case of agents, the names of three reliable parties as references; in the case of nurserymen these three must be nurserymen.

The annual license fee for nurserymen and dealers is $5; for each agent, salesman or solicitor the fee is $1.

No license can be issued uptil the nursery in question has received a certificate of inspection.

The Georgia state board of entomology may revoke any license for cause.

A duplicate of the complete invoice, without price of each sale amounting to $100 or over must be filed with the Georgia state board of entomology within thirty days of shipment, and name and quality of all nursery stock sold in the state or for delivery in the state.

In the case of deceit or fraud through the substitution of varieties other than those ordered, or of seedlings for budded or grafted stock, or through falsely representing the age, name, class or condition of any nursery stock, the purchaser may sue the seller at any time within a period of five years from date of shipment. Damages to the extent of three times the original cost of that portion of the order in question may be awarded to cover original cost, expense loss of time and damages sustained. An error of five per cent is allowable, however.

Non-resident nurserymen must file with the Georgia state board of entomology a properly executed power of attorney designating a resident of Georgia to receive service of process in case of suit.

All nurserymen, corporations, firms or individuals selling or offering to sell nursery stock in the state of Georgia must file with the Georgia state board of entomology a bond for $1,000. This bond must be made out to the secretary of the Georgia state board of entomology and must be maintained for a term of three years.

In order to bring suit, the purchaser must file with the George state board of entomology, within ninety days from date of shipment, two copies of a plat showing the number of each variety, location and from whom purchased, with statement of cost. Both copies must be executed before a notary public and certified under his seal. One copy is to be sent to the shipper by the state board of entomology.

All persons contracting to render expert advice or service regarding horticultural practices, including tree surgeons, landscape architects or landscape gardeners, as a business or as part of value received in the sale of nursery stock, are required to furnish satisfactory evidence to the Georgia state board of entomology that they are qualified and responsible to give such expert advice or perform such service and must obtain a certificate to such effect from the state board of entomology. A fee of $5 is required for this certificate.

It will be noted from the foregoing that not only nurserymen are affected but that landscape architects are also required to obtain a license. The state board of entomology is having the attorney-general prepare the power of attorney for non-resident nurserymen and application should be made to the secretary of the Georgia state board of entomology for copies. It should also be noted that nothing in the law just passed changes in any way the previous laws regarding inspection and the rerequirement of certificates, as is the practice at present. J. S. H.

White Delphiniums

A pure white hardy Delphinium having all the characteristics of growth of a good strain of Hybrids. It has none of the blood or habit of growth of Delphinium Chinense. The flower stalks grow to a height of 3 to 5 feet, or higher, in good soil. Most of the plants have pure white flowers, though occasionally one is found with a dark center. Most plants are single-flowered, though a few have double flowers. The plants we offer were grown from seed, have all flowered and have been marked while in flower by William Toole, Sr., who developed this strain of White Hybrid Delphiniums.

Price for strong selected field-grown plants, carefully packed, 35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100.

Also strong transplanted field plants of D. Formosum, D. Belladonna and D. Gold Medal Hybrids at $1.20 per doz., $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

PETERSON NURSERY
30 N. La Salle Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

of Nurserymen, says, regarding the conditions of supply and demand on the coast:

"Continued efforts to stabilize the nursery business during the past year is showing satisfactory results. Surveys made during the fall of 1921 served to determine more definitely the market value of nursery stock, demonstrated more particularly with Italian prune. During the spring of 1922 a complete survey of the entire Pacific coast was made, results indicating for the coming planting season that in Italian prune the supply is nearly up to normal. French prune and other varieties of prune, plum and cherry are below normal twenty per cent. Peach, pear and apricot on the entire Pacific coast are all below normal supply twenty to twenty-five per cent. In apple the present estimate crop is about one and a quarter million trees, which is as nearly normal as can be determined at this time. Early in the spring the survey indicated an excessive proposed apple plant in the Yakima valley. When this condition was revealed to nurserymen in that vicinity, they promptly met and voluntarily reduced the proposed bud list about twenty-five per cent.

"In ornamentals the survey showed that supply has not kept up with demand. A considerable number are now propagating young plants, but the total which will develop to suitable shapes and sizes in three to five years is not likely to surpass the requirements of the planting public, as the ratio of increase in ornamental planting is greater than with fruit stocks, and unless the regular, established nurseries keep the productions within reasonable proportion of the increasing demand, outsiders are likely to break into the game in a manner to cause uncertainty and disappointment to themselves, to nurserymen and the public generally.

"Based on these surveys and the final factor of supply and demand, the market value of nursery stock necessarily must be about the same as last year's values, estimated on prices at which stock cleaned up and the cost to replace, which values obtain regardless of the price any one or more nurseries may choose for selling. The factor of cost of production will cause decrease in the market value of apple, perhaps ten to fifteen per cent, because supply is more nearly normal; hence, from the business viewpoint, supply and demand become the secondary factors to determine market value of apple trees.

"While it is too early to estimate definitely, from general observations, it now appears that seedlings for next year's plants of the various classes will be a little below normal."

IN BLUE RIDGE MOUNTAINS.

The use of native material in planting both small and large landscape projects is coming more and more into vogue. As the urban centers, where nurserymen and landscape architects find the largest demand for ornamentals, have been built up, to the exclusion of the old-time areas of native woods and wild lands, appreciation of native plants is the greater.

Nurserymen in several sections of the country make a specialty of supplying such material. In the Blue Ridge mountains of North Carolina, E. C. Robbins, at Pineola, is doing for the native plants of that section what others have done in other parts of the country. Mr. Robbins was with Harlan P. Kelsey, of Salem, Mass., for twenty-eight years before beginning business for himself. He now owns and is located on the grounds of Mr. Kelsey's old Highlands Nursery, at Pineola. His location is pretty nearly on the summit of the Blue Ridge mountains and is nearly 4,000 feet above sea level. He supplies native azaleas, rhododendrons, kalmias, Andromeda floribunda, oxydendrums, tsugas and similar material, a detailed list of which would take up too much space. His trade lists include hardy and rare broad-leaved evergreens, ornamental trees, shrubs, vines, ferns and herbaceous plants of the Blue Ridge. Mr. Robbins also supplies Christmas greens, such as galax leaves, leucothoe sprays, holly and other evergreen material for florists' use, in addition to the previously mentioned material he supplies to the nursery trade.

HARTFORD, CONN.

Business with all florists was quiet during the month of August. Due to anxiety over the coal situation and the rainy weather, the public is not buying flowers.

During August there were only eight clear days, according to the monthly meteorological summary issued by the United States weather bureau. The total rainfall was six and eight-tenths inches, or two and twenty-eight hundredths inches above normal. Of the twenty-three days in August not clear, on eleven days it was rainy. There were eight thunder storms during the month and seventeen different occurences of hail, which damaged sweet peas, asters and other outside flowers and vegetables to a great extent.

Joseph Coombs spent five days at camp with the governor's footguard at Niantic recently.

At Coombs' South street range, where large quantities of roses and carnations are grown, about 100 tons of coal were noted on hand, carried over from last year, only enough to carry until the first of December. Newton Osborn, superintendent at this range, was at the Hartford hospital three weeks, with a sudden illness which baffled all the medical experts, but he is now convalescing and is motoring through Massachusetts visiting the large carnation and rose growers of that state.

It was noticed that Spear & McManus and George Lane, on Asylum street, were closing early Saturdays, giving their employees a half holiday during the hot weather. Other florists here give their employees a full day a week, alternating.

J. Albert Brodrib, Main street florist, is expected back September 5 from a month's vacation, spent at his cottage at Saybrook.

Charles B. Macdonald, of Caldwell & Jones, and family returned August 26 after a month's sojourn at Old Lynne at his cottage there on Rogers lake.

A. Linder is busy filling his new Lord & Burnham greenhouse, recently completed at Cedar Hill, with some of the finest and cleanest cyclamen plants seen in this section. There is barely enough room to house them all and more houses will be erected here later, to enable Mr. Linder to supply the increasing demand for plants.

Van Laar & Co., Blue Hills avenue, have experienced a heavy demand for bedding and other plants at the new location. Chrysanthemums are grown here during the fall in the greenhouse and thousands of perennials are grown outside for the local and wholesale trade.

Arrangements are being formulated whereby Hartford florists will make displays at the Connecticut Horticultural Society's autumn flower show, to be held in the old state house city hall, on Main street, September 14 and 15.

It is anticipated that the attendance will be large, as much interest is being shown here both by the professional and amateur gardeners. A. N. Pierson, Inc., will furnish a truck load of foliage and other decorative plants for the flower show. Plenty of space can be had by applying to John Williard, Wethersfield. No admission to the public will be charged at this exhibition.

The Market.

Last week showed some improvement in local market conditions. There has been a decrease in the supply of roses and asters. Plenty of gladioli are being received and are being sold at low prices. Until last week there were few good asters to be had, but since that time the quality has been much better. Carnations are beginning to arrive and the quality is extra good for so early in the season. White is the only color to be had at this time. Lilies continue to be short in supply and practically clean up every day. Lilies of the valley are also in demand and the supply is rather limited. Outdoor flowers continue to come into the market, but the demand is limited. Summing up the entire business for the month of August, everyone seems to report business just a little better than last year. Several florists have remarked that there were more weddings during this month than during June, which is exceptional.

Various Notes.

Harvey Sheaf, of Mrs. E. A. Williams, Inc., is spending his vacation somewhere in Michigan. During his absence Charles Ulmer is in charge.

Ed. Weaver, of Randolph & McClements, has just returned from a western motor trip.

Postcards are being received by some of the trade from E. J. McCallum, who at the present time is in Europe.

Mr. Berger, sales manager of the McCallum Co., is spending his vacation at Geneva on the Lake.

Warrick Bros., of Washington, Pa., expect to get into their new store October 1.

W. T. Usinger and Oliver H. Langhans, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., made a business and pleasure trip to Washington, Pa., calling upon the trade and attending the Washington county fair.

T. P. Langhans, secretary of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., and his wife are at Atlantic City.

An attractive announcement was mailed out by Dave Hill & Co., announcing the opening of their store Saturday, September 2, but owing to the fact that the contractor was not able to complete the new store room by this time, the opening date was later set for Wednesday, September 6. H. J. H.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Conditions in this market last week showed briskness. Stock is in excellent condition and moves out readily. Roses are in the pink of condition and can be had at $4 per hundred up.

Asters are fine this season. They arrive in large quantities and clean up quickly. Gladioli seem to have reached top center and will soon descend to poorer grades.

Lilies are arriving in large numbers and move out quickly because of their popularity for funeral orders. Zinnias and other garden and field flowers find a good market, because they can be well utilized for basket work.

Various Notes.

Ray W. Murphy, of the William Murphy Co., has returned from his vacation at Les Cheneaux Islands, Mich. He reports an enjoyable time fishing, etc.

Julius Baer's window displays last week showed many seasonable and choice blooms.

H. W. Sheppard reports a good week in wedding work and he has a number of orders booked for early September.

E. G. Gillett reports numerous sales of coontie foliage and a good week in the sale of chiffon and baskets.

McCallum's COLUMN

McCALLUM

"A good clear white—a mighty good-looking job."

"I was well pleased with Malco Paint in every way and to date have nothing but entire satisfaction from this paint. The painters who did the work for me have painted greenhouses for years and they liked it. They said were good paints. It is certainly a good clear white—and a mighty good-looking job."

"MALCO" Greenhouse Paints

So wrote a satisfied user recently. And we have others' letters like it. You will think equally well of Malco Paints, whether for interior or exterior use—the real paint investment of the year for greenhouse use.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

RETURNING TO BOILER.

In using a 60-horsepower boiler, where you cannot dig twelve feet deep to place the boiler so as to operate by gravity and where you have no electricity, and when you want to operate on low-pressure steam up to about twelve pounds, what way would you suggest to get the condensed water back into the boiler? Is there some automatic device which would do away with watching a gauge glass?

Are we right when we understand that when the boiler is on the same level with the greenhouse, we can have a sunken steel tank and pump from there to the boiler? Do you know of any automatic device that can be attached to a gas or gasoline engine? Is it common practice to use the boiler on the same level as the greenhouse? Is there a steam pump manufactured that will operate on low pressure; say, eight to ten pounds pressure? O. K. G.—O.

To return the water to the boiler under the conditions mentioned above, it would be advisable to use a steam trap. There are several forms on the market which are quite reliable.

Boilers are quite generally set on the same level as the floor of the greenhouse and the water is returned either by means of a steam trap, or the drip water returns by gravity to a tank, from which it is carried to the boilers by means of either an electric or a steam pump.

We do not know of any automatic device for use with gas or gasoline engines. Most of the steam pumps give satisfaction at ten pounds or over.

CONNECTING BOILER.

We have sent you a diagram of a greenhouse which we are intending to build. We should like to know how to connect our boiler and what size of pipe we shall need. How low should the boiler be placed in order to get a good circulation? The boiler has ten flat grates, three feet long and twenty-eight inches wide. H. H. W.—Mo.

Since the length of the boiler flues is not given, it is not possible to make an accurate estimate of the capacity of the boiler, but, judging from the size of the grate, it will be rated at about 2,400 square feet of hot water radiation. A house 16x60, with two feet of glass in one wall, will not require more than 475 square feet of radiation for 60 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. Unless other houses are to be added, a boiler with a grate twenty-two inches in diameter will be as large as required.

The circulation will be improved if Heating and Cooling Equipment for Florists.

How a Number of Florists Have Reduced Heating Costs

The presence of scale in steam boilers may easily increase fuel consumption 25% or more. Losses due to foaming, corrosion and pitting are of nearly equal moment.

Few florists have realized the extent of these losses. But, a number with whom we have treated the subject have overcome them through the adoption of Dearborn Scientific Water Treatment,—the treatment that is based on a laboratory analysis of the specific feed water to be remedied. Its use is simple; its results are sure; and its economies vital.

By inaugurating the use of Dearborn Treatment at the commencement of your heating season you will be able to keep the boilers free from scale throughout the winter—effecting an important fuel saving. Investigate now. See suggestion below.

Here's What You Do

Inform our representative or write us in a letter the following:

(1) Number and type boilers used.
(2) Type of heater in service.
(3) Number of hours' service per day.
(4) Purpose: whether for heating or power or both.
(5) Average pressure.
(6) Fuel used.
(7) Present condition of boilers.
(8) Source of water.

Send in clean (preferably new) gallon container sample of feed water as it enters boiler, to Dearborn Chemical Company, Laboratory, 1029-37 W. 35th St., Chicago, Illinois.

Here's How We Do It

By scientific methods of water analysis the actual amounts of all substances present are determined.

Silica and the calcium and magnesium salts are the principal scale-forming substances found in most waters, while the various salts of soda (sodium and potassium sulphates, carbonates, nitrates and chlorides) constitute the chief salts which produce foaming and corrosion.

The results obtained are incorporated in our report of analysis and form a basis for determining a formula for the treatment to be used.

Complete reports of analysis and recommendations are furnished without charge.

the boiler can be so placed that its highest point is lower than the returns and the lower it can be located the better will be the circulation.

No intimation regarding the temperature to be maintained is given, but for 60 degrees three 2½-inch flow pipes and eight 2-inch returns should be used. For 50 degrees use three 2-inch flow pipes and eight 1½-inch returns. Run the flow pipes downhill and carry one on each side wall plate and the other three feet below the ridge. Arrange three returns in each of three coils, except in the one on the back wall, where only two returns will be needed.

CONNECTING A BOILER.

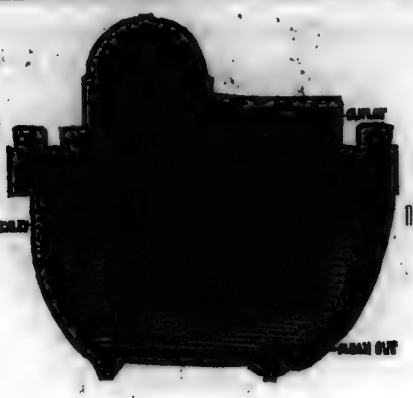
I have aWilks hot water boiler, 24x48 inches; there are two 2¼-inch holes in the top for flows and six 2¼-inch holes in the bottom for returns. Can I connect a 3-inch main flow to the two holes first mentioned and then take off a 2½-inch flow for each coil of 2-inch pipe? How should the returns be arranged? Should smaller pipe be used? Will this boiler be large enough to heat the three houses, illustrated on the sketch sent, to 55 degrees, with hard coal. One house is 9x40 feet, with 4-foot side walls. The second house is 12x45 feet, with 4-foot side walls, and the third house is 24x60 feet, with 4½-foot side walls. Will you inform me as to how I may best arrange my heating system?

A. B. M.—Tenn.

The writer is not sure regarding the heating capacity of the boiler, but if the figures represent the diameter of the grate and the height of the boiler respectively, it is judged that the boiler lacks capacity for heating the three houses, since a rating of about 1,200 square feet of radiation is needed.

The flow pipes can be handled by connecting them with a 3-inch header. Rather short nipples should be used for connecting both the flows and returns with the header. In the house 9x40, it would be advisable to use two 2½-inch flow pipes and four 2-inch returns. The house 12x45 requires two flows and five returns and the house 24x60 may be heated by the use of three 2½-inch flows and ten 2-inch returns.

FIXING PIPING ARRANGEMENT.



We have two greenhouses, with which we are having considerable trouble in heating. We have sent you diagrams of the houses and full details, in the hope that you can advise us as to the cause of our difficulty. The larger house, 18x76, is piped with 716 feet of 2-inch pipe and 978 feet of 1¼-inch pipe, running from a 3-inch main leading from the boiler. The distance from the boiler to the greenhouse is forty-five feet. The return is a 3-inch pipe. The boiler has a firebox whose grate is 24x24 and eighteen inches high.

The smaller house is 7x76 and is piped with 623 feet of 2-inch pipe, including feed and return pipes. This pipe feeds and returns into the larger house.

So far we have been unable to get 45 degrees and we believe that by taking out two coils of 2-inch pipes, each having four lengths forty-five feet long, we can heat the house to 45 degrees in zero weather. Is there too much piping in the house?

F. F. S.—N. Y.

Nothing is stated that shows the relative number of flow and return pipes or will do wonders to keep your coal consumption down to the minimum. It captures condensation—quickly—before it saps the energy of your steam. It keeps your steam dry and hot.

Fisher Steam Trap is well known and tremendously popular in the greenhouse field. Its extra large capacity enables it to handle larger volume of condensate. Oftentimes it has proven itself able to do the work of two ordinary traps.

Valve and seat are located at top of trap, away from all sediment. Bucket is so shaped as to insure a perfect water seal at all times.

It is urged that you write for our book "THE FISHER TRAP." It is a well illustrated and interesting story of the superiority of this steam saver.

their arrangement, and it cannot be determined whether the radiation is properly arranged or not.

Judging from the amount of pipe listed above, there is a surplus of radiation in both of the houses, but if it is properly arranged it should increase rather than lower the temperature of the houses. It is also a mistake to use 1¼-inch pipe in houses more than 50 feet long, although we doubt if that has much to do with the trouble in this case.

It is judged that the principal trouble is that the boiler is too small for the amount of radiation, especially as there must be more than 100 square feet of radiation in the mains outside of the greenhouse. We have no way of determining the rating of the boiler, except from the size of the grate, but it is certainly not more than 1,000 square feet and is probably not over 900 feet. From this it is customary to make a deduction of nearly fifty per cent when soft coal is to be used and twenty-five per cent for hard coal, so that for the best results the boiler should not carry more than 500 to 600 square feet with soft coal, and 700 or 800 feet with hard coal, including the mains.

Judging from the radiation listed, the boiler now is carrying 1,350 to 1,400 square feet of radiation, or about double its capacity. Another difficulty comes from attempting to supply anything like the above radiation with one 3-inch flow pipe. The present boiler and the main flow and return pipes are about right for the larger house and we advise either putting in a boiler with a 28-inch grate for the two houses, or adding a boiler with a 20-inch grate for the small house. At any rate, 2½-inch flow and return pipes, or better yet, 3-inch, should be run for this house.

For radiation use three 2-inch flow pipes and nine returns for the wide house, and two flows and four 2-inch returns for the narrow house. This will practically use all of the 2-inch pipe, but there will be a surplus of 978 feet of 1¼-inch pipe.

PAINTING STEAM PIPES.

What is used to paint greenhouse heating pipes? Could one use white lead and oil or a good, easily mixed white paint? W. D. & S.—Ind.

The use of a white paint composed of white lead and oil is not advisable for painting steam pipes, for two good reasons. The paint will soon become discolored and will be far from attractive in appearance; if the pipes are given two or more coats, which will be necessary if they are to be kept from rusting, it will give the pipes a smooth surface, which will lessen their efficiency for heat-radiating purposes.

Instead of using lead and oil paint, it is suggested that you use equal parts of linseed oil and turpentine, together with a sufficient amount of lampblack to make a thin paint.

HEATING WITH STEAM.

We have mailed you a sketch of the greenhouses we are building. Kindly examine the plan and advise us how large a boiler will be required, if low pressure steam is used. We wish to grow vegetables. What is the highest temperature needed in vegetable houses? O. K. G. & N. C.—O.

The sketch shows four houses, 18½x 150 feet, and three others, respectively 11x100, 20x100 and 30x100 feet. These houses are built together without partitions and the outside houses have five feet of glass and two feet of concrete in the outside walls. The temperature required for vegetables varies from 40 to 65 degrees or more, according to the species to be grown. Of course, the size of boiler and the amount of radiation required will depend on the temperature desired in the houses. For an average of 60 degrees it is suggested that you use a boiler rated at 60 horsepower, although a somewhat smaller boiler might answer. To heat one of the 18½-foot houses to 60 degrees, it would be advisable to use one 2½-inch flow pipe

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

There was a slight improvement in business last week. The coming of the Rochester industrial exposition and the horse show with its social functions has stimulated trade. Floral displays for stores and shops and fall openings have helped trade, too. Asters are much improved, and so are gladioli. Columbia and Ophelia roses are excellent. Carnations are still scarce and poor in quality. Sweet peas are about at an end and their quality is poor.

Rochester Exposition.

The Rochester industrial exposition and flower show opened September 4 and will run through until September 9. Building No. 3 at the Industrial Exposition park was entirely given over to the flower show. The walls and ceiling were covered with latticework of white, hung with southern smilax and pink roses. Evergreen trees and arbor-vitæs were used for background around the outer edges. The park greenhouses of the Rochester park board had an exhibit of palms, ferns and tropical plants, arranged under the supervision of John Dunbar. At the entrance an artistic rockery was arranged, with tropical plants in the background.

C. J. McCarthy's display was composed of fancy named gladioli. Schum Bros. exhibited named gladioli. Among the best were Mrs. Dr. Norton, Peace, American Beauty, Schwaben, Herada, etc., some sixty vases in all.

George T. Boucher had a display of fancy gladioli and asters, including a bed of growing asters.

James Vick's Sons had a general exhibit of perennials, annuals, gladioli and asters.

Hart & Vick displayed phlox, helianthus, statice, gypsophila, gaillardias, buddleias, rubrum lilies, zinnias, asters, delphiniums, scabiosas, salpiglossis, physostegias and gladioli.

Joseph Harris showed asters, gladioli and perennials; Jacob Thomann & Sons, gladioli and asters; Charles W. Curtis, asters, gladioli and orchids.

F. Schlegel & Son had a collection of perennials, asters, gladioli, etc.

Harry Davis, Buena Vista Gardens, displayed gladioli; the varieties were: Schwaben, America, Liebesfeuer, Peace, L'Immaculee and American Beauty.

At the entrance of the paddocks Hart & Vick placed a huge veranda box, seventy-five feet long, filled with geraniums, petunias, coleus and vinca vines. The jumps were mounds of growing red asters. At the entrances for the horses were screens of arbor-vitæ trees. Huge vases of pink, yellow and red gladioli were placed at various angles on the field.

Arthur Newborn had his usual display of helichrysums, gypsophila, statice of various colors and also about twenty baskets of perpetual grasses and flowers and polychrome weeds.

Felix Alberts' exhibit included gladioli, perennials, asters and a variety of annuals.

There was a large number of amateur exhibitors, in addition to the professional florists.

The out-of-town exhibitors were N. A. Hallauer, Webster, N. Y., fancy named gladioli and show dahlias; L. B. Bryant, Newark, N. Y., gladioli and asters; William Purple, Canandaigua, N. Y., fancy named gladioli; Joseph Harris, Coldwater, N. Y., perennials, annuals and gladioli.

Various Notes.

Word has been received of the safe arrival in England of Horace J. Head. He had a pleasant journey.

William L. Keller and family have returned from Cranberry lake, in the Adirondacks.

Miss Lillian Wheeler is back from Atlantic City and New York.

Edwin P. Nelson is on a motor trip to the Thousand islands.

Two new silver cups have been added to the prize cups to be awarded to the best floral exhibits at the flower show. They were donated by the Rochester Rose Society and the Rochester Garden Club.

The Rochester Floral Co. has some fine pots of asters and Primula obconica, which are finding ready sale.

The Wilson family had a picnic at Sea Breeze, Friday, September 1.

Mrs. Edith Bobpsie is spending her vacation in Poconto, Can. E. C. A.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

Perhaps the least said about the market the better. It is certain that business has seldom or never been so poor. There are floods of outdoor flowers on a market with little demand. The few salable carnations move fairly well, but good roses are going to the trash box daily.

Various Notes.

Local florists are much interested in a new heating system being installed by Ben Boldt. Considerable economy is claimed for the new system. Ben Boldt, Sr., is spending a vacation in their mountain home on Chicago creek, above Idaho Springs.

J. Roberts, of the Roberts Rose Co., is stalled by the railroad strike in Buffalo, N. Y., where he is visiting his mother.

G. L. Roberts, of the Elitch Gardens

Florists' Pots

YORK, PA.

Co., recently spent a short vacation in Glenwood Springs.

Charles Meyers is still in Chicago.

J. R. Watson, of Grand Junction, Colo., was a visitor last week.

The Holly Floral Co. sustained considerable loss in a recent hail storm. All the glass on the west slopes was broken, amounting to about 2,000 lights. Stock was cut by falling glass; also several benches of mums that were unprotected were severely damaged. The N. A. Benson place lost considerable glass in the same storm. George Brenkert is also reported to have had some loss.

Ernest Coole is glazing a new house for Charles France. The house has been built and planted for some time, but glazing has been put off until danger of hail was past. R. E. H.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business has kept up well, especially funeral work. Flowers are plentiful, but large quantities are shipped in nearly every day. Asters are in better supply than is usual at this time of year. Roses and carnations are good for this time of year.

Various Notes.

Julius Niednagel is finishing three houses, two of them being large and the full length of the others. Business is good with this firm.

The Blackman Floral Co. reports a big business. The new store is the equal of any this side of New York, so traveling men say.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann is doing her usual large amount of funeral work. She is buying heavily from Chicago.

The Lockyear Floral Co. is cutting some nice roses. The carnations are improving in quality. This firm has about doubled the planting of carnations and roses for this season.

Karl Zeidler is not expected home from Europe until October.

Royston & Fenton have been cutting some good asters.

Paul Halbrooks, of Newark, O., and his wife and son are visiting his parents and friends here. E. L. F.

Paterson, N. J.—McCabe the Florist has opened his new shop at 368 Grand street. This place is large and commodious, and is well equipped.

CYCLAMEN PLANTS
READY NOW.

We can emphatically recommend them as a superior grade of plants, inasmuch as we have specialized On CYCLAMEN for years and have constantly improved our strain and methods of growing.

Through the use of a specially prepared compost, we have produced wonderful root action and a fine foliage, in fact we have never produced a finer lot of plants of the very best known varieties.

We have broken all records this year in the sale of plants and seedlings and have even shipped in full carload lots to eastern points.

Our plants positively have no trace or sign of the mite or any other diseases CYCLAMEN are subject to.

Orders booked in rotation.

WHITE HYBRID DELPHINIUMS.

Several years ago Wm. Toole, Sr., discovered a plant among some Delphinium Formosum which bore pure white flowers. Since then he has crossed them with choice hybrids and selected from the best of these.

In general habit of growth they are like a good strain of hybrids of the blue color. Some of them are double though most are single, some have dark centers but most are pure white.

The plants we offer have all been selected and marked while in flower and no inferior specimens are sent out.

Price for strong selected plants, carefully packed, 35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100, $225.00 per 1000.
WILLIAM TOOLE & SON,
Garry-nee-Dule, Baraboo, Wis.

For many years we have given special attention to the betterment of Delphiniums and we feel confident that no better plants or better strain can be had anywhere. Ask the florists who have forced our stock.

Belladonna, strong 1-yr., $7.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000; Belladonna, strong 2-yr., $10.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000; Bellamosa, strong 1-yr., $7.00 per 100; English Hybrids, fine strain, $10.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

250 at 1000 rate. We will be pleased to book your order and make reservations for you. Also a good list of other hardy plants.
Joseph F. Martin Nurseries, Painesville, O.

"PLANT CULTURE."
FOURTH EDITION—444 pages.
By George W. Oliver.
A working handbook of everyday practice for the florist and gardener. This work covers practically all the known plants cultivated in the garden and home grounds, together with those of the greenhouse and conservatory, and with still more thoroughness those grown for everyday commercial purposes. The treatment includes a thorough elucidation of all the main points having to do with plant culture, such as budding, grafting, potting, soils, watering, seed sowing, hybridization and cultivation. Insect pests and plant diseases are taken care of in a special chapter.
Price, postpaid, $3.65.

123 WEST FOURTH

WILLIAMSPORT,

King Construction Co.,
North Tonawanda, N. Y.
Gentlemen:

We are sending a few pictures that we had taken recently showing the range of houses you have built for us from time to time. As you know, we have five houses 28x250' and also a propagating house which were purchased through your Scranton representative, Mr. T. J. Nolan.

The houses are planted primarily to roses, carnations, mums and a general line for our retail business.

We are very much pleased with the houses and believe them to be all that one could ask for. They are of first-class workmanship and materials, are strong, well put together and produce a minimum of shade. Modern high-grade houses of this type go a long way toward producing the high-grade stock that we have been sending out.

When we build another house, it will be a King.

Yours very truly,
W. J. Evenden's Sons

These are the two Harvey houses we furnished materials for, first. They are located on their famous old historic property, at Brandywine Summit, just a stone's throw from where the Revolutionary battle of Brandywine was fought.

This is the plan of the three Harvey houses. Number 3 is the new one and 4 and 5, additions made, so the group will all be the same length.

If you chanced to read a recent Ad. of ours, telling of Joseph Neus' Carnation House, you will recall that one of the things he was particularly satisfied about, in his dealing with us, was that the price was right, right at the start.
The first price was the last price.
It was the last price, because we gave him our last price, first.

Three years ago, Alban Harvey & Sons ordered two houses from us for exactly the same reason.
Our price remained exactly the same from the start to the finish.
It was our best bottom price.
It was the lowest price for which we could furnish the kind of greenhouse materials these men wanted.

Recently they concluded to build another house, 336 feet long.
We gave them another first-and-last figure.
They signed the contract, regardless of whether our price was more or less than any other.
We like to feel that they did it because they not only have found our houses to be worth every dollar they cost, but because they like our way of doing business.

Over sixty years ago, the elder Mr. Hitchings established the business on the basis of pleasant dealing and a dollar of value for every dollar.
We still believe his ideas are the right ones to follow.
If you are of the same mind, just remember that we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

Which Side are You on?

Profits

The Grower on this side is ever on the lookout for improved methods of planting. When he builds, he studies latest construction methods.

He does not overlook the fact that there is a Standard Steel Frame House on the market for the same price as the old semi-iron or pipe frame house.

When you build, you owe it to yourself to have a talk with American Greenhouse Service men. They will be more than glad to give complete information on the Steel-framer.

Losses

The man with the balance on this side does not know of the latest methods of greenhouse builders. He does not realize that just as he would like to build a brick house for the same price as a frame house, he can build a No. 1 Steel Frame Greenhouse for the same price as the No. 2 Types.

The AGMCO Organization want you to study every kind of greenhouse construction before you build. Then they know you will be satisfied that AGMCO Houses are best.

Come in, and have a talk with us. Our experts are always ready to help you.

These are the two Harvey houses we furnished materials for, first. They are located on their famous old historic property, at Brandywine Summit, just a stone's throw from where the Revolutionary battle of Brandywine was fought.

This is the plan of the three Harvey houses. Number 3 is the new one and 4 and 5, additions made, so the group will all be the same length.

The House That Breitenstrater Built at Dayton, Ohio

He used to be a carpenter, so he knew a good bit about materials and building.
So when he decided to go into the growing-business, he bought his Semi-Iron materials from us and erected the house himself.
Did the same thing with two more.

When he decided to have one of our big wide iron framers of the Number One Construction he at first kind of hesitated about erecting it himself. He finally concluded that he couldn't stand about and see some one else putting up any buildings for him.
So he and his son with one helper did it all.

"In the entire framework with its thousands of rivet holes," he declares, "there was only one that was not exactly right, almost to a hair."

He talked much about "the simplicity and strength of every inch of the construction."
Says that when you successfully combine simplicity and strength, you have what building engineers of all kinds are always seeking to accomplish.

In a couple of weeks or so we will show you some of these construction points in their simplicity and strength.

CHICAGO

AMERICAN BULB CO.

172 N. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO, ILL.

To Florists who have entrusted their orders for French Bulbs to us— we wish to prove here by showing our arrivals that we fulfilled our part of the contract.

Against advance orders we arranged for and received:—

235	Cases	by	Steamer	Providence
386	"	"	"	Canada
1907	"	"	"	Britannia
886	"	"	"	Patria
343	"	"	"	Braga

We provided against customers' orders, but accepted changes in orders without complaint. We reduced our profits to bring down the cost to our customers, to enable them to take all or part of their bulbs and make a profit. We are delivering the best true type Grandiflora Paper White Narcissus at very low prices considering this year's high cost in France.

We hold many letters from customers complimenting us on our actions and assuring us of their future orders, knowing we have proven dependable under the most severe year ever known in the French Bulb industry.

We know that customers do not give orders with any thought that they will find themselves deprived of their bulbs later just because prices were advanced due to crop failure. We provided for our customers' needs and accepted without protest what changes they made in their orders.

We hold one record week of selling to new customers 480,000 bulbs. We feel confident these orders had originally been given to someone who did not provide for them and then, when the buyers found they had misplaced their confidence, they looked to us for their needs.

Reductions made on orders we held enabled us to accommodate these new buyers. Space is limited to publish the recommendations we hold for the quality we delivered and promptness in our service.

We have a few more Paper Whites to sell and solicit your order.

Guaranteed True Type. Immediate Shipment.

Paper White Grandiflora, French Grown

The following is extract from a letter received from our French Representative:—

"We know this—we have been able to give you bulbs at the lowest price which has been paid, giving you merchandise that will flower certainly well. You have received no bulbs of the doubles. All Narcissi sent you have a flower in them. We are sure you will have no complaints from your customers, as they are receiving TRUE GRANDIFLORA, which is the large flower type. We have, like every year, given you bulbs containing good flower centers. The 12 ctm. bulbs are likewise as good. We feel confident that in spite of the bad season and very short crop, you will receive favorable reports from your customers who buy your bulbs."

The well known scarcity of Florists' Bulbs in general suggests the advisability of early purchase. Prices on many varieties will undoubtedly move forward as the season advances.

VIOLET

Frey's Fragrant

THIS variety is a sport of the variety California. The foliage and color resemble Gov. Herrick. However, Frey's Fragrant is twice as productive as Herrick, producing longer and stronger stems, larger blooms and is fragrant. Frey's Fragrant comes in bloom in October and the last season we had them for Mothers' day, six weeks after all other Violets were out of the market in this vicinity. It does well in any soil that will produce good carnations and we find the best temperature for this variety is from 45° to 50°. Every grower of violets in this vicinity that has seen Frey's Fragrant is growing this variety to the exclusion of all others.

We offer strong plants from 2½ to 3-inch pots at

Save Coal?—Peas

The demand for well grown sweet peas is always active. Sown in October and November, grown cold until February, fancy flowers from Valentine's Day on will be produced at a comparatively low fuel cost. Look over those mum beds today, figure on an ounce of seed to twenty-five linear feet of row and mail us a list of your needs. Stocks are complete and orders are being mailed promptly. You will not go wrong with any variety in this list. We grow all of them in quantity. If you wish any further information, write us; we have been specializing a good many years in this line.

The Ball Calendula

We gladly announce the arrival of another supply of hand-picked seed, permitting us to care for all orders promptly. This is another coal saving crop and, in the case of our strain, a profitable one. It is of extra strong growth, producing long-stemmed, large, uniformly double flowers, of a rich, clear, orange color.

To make certain these characteristics were not due to our local conditions we placed trials with a number of growers; the following experiences being typical of all:

Terre Haute, Ind.,
July 18, 1922.

Mr. Geo. J. Ball,
Glen Ellyn, Ill.

My dear Mr. Ball:

We consider your new Calendula quite remarkable, particularly as to its doubleness. The plants which you furnished us last year bloomed much longer and with a greater number of blooms than any other Calendula we have ever used.

Yours very truly,
J. W. Davis Company,
By O. K. Owen.

Geneva, Ill.,
Feb. 11, 1922.

Mr. Geo. J. Ball,
Glen Ellyn, Ill.

My dear Mr. Ball:

In answer to your inquiry as to how I like your Calendula, I can say without fear of contradiction that it is the finest Calendula on the market. The color is perfect, flowers large and very prolific. I have grown it for two years and feel more than satisfied with it. If I could get as many dollars out of the rest of my glass as I do out of the Calendula, I would be more than pleased. Wishing you the greatest success.

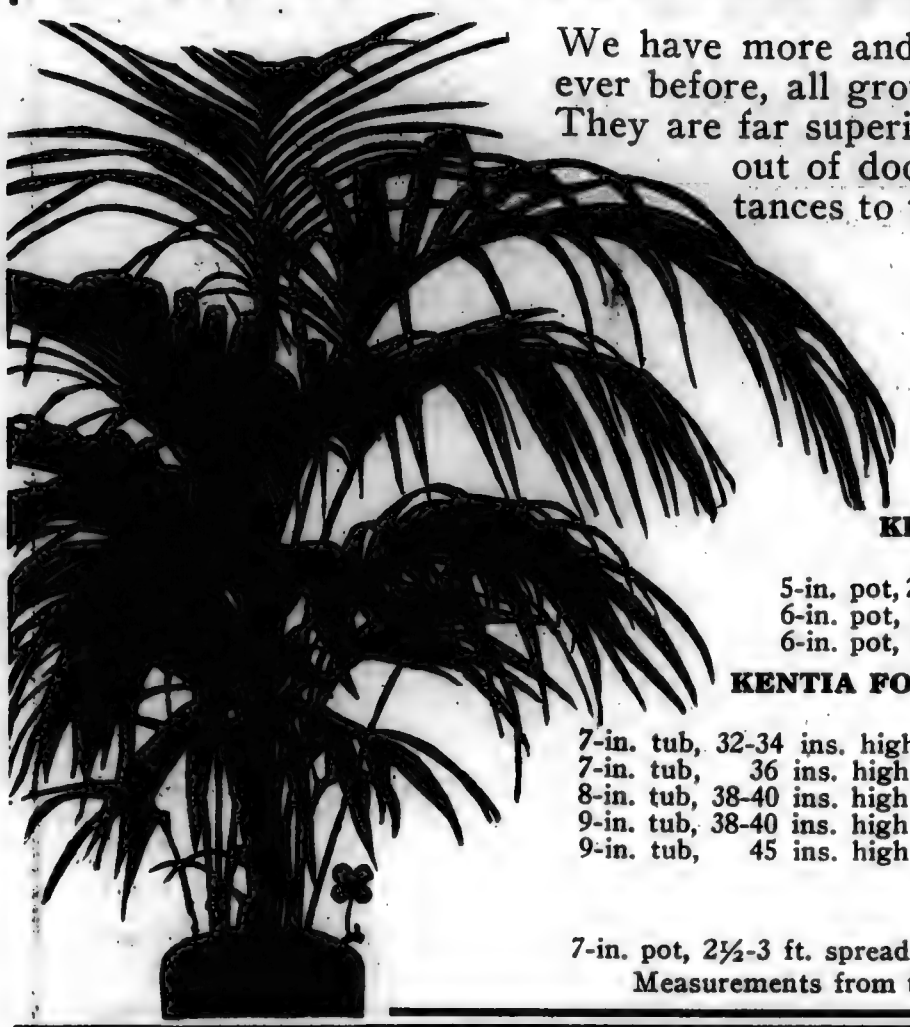
Very truly yours,
RIVERBANK GREENHOUSES,
Charles S. McCauley, Manager.

Nashville, Tenn.,
July 5, 1922.

Mr. Geo. J. Ball,
Glen Ellyn, Ill.

Dear Sir:

It gives us great pleasure to recommend your new extra large and double Calendula, which we tried out for you last year. This Calendula is much better than the ordinary type, as it not only produces more blooms, but they are of so much better quality. It is a very great improvement in the Calendula family.



Thanking you for the seed and with best wishes, we are

Yours very truly,
JOY FLORAL CO.

OUR FALL CATALOGUE

We take this opportunity to advise our many friends and customers that we have prepared a much larger and finer stock of Craig Specialties for immediate or future delivery. Any grower having room would do well at this time to stock up on Craig Quality Crotons, Dracaenas, Arecas, Cyclamen, Ferns, Pandanus. We can make up attractive collections of assorted stock for the retail store man. Would suggest that you place your orders at once and we will ship at any time you state. All orders will have prompt and careful attention.

CROTONS

The Croton, with its highly colored foliage, is indispensable during fall and winter. We have the largest and most complete collection of Crotons in the world, carrying at the present time for fall sales over 50,000 in 100 varieties, all of the very highest quality and brilliantly colored.

Immediate Delivery

2¼-inch pots, $20 per 100.
3-inch pots, $35 per 100.
4-inch pots, $60 per 100.
8-inch pots, $5 each, made up, very handsome.

DRACAENA TERMINALIS

Exceptionally well colored.
2¼-inch pots, $20 per 100.
3-inch pots, $35 per 100.
4-inch pots, $65 per 100.
5-inch pots, $15 per dozen.

DRACAENA LINDENII

Same type as Massangeana, but with the golden stripes on the outer edges of the leaf.
4-inch pots, $12 per dozen, $100 per 100.
6-inch pots, $2 and $2.50 each.
8-inch pots, $4 and $5 each.

DRACAENA LONGII

4-inch pots, $3 each; 6-inch pots, $5 each.

DRACAENA INDIVISA

5½-inch pots, $6 per dozen; 7-inch pots, $12 per dozen.

BEGONIAS

September and Later Delivery.

BEGONIAS GLORY OF CINCINNATI AND MELIOR

These varieties are endorsed by all the leading retail florists. They will hold the flowers much better than Gloire de Lorraine.
4-inch pots, $12 per dozen, $75 per 100 (heavy).
5-inch pots, $125 per 100 (heavy).
6-inch pots, $24 per dozen (heavy).

BEGONIA KONKURENT

A greatly improved Begonia Cincinnati. This variety is a German introduction, and we have tried it for three years. It makes a much better shaped plant than Cincinnati and is free flowering.
4-inch pots, $75 per 100; 5-inch pots, $125 per 100; 6-inch pots, very heavy, $24 per dozen.

NEPHROLEPIS

We are the largest growers of Nephrolepis Ferns in the country. In fact, we are headquarters for them.

NEPHROLEPIS NORWOOD

The most beautiful form of Nephrolepis to date; graceful, compact and symmetrical, a vigorous, healthy grower. All growers are invited to inspect it at our Norwood Greenhouses. Strong plants.
2¼-inch pots, $2 per dozen, $12 per 100, $100 per 1000.
4-inch pots, $6 per dozen, $45 per 100.
Orders filled strictly in rotation.

NEPHROLEPIS VERONA

Makes a good plant in all sizes. Much finer frond than any crested sort outside of N. Smithii. The fronds are carried on a heavy, wiry stem. We consider it one of the best of the newer introductions.
2¼-inch pots, $10 per 100, $90 per 1000; 4-inch pots, $40 per 100; 6-inch pots, $12 per dozen, $90 per 100.

NEPHROLEPIS ELEGANTISSIMA COMPACTA

A dwarf, compact form of Nephrolepis Elegantissima, each plant making an ideal shape.
4-inch pots, $5 per dozen, $35 per 100.
6-inch pots, $12 per dozen, $90 per 100.

NEPHROLEPIS TEDDY JUNIOR

Fine young plants from 2½-inch pots, $10 per 100, $90 per 1000.
6-inch pots, heavy, $12 and $15 per dozen.
8-inch pots, $24 per dozen.
11-inch tubs, $4, $5 and $6 each.

NEPHROLEPIS HARRISII OR ROOSEVELT

6-inch pots, $12 per dozen; 8-inch pots, $2 and $2.50 each; 11-inch tubs, $5 and $6 each.

NEPHROLEPIS SCOTTII

2¼-inch pots, $10 per 100, $90 per 1000.
4-inch pots, $35 per 100.
6-inch pots, $12 per dozen, $90 per 100.
8-inch pots, $24 and $30 per dozen.

PALMS

ARECA LUTESCENS

Perfect plants with rich, dark green foliage. Our stock is grown cool and hard. It is in splendid condition and will surely give satisfaction. Large sizes are very scarce this year. We have the largest stock in all sizes in the country.
7-inch pots, made up, $5 and $6 each.
8-inch pots, made up, $7.50 and $10 each.
10-inch tubs, made up, $12.50 each, 5½ to 6 feet tall.
11-inch tubs, made up, $15 each.
13-inch tubs, $25 each.

Adiantum Lemkesii

IMPROVED GLORIOSA

4-inch pots, $10 per dozen, $75 per 100.

MISCELLANEOUS

OTAHEITE ORANGES

A fine stock of this wonderful Christmas plant.
2¼-inch pots, for growing on, $20 per 100, $190 per 1000.
Plants in fruit, September delivery, 25c per fruit.
Plants in fruit ripened, November and December, 35c per fruit.

ERICA MELANTHERA

5½-inch pots and 6-inch pots, $18, $24 and $30 per dozen.
7-inch pots, $36 per dozen.

ASPARAGUS PLUMOSUS

2¼-inch pots, $5 per 100, $45 per 1000.

—at the Indianapolis Show

There were 12 of those big fellows, some with 140 flowers on them as big as your head. They all came from here. That Cleveland expert, Lars Anderson, grew them.

We have more of those big ones from the field at $7.50 apiece, and commercial sizes, any amount from 4, 5, 6, 7-inch pots and larger—your favorite variety, by the thousand.

Our last year's stock was very good. Some claimed, "Not a blind shoot in them," and this year's stock looks just as good if not better. No secret in growing them, just common sense. Anderson grows 18,000 and has not enough blind wood for cuttings—got to buy them and buys them here.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

DOING ONE'S BEST WITH DUTCH BULBS

In the present condition of the bulb market, when Dutch bulbs are invariably high in price and sometimes low in quality, skill in forcing them is specially desirable. The bulbs are much too precious to be wasted by mistakes in culture. This grower tells how to avoid such mistakes.

By PETER PEARSON.

WE ARE fast approaching the time of the year when more serious matters than vacations and fishing trips must occupy our minds. This is true particularly of those of us who grow plants, for this is the time when we begin to give serious thought to the varieties of stock that are to be grown, and sold the next winter and spring. Among the items that come in for consideration at this time, the so-called Dutch bulbs occupy a prominent place. Many of the bulbs have already arrived and are in the hands of the dealers. If your order has not been placed, you should lose no time in doing so, before the more desirable varieties are exhausted.

Before I proceed to discuss the selection of varieties and their particular culture, I shall give here a few general directions that will apply to all varieties of Dutch bulbs.

Buying the Bulbs.

First of all, let me advise you to buy only the most suitable varieties for your particular needs, because success in bulb forcing starts with the selection of the right varieties. If the varieties are correctly chosen, you have a good foundation on which to work. Of course, the results depend, also, on the quality of the bulbs, as well as on the handling of them after you get them.

When the bulbs are received, if they cannot be planted in a few days, put them in a cool but not drafty place, to remain there until you are ready to plant them. You should not fail to make a thorough examination of your bulbs immediately on their arrival, to determine whether they have suffered any damage in transit. This will give your claim much better standing, if it should be necessary to make one, than if you waited until the flowering season to discover whether the flower germs in the bulbs of narcissi and tulips had been injured in transit.

Dissecting the Bulbs.

I have never found hyacinth flowers affected by any cause not determinable by internal examination. It is fortunate that most of the Dutch bulbs are so constituted that by examination we can ascertain their quality.

The miniature leaves and buds in hyacinths, tulips and narcissi are formed when the bulbs mature, and continue to develop from the time the bulbs are lifted out of the ground. In the early varieties these embryo buds are considerably advanced and are readily visible, while in the late ones it sometimes requires close examination to distinguish the buds from the leaves at this early date; hence careful examination is necessary to determine the flowering quality of the bulbs that you buy.

A sure way of getting at the real facts as to the condition of your bulbs is to cut a few bulbs in the following way: Take a narcissus bulb, place your knife crosswise of the tip in the center and cut through the bulb; this will split the leaves and the buds at right angles to the flat side of the leaves, unmistakably revealing the separation of buds and leaves. If a bud is healthy, it will show a yellowish color, corresponding in intensity to the color of the matured flower of the particular variety you are cutting. In the white-flowered N. poetaz and N. ornatus the yellow stamen will appear decidedly bright.

If you discover a black spot where the bud should be, the bulb will not flower, as the bud is then dead.

Proof that Bud Is Dead.

A tulip bulb should be cut by placing the knife on the tip of the bulb, at right angles to the flat side of the bulb, and cutting downward to the center of the bottom of the bulb. The pale yellow stamen of the flowers will show, and under a magnifying glass the petals of the flowers will be visible. If a black or dark gray spot appears where the bud should be, the flower is dead; this spot will be large or small according to the size of the bud at time of injury. Therefore close inspection is advised, according to the detailed method suggested.

The next step is the planting. So far as the number of bulbs to a pot or a flat is concerned, I shall pass that over, as that is more of a local question, for each grower to determine according to his market requirements, but a word about the soil may not be amiss. Many think that almost any kind of soil will do for bulb growing, but that is not the case. The soil should be from an old compost, containing no fresh manure, either natural or chemical, as both are injurious to the bulbs. By all means avoid soil that was used last year for growing bulbs, for such soil would surely invite disaster. The writer had experience in that line about ten years ago, when, through an oversight, soil of this kind was used for covering some bulbs. The result was that sprouts of the tulips and hyacinths were either partly or totally burned off. It also became evident that this soil had generated an unusual amount of heat, for the sprouts that survived were advanced in growth from four to five inches ahead of those under fresh soil.

Storage of Planted Bulbs.

After being planted, the bulbs should be placed in a cool cellar or bulb house. If no such place is available, they can be put outside and covered with about six inches of soil. If placed in a cellar or bulb house, they should be gone over frequently to see that none of the pots or flats get dry. In the northern states additional covering should be provided, in the form of straw or manure, to prevent the bulbs from freezing. While moderate freezing does not injure the bulbs, it is both unpleasant and expensive to bring in bulbs from a frozen bed, even if you do not count the loss in breakage in so doing. I have found by actual test that the cause of hyacinth bulbs "spitting" their buds was excessive freezing before the bulbs were thoroughly rooted. In some seasons hyacinth bulbs root quite unsatisfactorily; therefore take the precaution to cover them well, especially if they were planted late.

Now we come to the treatment of the bulbs in forcing. Here is where success depends on careful attention to details. More bulbs are spoiled by untimely attempts to force them than in any other way.

Forcing Narcissi.

Among the varieties of narcissi commonly used by florists for forcing are the following, named in the order of their flowering, from early to late: Golden Spur, Von Sion, Sir Watkin, Emperor, Princess and bicolor Victoria. It is a set rule with us not to start Golden Spur until after January 1, when we place the bulbs at once in a temperature of 60 degrees. We start Sir Watkin about January 12; Emperor, about January 18; bicolor Victoria, about February 1. Those dates are safe for bulbs planted not later than November 10. If narcissi are brought in too early and without sufficient root system, they are likely to go blind or the buds will remain down in the bulbs, while the foliage will continue to grow. Therefore, watch your first lot of narcissi for the first ten days. If the buds stretch with the leaves, they are safe; otherwise remove them to a cool place and let them remain there, to come on slowly; loss will thus be prevented. Then bring in a fresh batch a few days later; they will come more quickly than the first batch, had they been left in a warm house.

At no time should narcissi be placed under a bench. They should be given full light continuously, except in the first few days, when some shade should be given in the form of a paper or cloth covering during sunny weather, until the leaves have taken on a natural green color. French-grown Trumpet major can be brought into the forcing house November 20; French-grown Golden Spur, December 15.

Forcing Early Tulips.

Later in these notes, I shall give a list of the best early-flowering tulips, as well as of Darwin tulips. The treatment of these tulips is as follows:

The earliest varieties may be brought in about Christmas week. A start at this early date will, even under the best conditions, result in the production of only short stems, while a start a week later will make a great difference in the length of the stems. They should be put in a totally dark place, in a temperature of 75 degrees, maintained steadily. Spraying must be done often enough to maintain a high humidity. Usually a week to ten days is sufficient for their development. When they are taken out, put them in a shady place, with a temperature from 15 to 25 degrees lower. This is to let them harden off, and take on the proper color in flower and foliage.

Treatment of Darwin Tulips.

The treatment of Darwin tulips is similar to that of narcissi, except that the Darwins can be taken into a temperature of 40 degrees as early as December 15. By January 1 the temperature should be increased 10 degrees, and by January 15 another 10 degrees. Darwin tulips will not stand hard forcing. They require all the sunshine and light that can be given them in midwinter. Do not place them under the benches or in any other heavily shaded place. The bulbs require an abundance of water during their entire time of active growth.

Hyacinths are not a success if taken in before January 15. Their treatment is the same as for the early tulips, with the exception that the hyacinths like a little drier atmosphere while in the forcing house.

This article would not be complete if I did not mention some of the peculiar conditions that affect the Dutch bulbs—conditions that we not infrequently encounter and sometimes are at a loss to explain.

Heat that Retards.

It is a well known fact that heat applied to the bulbs in their dormant state, or too early after planting, will retard their earliness of flowering. Hence the growers in Holland apply heat to their planting stock of tulips and narcissi for the purpose of retarding their flowering time in spring, so as to avoid the late spring frosts that sometimes occur. From this fact it is also reasonable to infer that bulbs shipped from Holland to the United States are liable to come in contact with sufficient heat to cause this process of retarding. I also believe that I am correct in stating, from information received, that some of the Dutch growers have only one warehouse in which to store both their planting stock and their export stock. It is reasonable, therefore, to assume that if the salable bulbs are not removed before the time comes for the heat treatment of the planting stock, occasionally the bulbs intended for sale may be left in the warehouse throughout such treatment. Stock so treated, if later sold and received by a florist, would not be fit for early forcing.

Peter Pearson.

Well Grown Hyacinths Always Appeal to Customers and May Be Used in a Variety of Ways.

Testing Small Lots.

Due to some such cause, we often find, to our great surprise, a lot of bulbs that will not force as early and readily as another lot of the same variety. This condition cannot be ascertained until the bulbs are brought in and actually tried for forcing. Therefore it is advisable to bring in a small test lot of each variety or of each lot of bulbs for trial. By watching their behavior, it can be determined which will force most easily, and these easy forcers are the ones that should be used for early flowering. Again, in an extremely wet growing season the bulbs do not seem to develop so strong a vitality, nor do they seem to withstand the journey to the United States so well, as if the weather had been dry during the maturing of the bulbs.

When we come to select varieties, experience has taught us not to grow too many different kinds, as an excessive number of varieties only causes a lot of work in keeping them separate and maintaining the proper balance in bloom at all times in each color division. I shall name the varieties in accordance with their flowering season; the first named are the earliest.

Selection of Early Tulips.

Single early-flowering tulips—Red, suitable for pots, Brilliant Star, Vermilion Brilliant, Belle Alliance and Couleur Cardinal; best for cut flowers, Cramoisi Brillant. Rose and pink, suitable for pots, Cullinan, Flamingo and Rose Luisante; suitable for cut flowers, Cullinan, La Reine, Rose La Reine, Flamingo, Le Matelas and Mme. Fryliinck. Yellow, for pots, Mon Tresor and Ophir d'Or; for cut flowers, King of the Yellows, Goldfinch, Pottebakker Yellow and Primrose Queen. Orange shades, for pots or cut flowers, Fred. Moore, Prince of Austria and Duchesse de Parma. White, for pots or cut flowers, Pelican, Mont Blanc, White Hawk and Pottebakker White. Carmine rose, Proserpine. Salmon rose, Max Havelaar. Red and yellow, Due de Berlin and Keizerskroon.

Double early-flowering tulips—Yellow, Couronne d'Or, Golden King and Tea rose. White, Boule de Neige. Pink, Lord Rosebery and Murillo. Red, Le Matador and Imperator Rubrorum. Red and yellow, Tournesol and Titian.

Those tulips designated for pots only are somewhat short to be used for cut flowers.

Darwins, Bybloems and Bizarres.

Darwin tulips—William Copeland, violet rose, the earliest of all commercial varieties; Pygmalion, Bartigon, Farncombe Sanders, Pride of Haarlem, Mme. Krelage and Ariadne. These varieties are all early and are reasonably priced. For those who like unusual colors, Dal Ongaro is a fine variety, having a white base, with lavender, violet and reddish rose petals and a good, stiff stem. Whistler, vivid crimson scarlet, with purplish velvety base, when open resembles the flower of a pansy; there are others with similar color, but none of them has the intense glare of this variety; it attracts immediate attention, whenever shown. Zulu is black.

There is one race of tulips that are not well known, but are worthy of attention for the unusually varied color of their flowers. These are the old Dutch florists' tulips, or bybloemen and bizarre tulips. Not many of them are adapted for commercial use, but the varieties I name herewith will be found suitable for midseason forcing: Black Boy, Bonaparte, Fancy, Flamboyante and Union.

Hyacinths in All Shades.

Hyacinths—Blue, Bismarck, Admiral Courbet, Grand Maitre and King of the Blues. Red and rose, Garibaldi, Gigantea, Gertrude, Lady Derby and Cardinal Wiseman. White, L'Innocence, La Grandesse and Correggio; the last-mentioned is a new white of exceptional merit. In hyacinths there are many other varieties that are desirable, but this list comprises the full color range, from light to dark blue and from light pink to dark red.

Having gone through the various stages of bulb growing and the selection of varieties, we now come to the other end of the season, when it sometimes becomes desirable to retard the flowering time of some of the bulbs in order to have some of the plants for the late holidays, particularly for Mothers' day, which in recent years has developed into a day that requires a greater variety and a better class of plants. Hence the retarding of bulbous stock for this day has become advisable, provided it can be done without risk of loss. After several years of experimenting, I have found that it is both practical and profitable to do this.

Hyacinths for Mothers' Day.

If you have hyacinths that you wish to hold for Mothers' day and you find that they are coming on too fast, they can be placed in a cold storage house, in a temperature of 34 degrees, and left there without injury for six weeks. All that is required is to have them well watered when placed there, and after that watering will be required every two weeks. Hyacinths can be placed in cold storage at any stage of their growth. Tulips must be placed in storage either before they have spread their foliage or after the flowers are about half developed. Narcissi can be placed in storage at any stage of their growth; the earlier they are put in, the longer they can be left before they are taken out.

In conclusion let me emphasize these points: Do not mistreat your bulbs, thinking that it will not make any difference, for it will. Do not let them get dry at any time. Cover them to keep them from hard freezing. If they are stored in a bulb cellar, keep the light away from them. If you have not the convenience of a specially built forcing house, do not set them on top of heating pipes; they will not tolerate such treatment. Do not blame the man who sold you the bulbs for all the failures that you may have.

HARTFORD, CONN.

At the recent opening of the Hartford Connecticut Trust Co., there were flowers in profusion—hundreds of baskets of roses, gladioli and other seasonable flowers. One florist worked his staff until the wee hours in filling all his orders for the affair. George Lane made thirty-five baskets and Spear & McManus, thirty, while other florists all had a good share of the business.

At the meeting of the Connecticut Horticultural Society September 8 preliminary arrangements were made for the annual flower show, September 14 and 15. All prominent florists are exhibiting at this show. The exhibition is being held at the old state house, an admirable location for the event. A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., has supplied several loads of palms and other decorative plants for the show, while W. W. Hunt has supplied many tubs of evergreens.

George T. Lane has made several changes in his large cold storage system. He is rapidly putting his store in first-class condition for the fall season.

James McManus, of Spear & McManus, started on his vacation September 11. He will be gone two weeks.

Cadwell & Jones have received a considerable number of Dutch bulbs, which are tastefully shown in the store.

V. Olmstead, manager at Coombs' Asylum street store, has some fine asters. He has the contract for supplying the Travelers' Insurance Co. with flowers at the company's convention, September 14 and 15. G. B. M.

NEW TARIFF

CONFERENCE TARIFF REPORT.

Changes Some Rates.

Several changes in rates of duty on commodities of interest to the trade were made by the conference committee in the tariff bill which was reported by the conferees September 12. The American valuation plan, sponsored by the House of Representatives, was rejected by the conferees, and all ad valorem rates in the new tariff will be based, as at present, upon the foreign valuation of the commodity imported. The committee, however, adopted the "flexible tariff" provisions of the bill practically as written by the senate. These authorize the president to increase duties to meet the extreme differences in cost of production here and abroad, to meet unfair methods of importation or sale of imported commodities, or to retaliate for restrictions imposed by foreign governments upon commodities destined for the United States. Following is a summary of these provisions of the bill affecting the trade as reported by the conferees:

Rates on Bulbs.

The Senate rates for commodities in paragraph 751 were adopted by the committee. These provide a duty of $2 per thousand for tulip, lily and narcissus bulbs, and lily of the valley pips; $4 per thousand for hyacinth bulbs; $1 per thousand for crocus bulbs; thirty per cent ad valorem for all other bulbs and roots, root stocks, clumps, corms, tubers and herbaceous perennials, imported for horticultural purposes, and forty per cent ad valorem for fresh or preserved cut flowers.

Nursery Stocks.

The committee agreed to a rate of twenty-five per cent ad valorem in lieu of the thirty per cent rate provided in the Senate bill for cuttings, seedlings and grafted or budded plants of deciduous or evergreen ornamental trees not specified, shrubs or vines, and all nursery or greenhouse stock not specially provided for. No other change was made in paragraph 752, which provided a rate of $2 per thousand for seedlings and cuttings of Manetti, multiflora, brier, rugosa and other rose stocks not more than 3 years old, and 4 cents each for rose plants, budded or grafted or grown on their own roots.

In paragraph 753 the House rate of $2 per thousand was agreed upon for seedlings, layers and cuttings of apple, cherry, pear, plum, quince and other fruit stocks, but a rate of twenty-five per cent ad valorem was substituted for the House rate of twenty per cent and the Senate rate of thirty per cent for grafted or budded fruit trees, cuttings and seedlings of grapes, currants, gooseberries or other fruit vines, plants or bushes.

Rates on Seeds.

In considering paragraph 760, the committee adopted the House rate of ½ cent per pound for castor beans, 32 cents per hundred pounds for poppy seed, 2 cents per pound for sunflower seed, and 3 cents per pound for apricot and peach kernels. The Senate rate of 40 cents per bushel of fifty-six pounds was adopted for flax seed.

In paragraph 761 the committee made no changes from the Senate bill, and the following rates will apply: Alfalfa, alsike clover and red clover, 4 cents per pound; crimson clover, millet and spring vetch, 1 cent per pound; white clover, 3 cents per pound; clover not specially provided for, timothy, hairy vetch and all other grass seeds not specially provided for, 2 cents per pound. No allowance is to be made for dirt or other impurities in such seeds.

In paragraph 762, two changes were made by the conferees. A rate of 10 cents per pound was agreed upon for cabbage seed, in lieu of the House rate of 12 cents and the Senate rate of 8 cents; 15 cents per pound for onion, in lieu of the House rate of 20 cents and the Senate rate of 10 cents. Other rates in the paragraph are: Beet (except sugar beet), mangelwurzel, carrot, parsnip, radish, turnip and rutabaga, 4 cents per pound; canary seed and mushroom spawn, 1 cent per pound; cauliflower, 25 cents per pound; celery and parsley, 2 cents per pound; kohlrabi, tree and shrub, 8 cents per pound; pepper, 15 cents per pound; kale, flower and all other garden and field seeds not specially provided for, 6 cents per pound.

FUEL OIL FACTS.

"The questions asked in daily intercourse with hundreds of customers for oil burning equipment," says a well-known fuel burner distributor, "indicate the liveliest interest in the subject, as well as considerable ignorance of facts which are every-day knowledge to the initiated.

"For instance, everyone asks if we burn 'crude oil,' not realizing that crude oil contains gasoline, kerosene, distillate and gas oil, all of which are too valuable to burn for heating purposes, as well as the residue, fuel oil, after the removal of these light ingredients.

"Crude oil never comes to market as such, but is purchased by the re-finer, who removes the light oils by evaporation, selling the residue, 'fuel oil,' for what it will bring, as it is a by-product.

"A fuel oil burner, to achieve permanent commercial success, must burn the heavy by-products commonly sold as fuel oil, for no other fuel can compare favorably with the cost of heating with coal.

"Another common question asked relates to the freezing of fuel oil in cold weather. The unprincipled salesman for an oil burner confined to light oils endeavors to frighten prospective purchasers by assertions that fuel oil solidifies in winter, clogs pipes and burners and causes frequent interruption to heat supply. The facts are that standard fuel oil is fluid at zero, and out of hundreds of household installations with outdoor storage tanks which have burned standard fuel oil for several winters, not a single interruption due to solidifying of oil or clogging of pipes has occurred.

"The reason is simple. The insurance and city regulations require that outdoor storage tanks be buried with their tops at least two and one-half feet below ground, and the frost line, or 32 degrees, seldom goes lower than six to eight inches. In addition, oil is one of the best heat insulators and if the upper surface of a tank of oil thickened, the lower portion, where the suction line draws its supply, would still be liquid, and as the level of oil receded it would be toward a higher temperature zone.

"In severely cold weather fuel oil deliveries in 1,000 and 1,500 gallon tank trucks are regularly made in a radius of twenty-five miles without the slightest unloading difficulties by sending the oil out warm from the dealers' tanks, which are readily heated by steam coils.

"How does the price of fuel oil vary throughout the season? Far less than coal or light oils. The price is based on crude oil prices as well as supply and demand, and for the last year has shown a maximum variation of 1 cent per gallon delivered, whereas kerosene and distillate have varied 5 cents per gallon.

"How about the supply of fuel oil? The latest reports show over 962,000,000 gallons in storage awaiting market and the amount in storage is increasing each month."

CELOSIA CHRYSANTHEFLORA.

Recently Developed Strain.

Celosias have been common garden flowers for decades and are familiar to all of us. Botanically there are two different types. What is known to botanists as C. argentea is labeled by seedsmen C. plumosa. The latter name is more descriptive than the former, since all the forms of the variety are of the plume shape, but few are silvery in color. This type includes the woolflower, one of the most popular forms of this flower. What is commonly termed cockscomb is botanically known as Celosia cristata. This has been grown in the garden for generations as a curiosity, the object being to secure as large a comb as possible on a dwarf plant.

Many forms of Celosia argentea have been developed, but C. cristata was neglected until S. Bryson Ayres, noticing certain attractive specimens in his seed field, saw the possibilities of this variety. He set about perfecting a strain which he has called C. Brysonia chrysantheflora. His object was to secure a compact, round head of flower which would resemble the head of the chrysanthemum, instead of the straggling, unattractive cockscomb. He aimed to combine with this form of flower a round, straight stem, strong enough to bear the large, heavy head, instead of the lath-shaped, knotty stem which so often forms on this plant.

Visitors to the Kansas City convention were amazed at the progress Mr. Ayres had made in perfecting this strain, although he declares he is still far from satisfied. A considerable share of the 100 acres which Mr. Ayres devotes to seed culture, on the outskirts of Kansas City, is given over to celosias, most of them of the improved Ayres strain. The decorative value of this flower has appealed strongly to florists who have seen it. In the autumn of 1921 the great department store of Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, was decorated with Celosia chrysantheflora during opening week. This display of the flower, which included thousands of blooms, created a demand from the florists who saw it, with the result that Poehlmann Bros. Co. has become Mr. Ayres' sole agent in Chicago and is shipping large quantities of this flower to the trade in the middle west.

For Drying.

In addition to its particular adaptability for use in large decorations, Celosia chrysantheflora has another quality that appeals to florists, its ability to be shipped long distances without the flower head being marred. Still more important is the fact that this celosia may be dried easily, and any stock which has not been sold while fresh may be hung up in a cool, dry place and so preserved, for sale later.

Mr. Ayres provided the following instructions for drying Celosia chrysantheflora:

"I find my variety, Celosia Brysonia chrysantheflora, dries much better than any other that I have ever seen. Even the wonderful pastel shades which I have introduced dry beautifully. I have lately had many comments from customers regarding their success with Celosia Brysonia chrysantheflora and they are anxious to know when to cut and how to dry them.

"They can be cut and dried any time from August 20 until frost comes. In our latitude frost seldom comes before the middle of October. We find a cool atmosphere aids them materially in drying. We use our seed barns and warehouses to dry our celosias. We keep the curtains drawn over the windows, in order to have semi-darkness. We are also careful to give plenty of ventilation.

"We cut the flowers with long stems and hang them from the ceiling head downward. We do not crowd the flowers, as this may cause them to heat and spoil. It seldom takes us more than fifteen days to have them perfectly dry. Of course, during damp weather it takes a little longer.

"A customer of ours just recently brought us a dozen specimens of Celosia Brysonia chrysantheflora which she had dried in a garage in less than two weeks' time. She had purchased them from us a year ago and the colors today are seemingly as vivid as the day the flowers were cut. It might be interesting to know that she kept them in water, using them as fresh cut flowers, for two weeks before she dried them. We mention this because a florist should make it plain to customers that they can use Celosia Brysonia chrysantheflora as a fresh cut flower and then dry it for use as an everlasting."

As They Grow.

In one of the accompanying illustrations may be seen S. Bryson Ayres himself, standing in front of his seed store, holding a bunch of Celosia chrysantheflora which was dried more than a year ago. This store, by the way, which is at 503 Walnut street, Kansas City, is managed by a brother-in-law of Mr. Ayres, Henry Wertheim, who directs the Ayres seed interests. Mr. Ayres says he feels fortunate in having a man of Mr. Wertheim's extensive seed knowledge and executive ability to aid him in conducting the large business which has been built up within the last few years.

The two other illustrations will give readers an accurate idea of the appearance of Celosia chrysantheflora, if they have not seen the blooms. One picture, a close-up view, shows the typical rounded, compact heads which it has been Mr. Ayres' aim to secure on plants of this variety. The other view, of the plants growing in the field, shows their habit of growth. It will be seen that most have the straight, round stem, but here and there is a reversion to the heavy, ungainly slab, which Mr. Ayres is gradually eliminating.

A wide variety of shades has been developed in Celosia chrysantheflora, all the way from a pale yellow to a deep maroon. One of the deepest maroon has been named "Philip Breitmeyer," in honor of the president of the F. T. D. The deep red shades seem to be most favored by florists, though Mr. Ayres thinks highly of some of his pastel shades as well.

WHITE'S HONOR ROLL.

Once a year the White Co., of Cleveland, manufacturers of a truck popular with the better class of florists, publishes a list of its machines that have run 100,000 miles or more. In the list of veteran trucks which have run more than 200,000 miles there is one operated by Baum's House of Flowers, Knoxville, Tenn.; one owned by Malandre Bros., New York, and two operated by Kirchner's, of Cleveland. In the group that have run more than 150,000 miles, but which have not yet reached 200,000, are the trucks of Holm & Olson, St. Paul; Johnson & Chronis, Chicago, and one of those owned by A. Graham & Son, Cleveland. Of the trucks which have run more than 100,000 miles, but which have not yet entered the 150,000-mile class, there are those of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., Cleveland; August Doemling; Detroit; Fleischman Floral Co., Chicago; Henry Hession, Brooklyn; A. H. Hews & Co., pot makers, Cambridge, Mass.; Hitchings & Co., greenhouse builders, Elizabeth, N. J.; Knoble Bros., Cleveland; Frank Oechslin, Chicago; A. C. Oelschig & Sons, Savannah, Ga.; C. A. Samuelson, Inc., Chicago; M. Weiland, Evanston, Ill., and two of the trucks of A. Graham & Son, Cleveland.

The White Co. says it does not profess that the list is a complete one, but that it only includes the veteran trucks the records of which have come to the notice of the manufacturer. The Review knows of two other White trucks in use by florists in Chicago that belong in the honor roll: The one operated by Maerz Bros., successors to Charles H. Fisk, has a record that puts it well up to the top of the list, and W. J. Smyth has a White which probably is in the 200,000-mile class. One used by E. Wienhoeber Co. also has a record for mileage.

TAX VALUE OF GREENHOUSES.

Complaint occasionally comes from greenhouse owners that local tax assessors place upon their greenhouses a value for the purpose of taxation out of proportion to the relative cost of a glass house as compared with buildings or other structures of wood, brick or stone. The presumption is that boards of assessors are more familiar with evaluating the latter classes of building than they are with determining fair value with regard to greenhouses. Inquiry into the rates of the valuation of greenhouses in various localities brings out the fact that there is a wide variation in even closely neighboring districts of the country.

Not long since a Kansas florist protested the assessment made by the local board on a basis of approximately 50 cents per square foot. This referred solely to the greenhouse structure itself. The real estate had been assessed separately. The pots, tools and such other items had been listed as personal property. For the structure itself to be taxed at the rate noted was to evaluate it nearly on an original cost basis.

Discussion of the subject with Illinois growers educed the fact that in their state assessment varies from 10 cents per square foot on ground covered with glass all the way up to 50 cents per square foot. These assessments included the greenhouse buildings and the ground they occupied. Of course, it is not easy to figure out a square foot basis. It can only be done, in the majority of cases, by deducting the portion of the assessment pertaining to the real estate, dwellings and other improvements, since, as a rule, the greenhouse owner's entire property is assessed in a lump, regardless of the fact that there are several types of improvements on the place.

In the vicinity of Maywood, Ill., where there is probably as much glass as in any other equal area in this country, valuation is reported to be arrived at by lumping both the old and new houses together, taking the total number of square feet covered by glass and multiplying by 11 cents. The result represents the amount of full valuation of the structures proper and all stationary appliances. Assessment for taxation purposes, in this district, is one-half of the full valuation above described.

It is reported that in Cincinnati and vicinity greenhouses are included with real estate, and the same rate of taxation applies as on other buildings. In case a florist feels that his valuation should be decreased, he must pay the bill under protest and file a claim for refund. Just across the Ohio river, in the adjoining section of Kentucky, notwithstanding, greenhouses are assessed as personal property.

As remarked before, in most instances real estate, residence and greenhouse values are so mixed, in a given piece of property, that it is difficult to separate them. A large greenhouse owner near Buffalo, N. Y., reports that one section of his range, containing about 30,000 square feet, including packing house and office but not boilers, is assessed at $12,000. This is a range of connected houses of pipe-frame construction. This glass is situated in the best residential part of a town where lots sell for $10 to $20 a front foot.

The few instances which are cited above indicate that here is a subject which might well be given careful attention by a national organization, either the Society of American Florists or the National Flower Growers' Association, though the latter seems already to have its young hands full. A compilation of greenhouse values for taxation purposes would enable a florist who considered his assessment too high to submit data to his local board which would be good proof that he had been overassessed. To help along the good work, The Review will gladly receive from readers any figures they can give regarding the valuations placed upon their greenhouses for taxation purposes, in order that more figures may be presented for the purpose of comparison, in addition to the few which are given here.

SHAVING ROOT SYSTEM.

Is it advantageous when potting plants from the field to shave off considerable of the root system to produce quicker and better maturity of the plants?

N. R.—Del.

Some plants are benefited by having their long roots cut back at potting time; especially is this true of woody subjects to be used for forcing. Some of the lat ter, such as roses, require that the tops be headed back also. Such plants, however, as stevias, berried solanums, hydrangeas, bouvardias and other plants to be used for winter forcing or fruiting should have all possible roots maintained.

On the other hand, if you are lifting any stock plants of geraniums, vincas, verbenas, heliotropes and other bedding plants of a more or less soft nature, the roots, as well as the tops, should be cut back and the plants put into comparatively small pots; they will start better when treated thus. Never remove any roots, however, from such plants as rhododendrons, azaleas or kalmias, or, in fact, any of an evergreen nature.

PAINT IN TANK HARMFUL?

I have just erected a galvanized water tank, the water to be used for my plants and goldfish. I have painted the tank inside and out with red lead and oil. Now another florist tells me that I shall kill all my plants and goldfish with a tank so painted. Is this true? If so, what can I do to overcome my mistake?

A. B. K.—Ala.

The effect of paint applied to a tank from which water is drawn for watering plants and supplying goldfish with water should not be detrimental. However, it would be well to make sure that the paint has thoroughly dried before the tank is filled with water, since a film of oil on the surface of water would be fatal to fish. Any danger there might be would also be lessened if the tank is filled with water and emptied after being allowed to stand a day or two before being again filled. If any oil is noticed on the surface of the water when it is drawn to supply the fish, it will be advisable to give the interior of the tank a thorough scrubbing with strong soap suds.

SHADING GREENHOUSE GLASS.

We have a new lean-to greenhouse, 12x40 feet. The problem which confronts us at the present time is how to shade the glass so as to keep the strong sunlight from ruining the plants. Is it proper to shade this house with wooden slats, whitewash or cloth? We have on hand a quantity of cypress slats, sawed 1x2 inches.

V. N.—N. C.

Screens made from wooden slats are commonly used for the shading of greenhouses, especially those in which delicate stove plants are grown. Ordinary laths are usually selected for making the screens. These generally have a thickness of three-eighths of an inch. Especially if the supply of 1x2-inch strips on hand is likely to run short, it is suggested that they be resawed, making them about 7/16x2 inches. Whatever the thickness of the slats, make the screens so that the distance between the slats would be slightly less than their thickness.

Lime whitewash may be used on the glass, and for a propagating house muslin curtains hung on wires about six inches below the glass will serve a good purpose. They should be so arranged that they can be pushed aside except in bright sunlight. The wooden screens may rest on the sashbars.

PROPAGATION OF VINCAS.

How and when can I propagate Vinca variegata, and how shall I manage when taking it from the field?

N. R.—Del.

Vinca variegata can be propagated now and until spring. The young shoots when a few inches long make the best cuttings and root most readily. Pieces of harder wood will also root, if taken off with two or three eyes, but these require a longer season. Vincas lifted from the open should have balls well reduced, so that they can be placed in pots of a moderate size. It is better also to remove the longest trails.

PROPAGATING ENGLISH IVY.

How and when can I propagate English ivy, and how can I manage when taking it from the field? N. R.—Del.

Propagate English ivy any time during the year. You can do it successfully now in any ordinary cutting bench.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

HAS OWN OIL INSTALLATION.

Having read several articles in The Review on the burning of fuel oil, I thought that my experience with it might be of interest to readers. I have been burning fuel oil for the last four years and have tried several makes of burners, but I have found that I get the best results from my own installation. I have made many burners and have now perfected an installation that I think will stand the test anywhere.

I do not use a nozzle to spray the oil, but I have made a mixer which will mix air with the oil before it enters the fire; this creates a blaze like that from a blow torch. This installation will give the same results in cold weather, when oil is thick, as in warm weather, when oil is thin; the apparatus never clogs. A heavy or light fire can be had by increasing or reducing the oil supply.

The oil is fed by gravity to the mixer and is sucked in with the air by steam. The installation will not interfere with the burning of coal and a change from on oil fire to a coal fire can be made in less than five minutes; or coal and oil can be burned at the same time.

I burn oil when oil is cheaper and coal when coal is cheaper. Oil at 5 cents per gallon is cheaper than coal at $5 per ton, figuring at the track ready to unload. When burning oil a large storage tank on the place is a good investment. When burning oil last winter I had no day fireman and often left the boiler room for three to four hours when the weather was stationary. I have often had coal with which it was hard work to keep up steam with three boilers, while with oil I have used only two.

O. H. Herman.

PROPAGATING PHLOXES.

Your article in The Review of August 31, on how to propagate phloxes, is all right, but since the cost of production has gone up, the most economical method of propagating these plants is as follows: Take up well established stock; that is, plants which have been growing one or two years; cut off the roots from the old plant with a pair of scissors, leaving about four inches of root on the plant, so as not to ruin its commercial value. Then take the roots which you have cut off and place them in a wooden flat having a depth of about four inches. If it is possible, get some soft coal ashes which have been sifted through a ¾-inch sieve. Mix one part of the ashes to one-fourth part of ordinary soil and put one inch of the mixture in the bottom of the flat. Spread the roots on the top of this layer of mixed soil and ashes. The layer of roots should be made about two-thirds the thickness of the layer of soil and ashes. Cover the roots with another layer of soil and ashes, laying the second layer of roots on top of that, and so on until the flat is filled, leaving no space in the top of the flat for the water to stand. Water the flats and set them away in a coldframe. You may water the flats occasionally through the winter, if the weather is open. If the weather is not open, use your best judgment and keep the flats the same as you would other hardy plants in flats. In early March bring the flats into the greenhouse and take the roots out of them. When this is done take three parts of soil to one part of ashes and mix the two together well. Cut the roots into 1 or 2-inch lengths and sprinkle them throughout the flats which you have already prepared. Cover the roots lightly with soil and set the flats on a bench in a cool greenhouse. The flats should be covered with paper and kept damp.

The roots will sprout in about three weeks, and it is possible to get more than 1,000 plants out of a flat, 3x14x23 inches, so that the original stock flat could hold enough roots to furnish either 3,000 or 4,000 plants. These little plants are potted in 2-inch pots and grown about three weeks, after which they are set out in rows about three or four inches apart. About ninety-five per cent of the plants will bloom the first season, if they are set out before June 25. If the plants are set out in early May, they can be given more room in the row; hence they will make about five branches.

If propagated in this manner, the possibility of mildew affecting your plants is greatly reduced, and where a grower only has one or a dozen stock plants of a variety, he can get twenty-five times as many plants in one season and still not weaken the old plant, as the old plant can be set outdoors again after the roots have been cut. A good time to do this root cutting is from October 10 on, until the ground is no longer open. I advise strongly against the use of sand for phloxes when potting. Use the soft coal ashes, if it is at all possible to obtain them. The soil for phloxes should not be made rich, as they are the opposite of mums in this respect.

I have obtained my information from practical experience, and I suppose I have handled upwards of several hundred thousand plants. I have reference to the Pantheon and Von Lassburg and about forty other varieties, but I have never dealt with P. Miss Lingard or P. canadensis.

The Hardy Garden

SEASONABLE PERENNIALS.

Hardy Asters.

The hardy perennials are now more or less on the wane, but for some time there will be a goodly showing of subjects which are mainly tall-growing Fine now are the hardy asters, or Michaelmas daisies, as they are sometimes called. While they are natives of North America, it remained for hardy plant specialists abroad to appreciate properly their beauties as garden plants and to improve them by hybridization. Such English firms as Amos Perry, Ware, Prichard and Wells and some continental firms have done a great deal in improving this beautiful class of hardy plants. While there are many lovely forms to be met with in a wild state, they have been greatly improved by the painstaking work of hybridizers. Anyone who does not care to bother with named sorts, but yet wants a nice assortment of hardy asters, should purchase a packet of seeds from a good firm. It is late to sow these now, but start them under glass in spring, and you will have big, strong plants to bloom the following year. You will be surprised at the fine range of colors.

So fine are these asters for cutting that any florist who grows hardy perennials should stock up on a few of them. The following are fine: Feltham Blue, bright blue; Glory of Colwall, pale lavender; Climax, pale blue, golden center, a grand sort; Amos Perry, spreading heads of deep pink flowers; Perry's Blue, rich lavender blue; St. Egwin, pale pink; Perry's Pink, reddish pink; White Queen, pure white. The foregoing are all of the novi-blegii group and do not, as a rule, grow as tall as the novæ-angliæ section. The three colors of novæ-angliæ, blue, pink and white, are all well worth growing. Lil Fardell is an especially handsome form, carrying large, handsome bright pink flowers. Other useful asters for massing or cutting are ptarmicoides, with small white flowers produced in great abundance; cordifolia Miss Edith Gibbs, pale lavender, and subcærulea, with large, deep blue flowers, which is an early bloomer. Fall is the time to plant out asters and, as they spread quite rapidly, it is necessary to replant not later than every third year for the best results.

Kniphofias.

The kniphofias, or tritomas, are now showing up well. They are splendid for cutting, and the stalks of "red-hot pokers," as the flowers are commonly called, are much valued by retailers in fall. They are less hardy than many other perennials and where temperatures go much below zero, it is a good plan to dig up the clumps before the ground freezes and store them in sand either in a coldframe or cellar. It is dampness, really more than severe cold, which destroys these plants. Coal ashes over the crowns prove to be better winter protection than manure or straw. With a covering of coal ashes and a few dry leaves held in position over them, it is possible to winter them as far north as Boston, provided they are on well drained ground, where no water can stand.

Kniphofias have been considerably improved by crossing and selection in late years. The old Uvaria is still grown, but is much surpassed by Pfitzeri, which blooms over a long period. The spikes are three to four feet high and the heads of flowers are rich orange scarlet in color. Grandiflora, the flowers of which are crimson, shaded yellow, and nobilis, bright scarlet, are two glorified forms of Uvaria. The earliest bloomer of all is Express, which produces spikes as early as July and persists until October.

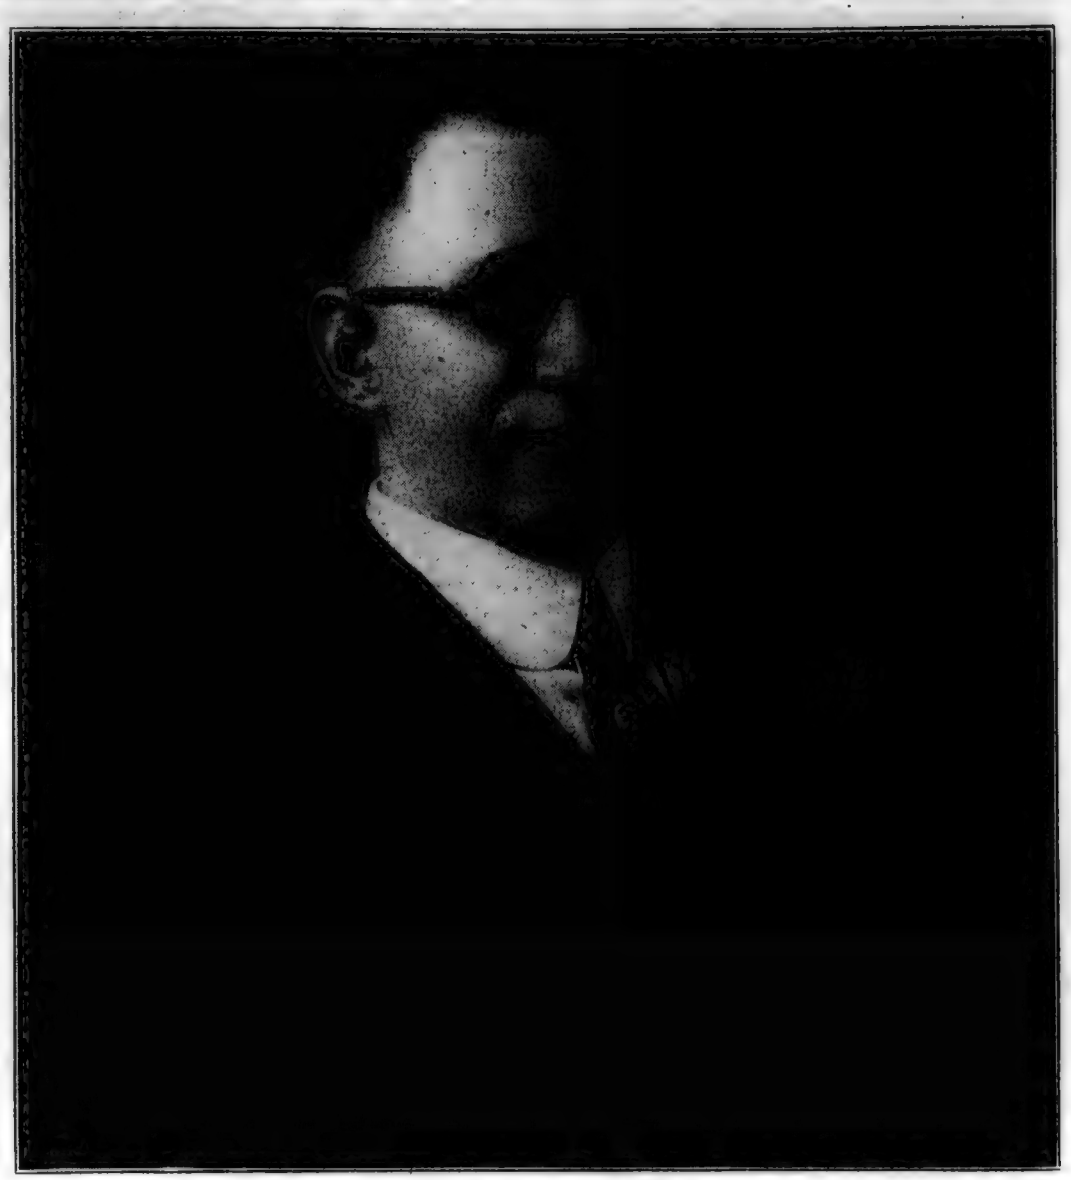
Phloxes.

No one possessing a garden or growing a selection of hardy plants can do without phloxes. Peonies, while in season, make a more stunning show, but their season is rather brief; so it is with irises. Larkspurs give two good crops of flowers, but phloxes give a continuous succession of blooms for a far longer period than any other hardy herbaceous plant. If we start with the subulata type, followed by divaricata and amœna, and in turn succeeded by that most beautiful and useful of all phloxes, suffruticosa Miss Lingard, to be succeeded by the paniculata type, we have really six months of phloxes, something we cannot get from any other perennials, and the plants have such a wide range of colors, are so free-blooming and easy of propagation that everyone should plant liberally of them.

In August and September the paniculata, or late-flowering, type is seen at its best. Young stock propagated under glass and set out in nursery rows gives the finest show of late bloom. Of a large number of varieties viewed before penning these notes, the following appealed to me as being fine for mass effects, general border use or cutting: Elizabeth Campbell, salmon pink, still the best of its color and always in demand; Pantheon, bright carmine rose; Thor, deep salmon, shaded scarlet; W. C. Egan, lilac suffused with soft pink, exceedingly large flowers; Richard Wallace, pure white with maroon center; R. F. Struthers, salmon rose; Le Mahdi, violet purple, the best of the so-called "blues," fine under overcast skies, especially if associated with white varieties; Frau Anton Buchner, pure white with handsome trusses; Rynstrom, rose with white center; F. G. Von Lassburg, a grand, reliable white; Beacon, bright cherry red; Mme. Paul Dutrie, pale lilac rose; Albion, pure white with pale rose eye.

Phloxes are occasionally troubled by mildew and red spider. The former comes usually in hot, moist weather, and a good dusting of powdered sulphur is the best remedy. Red spider appears in hot, dry weather; the remedy is to hose the plants vigorously or, if possible, keep them well watered, they are rarely attacked except when suffering from drought. If there are any special varieties of phlox from which it is desired to increase stock, such plants should be marked now, lifted and stored in a cellar or frame and placed under glass in February. If they are started up in a cool, light house, an abundant crop of cuttings will soon appear, which can be taken off when three to four inches long and they will root as easily as mums or heliotropes. Potted off singly when rooted and put out in nursery rows in late spring, they will produce handsome heads of flowers and make excellent clumps for either fall or spring sales.

Artemisia lactiflora, growing four to five feet in height and carrying large spikes of spiræa-like, creamy white flowers, is blooming now. It proves hardy and is fine for cutting.



Campanulas.

Among the campanulas the most striking is still pyramidalis, which lasts a long time, particularly where it can get a little shade. C. punctata, with large, nodding, bell-shaped flowers, white spotted with rose, is still flowering. C. lactiflora cœrulea, with pale blue flowers, has grown five to six feet high this season and has flowered for months. It is one of the most beautiful and useful of perennials; the flowers are pale blue in color and abundantly produced. No one will go far wrong in planting this campanula. C. rotundifolia, the Scotch bluebell, has flowered for a long time and will persist until cold weather. C. carpatica in the borders and rockery is also a dependable variety in late summer.

The robust growing boltonias, or false chamomiles, are now at their best. B. latisquama, pink, tinged with lavender, is the best. B. asteroides is a pure white sort, growing six to eight feet tall and spreading rapidly. Both are fine for cutting.

HAS OWN OIL INSTALLATION.

Having read several articles in The Review on the burning of fuel oil, I thought that my experience with it might be of interest to readers. I have been burning fuel oil for the last four years and have tried several makes of burners, but I have found that I get the best results from my own installation. I have made many burners and have now perfected an installation that I think will stand the test anywhere.

I do not use a nozzle to spray the oil, but I have made a mixer which will mix air with the oil before it enters the fire; this creates a blaze like that from a blow torch. This installation will give the same results in cold weather, when oil is thick, as in warm weather, when oil is thin; the apparatus never clogs. A heavy or light fire can be had by increasing or reducing the oil supply.

The oil is fed by gravity to the mixer and is sucked in with the air by steam. The installation will not interfere with the burning of coal and a change from on oil fire to a coal fire can be made in less than five minutes; or coal and oil can be burned at the same time.

I burn oil when oil is cheaper and coal when coal is cheaper. Oil at 5 cents per gallon is cheaper than coal at $5 per ton, figuring at the track ready to unload. When burning oil a large storage tank on the place is a good investment. When burning oil last winter I had no day fireman and often left the boiler room for three to four hours when the weather was stationary. I have often had coal with which it was hard work to keep up steam with three boilers, while with oil I have used only two.

PROPAGATING PHLOXES.

Your article in The Review of August 31, on how to propagate phloxes, is all right, but since the cost of production has gone up, the most economical method of propagating these plants is as follows: Take up well established stock; that is, plants which have been growing one or two years; cut off the roots from the old plant with a pair of scissors, leaving about four inches of root on the plant, so as not to ruin its commercial value. Then take the roots which you have cut off and place them in a wooden flat having a depth of about four inches. If it is possible, get some soft coal ashes which have been sifted through a ¾-inch sieve. Mix one part of the ashes to one-fourth part of ordinary soil and put one inch of the mixture in the bottom of the flat. Spread the roots on the top of this layer of mixed soil and ashes. The layer of roots should be made about two-thirds the thickness of the layer of soil and ashes. Cover the roots with another layer of soil and ashes, laying the second layer of roots on top of that, and so on until the flat is filled, leaving no space in the top of the flat for the water to stand. Water the flats and set them away in a coldframe. You may water the flats occasionally through the winter, if the weather is not open, use your best judgment and keep the flats the same as you would other hardy plants in flats. In early March bring the flats into the greenhouse and take the roots out of them. When this is done take three parts of soil to one part of ashes and mix the two together well. Cut the roots into 1 or 2-inch lengths and sprinkle them throughout the flats which you have already prepared. Cover the roots lightly with soil and set the flats on a bench in a cool greenhouse. The flats should be covered with paper and kept damp.

The roots will sprout in about three weeks, and it is possible to get more than 1,000 plants out of a flat, 3x14x23 inches, so that the original stock flat could hold enough roots to furnish either 3,000 or 4,000 plants. These little plants are potted in 2-inch pots and grown about three weeks, after which they are set out in rows about three or four inches apart. About ninety-five per cent of the plants will bloom the first season, if they are set out before June 25. If the plants are set out in early May, they can be given more room in the row; hence they will make about five branches.

If propagated in this manner, the possibility of mildew affecting your plants is greatly reduced, and where a grower only has one or a dozen stock plants of a variety, he can get twenty-five times as many plants in one season and still not weaken the old plant, as the old plant can be set outdoors again after the roots have been cut. A good time to do this root cutting is from October 10 on, until the ground is no longer open. I advise strongly against the use of sand for phloxes when potting. Use the soft coal ashes, if it is at all possible to obtain them. The soil for phloxes should not be made rich, as they are the opposite of mums in this respect.

I have obtained my information from practical experience, and I suppose I have handled upwards of several hundred thousand plants. I have reference to the Pantheon and Von Lassburg and about forty other varieties, but I have never dealt with P. Miss Lingard or P. canadensis.

The Hardy Garden

SEASONABLE PERENNIALS.

Hardy Asters.

The hardy perennials are now more or less on the wane, but for some time there will be a goodly showing of subjects which are mainly tall-growing Fine now are the hardy asters, or Michaelmas daisies, as they are sometimes called. While they are natives of North America, it remained for hardy plant specialists abroad to appreciate properly their beauties as garden plants and to improve them by hybridization. Such English firms as Amos Perry, Ware, Prichard and Wells and some continental firms have done a great deal in improving this beautiful class of hardy plants. While there are many lovely forms to be met with in a wild state, they have been greatly improved by the painstaking work of hybridizers. Anyone who does not care to bother with named sorts, but yet wants a nice assortment of hardy asters, should purchase a packet of seeds from a good firm. It is late to sow these now, but start them under glass in spring, and you will have big, strong plants to bloom the following year. You will be surprised at the fine range of colors.

So fine are these asters for cutting that any florist who grows hardy perennials should stock up on a few of them. The following are fine: Feltham Blue, bright blue; Glory of Colwall, pale lavender; Climax, pale blue, golden center, a grand sort; Amos Perry, spreading heads of deep pink flowers; Perry's Blue, rich lavender blue; St. Egwin, pale pink; Perry's Pink, reddish pink; White Queen, pure white. The foregoing are all of the novi-blegii group and do not, as a rule, grow as tall as the novæ-angliæ section. The three colors of novæ-angliæ, blue, pink and white, are all well worth growing. Lil Fardell is an especially handsome form, carrying large, handsome bright pink flowers. GLENN K. PARKER.

VISITORS at the Kansas City convention remember the genial countenance and warm handclasp of the chairman of the local invitation committee. Now that the S. A. F. gathering is history, Glenn K. Parker is immersed in his duties as vice-president and general manager of the Stuppy Supply Co., Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Parker has grown up in the flower business, having started with his grandfather, George M. at this season and there is almost a superabundance of yellow flowers among helianthus, rudbeckias, heleniums and heliopsis. Helenium autumnale superbum, while common, is a fine border plant and excellent for cutting. Fine also are the Dreer introductions, Riverton Beauty and Riverton Gem.

Others Now Blooming.

The giant white plantain, Funkia subcordata grandiflora, is a striking object now. The large, handsome leaves are in themselves effective. This will do well in the sun, but succeeds even better in partial shade. Plumbago Larpentæ is one of the most charming of dwarf, spreading plants at this season, smothered as it is with deep blue flowers. Some of the goldenrods are fine now and nothing could be more striking than some bold masses of Solidago altissima and Golden Wings now in flower; both of these are tall growers and carry immense heads of golden yellow flowers.

Of the veronicas or speedwells, V. longifolia subsessilis, the Japanese variety, with its dense spikes of dark blue flowers, now appearing, is the queen of the entire family. Viola cornuta atropurpurea blooms still, as it has done since late May. Dicentra eximia formosa has not been out of bloom for over four months, and the cardinal flowers both along the pond-sides and in dry borders make a brilliant showing. The more subdued Lobelia syphilitica, with blue flowers, still remains with us. A plant not much grown, but now in flower, is ophiopogan; the foliage is bright and handsome, even without the bluish spikes of flowers.

Useful for cutting are the eupatoriums. Fraseri is just opening its large corymbs of pure white flowers, while cœlestinum, pale blue in color, has been flowering for a few weeks. The beautiful Japanese anemones have stalks well advanced and flowers will soon be open, to be followed by the hardy pompon chrysanthemums, which smile at the coming frosts. Fine and new are the late aconitums, autumnale and Wilsonii, with deep blue flowers. Senecio clivorum, classed as an aquatic, is quite at home in a shady border; its broad, tropical-like foliage, is surmounted by robust stalks of rich orange flowers, quite effective. Already here and there the colchicums, or autumn crocuses, are peeping, a sure sign that summer is about over and frost not far distant.

HIBISCUS DROPPING BUDS.

What causes hibiscus buds to blight? I have plants indoors and out. Many of the buds blight when they are small and then drop off; others are almost ready to open before they drop off. I have had only three open flowers so far on a bush two years old, although the plant is loaded with buds.

W. L. G.—Ia.

Are your plants hibiscus or althæas? The latter are commonly called rose of Sharon. They would, however, be doubtfully hardy in your state. Probable causes for hibiscus flowers failing to open under glass are: Starvation at the root and allowing plants to become too dry after the buds were formed. Outdoors the same conditions would hold good, an insufficiency of plant food and water being the most likely causes. Hibiscus needs a generous soil to do its best, and simply will not stand starvation. Plants in good soil, well fed and watered should open their flowers satisfactorily.

C. W.

FOR PERENNIAL GARDEN.

I am contemplating planting a perennial garden and should like to know what you would recommend that I use in order to have flowers all summer. Please mention a list and give the methods of culture. W. A. S.—Ariz.

Below are mentioned some of the perennials which should succeed well in your state and which should insure you a long succession of bloom. All of these may not do so well with you as in more northerly gardens, but the great majority should succeed, if you have a generous soil and, more especially, if you can use water occasionally in droughty periods. All perennials like a good water supply until their blooming season has passed; after this the drier condition will not harm them. The addition of some bulbous plants, such as tulips, narcissi, hyacinths, bulbous irises, montbretias, galtonias, watsonias, gladioli, etc., as well as annuals, will insure you a more constant succession of bloom. The perennials suggested are as follows:

Delphiniums
Peonies, tree and herbaceous
Lupines
Dictamnus Fraxinella
Liatris, all varieties
Sweet williams
Coreopsis grandiflora
Coreopsis verticillata
Shasta daisies
Aquilegias
Helianthus
Rudbeckias
Boltonias
Artemisia lactiflora
Lilies, auratum, regale, speciosum
Phlox paniculata
Gypsophila paniculata
Stokesia cyanea
Iris, all varieties
Achillea the Pearl
Pompon chrysanthemums
Campanulas
Pyrethrum uliginosum
Gaillardia grandiflora
Physostegia virginiana
Pyrethrum roseum
Eryngiums
Anemone japonica

The foregoing list is not by any means a complete one, but it may suffice for your purpose. Plant the varieties in good-sized clumps. Some subjects, like oriental poppies, die away after blooming and leave large gaps. Put some annuals in to cover such vacancies. For dwarf subjects for a border, pansies, bedding violas, English daisies, forget-me-nots, yellow alyssum, Campanula carpatica and similar plants will flower satisfactorily for a while, and hollyhocks, Canterbury bells and foxgloves will also prove useful. You will find occasional practical articles on hardy perennials in The Review. C. W.

WINTERING DELPHINIUMS.

In a recent issue of The Review there was an answer to an inquiry in regard to bringing delphiniums and other plants through the winter by transplanting them to coldframes. Are they to be wintered by merely using the glass without mulching the plants or shading them on sunny days? In our latitude we get many sunny days during the winter and the plants set under glass would alternately freeze and thaw, even though the sash were raised. H. A. C.—Ill.

All plants carried over in coldframes should have a dry mulch. I consider leaves the best, but hay, straw or pine needles will answer almost as well. This mulch prevents the soil from continually freezing and thawing, which would mean having the plants out of the soil. This mulch should not be applied until the soil is frozen solid. The aim should be to keep the frost in the soil once it has entered and not to exclude it.

GUDE WINS FAME WITH OAR.

All eyes of rowing America are today centered upon Granville Gude, 19-year-old son of William F. Gude, Washington, D. C. He gained fame by winning three championships in one afternoon in the Middle States regatta, on the Patapsco river, Baltimore, Labor day; then the following Saturday he proved himself the best sculler in the south when he defeated a veteran oarsman in a half-mile contest.

Young Gude, it is declared by the sporting fraternity, has a good chance of becoming the world's greatest oarsman, despite his years. This is his second year as an oarsman. He has been a member of the Potomac eight, a fast crew, but it was only in July that he prepared to enter the singles.

"He has proved a marvel from the start," declared the sporting writer of the Washington Times. "In a few days he was giving other scullers of the Potomac Boat Club a real race. In about two weeks he astonished the club by beating Bob Duncan, who won the national singles title in 1919. The club entered him in the junior sculls of the Middle States regatta. He won in a paddle. Potomac sent him right back with an hour and a half rest to try for the intermediate title. Again he won, easily. Back went Gude and, wonder of wonders, he breezed to victory again.

"Such a sudden rise would be unequaled in the world's rowing history, it is said," reported the writer in referring to young Gude's aspirations to win the national championship. "Young Gude is the son of William F. Gude, the florist, and shows the same determination and fighting spirit that carried his dad to high places in the business world. Like father, like son, it appears to be, in point of character, at least. The elder Gude won his way up from nowhere.

"Granville is barely 19 years of age and weighs 162 pounds. His weight is distributed perfectly. Stripped, he is a living replica of statues of ancient Greek athletes that delight the eyes of people who admire beauty in the human body. And he is still a boy with several years yet to reach full development.

"Young Gude is an athlete of considerable versatility. At Tech high school he won letters in basketball, football and baseball."

"Granny," as the boys call him, is unchanged by his sudden acquisition of fame, but you ought to see "Pa" Gude when somebody asks if Granville Gude is his son. He quickly shows the smile that won't come off and as quickly acknowledges such ownership. And the boy is now preparing himself for selection to participate in the next Olympic meet. T. N. S.

MEETING AT MT. PLEASANT.

Mt. Pleasant, Mich., was the scene of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society's meeting September 4. The organization's members were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Caple and they made up a merry crowd, as seen in the illustration on this page. Mr. Caple is proprietor of the Mt. Pleasant Greenhouses.

A 6 o'clock banquet tendered by Mr. and Mrs. Caple came as an agreeable surprise. The banquet was served at the Bennett hotel. After dining to the accompaniment of many clever talks and toasts, the members were given an automobile trip to the various institutions and other places of interest at M. Pleasant.

After a sincere vote of thanks to the Caples for the delightful entertainment, all voted to meet in Saginaw at the houses of Zorn & Gaertner the first Monday in October. Each meeting of the organization is held at a different place, so that the trade may better exchange ideas and methods.

ROSES RESTED TOO LONG.

We have mailed you several specimens of Columbia roses, which we should like you to examine. We lost about 8,000 rose plants in the bins this summer. While drying them off, we gave them a rest of four to six weeks. And we lost the entire lot of Columbia, Butterfly, Crusader and white Ophelia. We really think the cause of the trouble was our taking about two or three inches of top soil from the bins. As a result, since there was not much shade on the glass, the roots were burned by the sun. However, there may be another cause. Will you advise us?

W. T. F.—Tex.

The rose plants received did not show any noticeable disease, but they looked as if they might have been dried off too long, so that the vitality was out of them when they were started up again. To rest rose plants in summer in the hot and dry climate of Texas for six weeks is probably more than they will stand. Columbia especially, does not seem to require a long rest and is slow in starting under such conditions.

If, after resting the plants, the soil is thoroughly soaked for three days or more before any top soil is taken off, so that the exposed roots have a chance to take up the moisture while you are changing the soil, you may bring them through, but even then three weeks' rest should be a great plenty. In the north, four weeks is considered long enough to rest any rose, and I have no doubt that three weeks in Texas should give them fully as much of a rest as four weeks near Chicago. W. J. Keimel.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Memphis, Tenn.—D. K. Grace and G. T. Hayes, doing business as the Purity Seed Co., filed a petition in bankruptcy August 26 with the Federal court, listing liabilities at $2,831.93 and assets at $3,698.12. Among its bills payable are those to the W. A. Garrabrant Co., of Kansas City, Mo., $799 for printing. This is the firm's largest liability. Other creditors are: W. G. Shelton, Whiteville, Tenn., $75 for seeds; Armstrong & Bailey, Coffeeville, Miss., $70 for seeds; W. S. Wright, Big Creek, Miss., $210 for seeds; S. C. Mitchell, Calhoun, Miss., $300 for seeds. Most of the firm's debts are due firms in the east. Accounts listed as due the firm, stock in hand, store fixtures and household goods of Mr. Grace make up the assets.

Pleasant Hill, Mo.—The stock and property of the Pinehurst Floral Co. were sold at public auction by George M. Jones, referee in bankruptcy, Saturday, September 9. R. L. Isherwood, Chillicothe, Mo., bought it on the third bid. His offer was $3,000, subject to the first mortgage of $53,000, with interest, and help liens, amounting to about $60,000. Mr. Isherwood's bid will have to be approved by the court before the deal is consummated. The property auctioned included all growing stock, property and real estate. Range No. 2 had been torn down and No. 1 about filled the space originally occupied by the former. This will give the new owner practically the same amount of glass that the Pinehurst Floral Co. bought from the George M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., the original owners, three years ago. H. H. Beardsley, of Kansas City, represented the first mortgage bondholders.

at this season and there is almost a superabundance of yellow flowers among helianthus, rudbeckias, heleniums and heliopsis. Helenium autumnale superbum, while common, is a fine border plant and excellent for cutting. Fine also are the Dreer introductions, Riverton Beauty and Riverton Gem.

Others Now Blooming.

The giant white plantain, Funkia subcordata grandiflora, is a striking object now. The large, handsome leaves are in themselves effective. This will do well in the sun, but succeeds even better in partial shade. Plumbago Larpentæ is one of the most charming of dwarf, spreading plants at this season, smothered as it is with deep blue flowers. Some of the goldenrods are fine now and nothing could be more striking than some bold masses of Solidago altissima and Golden Wings now in flower; both of these are tall growers and carry immense heads of golden yellow flowers.

Of the veronicas or speedwells, V. longifolia subsessilis, the Japanese variety, with its dense spikes of dark blue flowers, now appearing, is the queen of the entire family. Viola cornuta atropurpurea blooms still, as it has done since late May. Dicentra eximia formosa has not been out of bloom for over four months, and the cardinal flowers both along the pond-sides and in dry borders make a brilliant showing. The more subdued Lobelia syphilitica, with blue flowers, still remains with us. A plant not much grown, but now in flower, is ophiopogan; the foliage is bright and handsome, even without the bluish spikes of flowers.

Useful for cutting are the eupatoriums. Fraseri is just opening its large corymbs of pure white flowers, while cœlestinum, pale blue in color, has been flowering for a few weeks. The beautiful Japanese anemones have stalks well advanced and flowers will soon be open, to be followed by the hardy pompon chrysanthemums, which smile at the coming frosts. Fine and new are the late aconitums, autumnale and Wilsonii, with deep blue flowers. Senecio clivorum, classed as an aquatic, is quite at home in a shady border; its broad, tropical like foliage, is surmounted by robust stalks of rich orange flowers, quite effective. Already here and there the colchicums, or autumn crocuses, are peeping, a sure sign that summer is about over and frost not far distant.

HIBISCUS DROPPING BUDS.

What causes hibiscus buds to blight? I have plants indoors and out. Many of the buds blight when they are small and then drop off; others are almost ready to open before they drop off. I have had only three open flowers so far on a bush two years old, although the plant is loaded with buds.

W. L. G.—Ia.

Are your plants hibiscus or althæas? The latter are commonly called rose of Sharon. They would, however, be doubtfully hardy in your state. Probable causes for hibiscus flowers failing to open under glass are: Starvation at the root and allowing plants to become too dry after the buds were formed. Outdoors the same conditions would hold good, an insufficiency of plant food and water being the most likely causes. Hibiscus needs a generous soil to do its best, and simply will not stand starvation. Plants in good soil, well fed and watered should open their flowers satisfactorily. C. W.

FOR PERENNIAL GARDEN.

I am contemplating planting a perennial garden and should like to know what you would recommend that I use in order to have flowers all summer. Please mention a list and give the methods of culture. W. A. S.—Ariz.

Below are mentioned some of the perennials which should succeed well in your state and which should insure you a long succession of bloom. All of these may not do so well with you as in more northerly gardens, but the great majority should succeed, if you have a generous soil and, more especially, if you can use water occasionally in droughty periods. All perennials like a good water supply until their blooming season has passed; after this the drier condition will not harm them. The addition of some bulbous plants, such as tulips, narcissi, hyacinths, bulbous irises, montbretias, galtonias, watsonias, gladioli, etc., as well as annuals, will insure you a more constant succession of bloom. The perennials suggested are as follows:

Delphiniums	Lilies, auratum, regale, speciosum
Peonies, tree and herbaceous	Phlox paniculata
Lupines	Gypsophila paniculata
Dictamnus Fraxinella	Stokesia cyanea
Liatris, all varieties	Iris, all varieties
Sweet williams	Achillea the Pearl
Coreopsis grandiflora	Pompon chrysanthemums
Coreopsis verticillata	Campanulas
Shasta daisies	Pyrethrum uliginosum
Aquilegias	Gaillardia grandiflora
Helianthus	Physostegia virginiana
Rudbeckias	Pyrethrum roseum
Boltonias	Eryngiums
Artemisia lactiflora	Anemone japonica

The foregoing list is not by any means a complete one, but it may suffice for your purpose. Plant the varieties in good-sized clumps. Some subjects, like oriental poppies, die away after blooming and leave large gaps. Put some annuals in to cover such vacancies. For dwarf subjects for a border, pansies, bedding violas, English daisies, forget-me-nots, yellow alyssum, Campanula carpatica and similar plants will flower satisfactorily for a while, and hollyhocks, Canterbury bells and foxgloves will also prove useful. You will find occasional practical articles on hardy perennials in The Review. C. W.

WINTERING DELPHINIUMS.

In a recent issue of The Review there was an answer to an inquiry in regard to bringing delphiniums and other plants through the winter by transplanting them to coldframes. Are they to be wintered by merely using the glass without mulching the plants or shading them on sunny days? In our latitude we get many sunny days during the winter and the plants set under glass would alternately freeze and thaw, even though the sash were raised. H. A. C.—Ill.

All plants carried over in coldframes should have a dry mulch. I consider leaves the best, but hay, straw or pine needles will answer almost as well. This mulch prevents the soil from continually freezing and thawing, which would mean having the plants out of the soil. This mulch should not be applied until the soil is frozen solid. The aim should be to keep the frost in the soil once it has entered and not to exclude it.

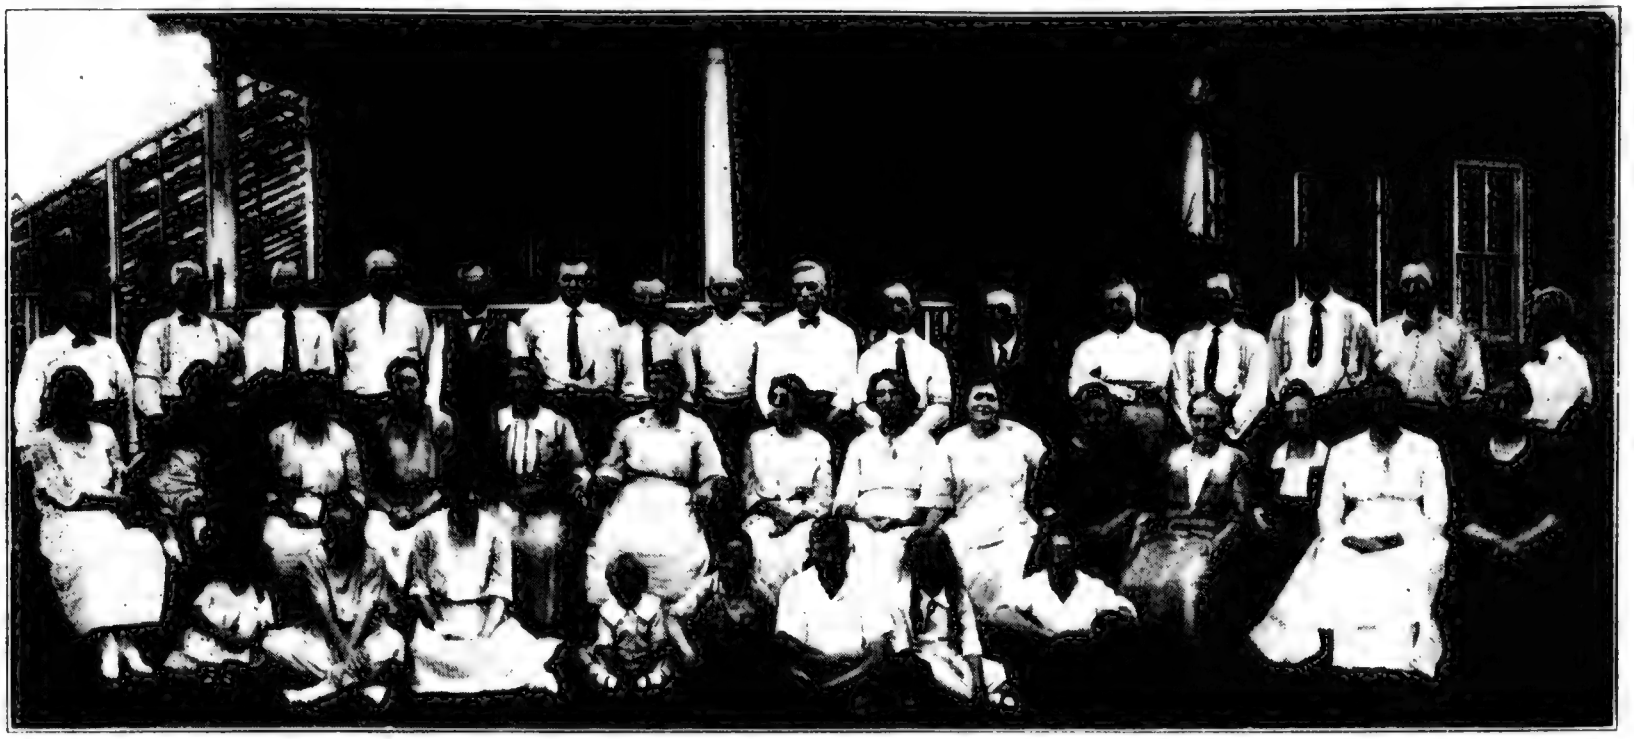
GUDE WINS FAME WITH OAR.



All eyes of rowing America are today centered upon Granville Gude, 19-year old son of William F. Gude, Washington, D. C. He gained fame by winning three championships in one afternoon in the Middle States regatta, on the Patapsco river, Baltimore, Labor day; then the following Saturday he proved himself the best sculler in the south when he defeated a veteran oarsman in a half mile contest.

Young Gude, it is declared by the sporting fraternity, has a good chance of becoming the world's greatest oarsman, despite his years. This is his second year as an oarsman. He has been a member of the Potomac eight, a fast crew, but it was only in July that he prepared to enter the singles.

"He has proved a marvel from the start," declared the sporting writer of the Washington Times. "In a few days he was giving other scullers of the Potomac Boat Club a real race. In about two weeks he astonished the club by beating Bob Duncan, who won the national singles title in 1919. The club entered him in the junior sculls of the Middle States regatta. He won in a paddle. Potomac sent him right back with an hour and a half rest to try for the intermediate title. Again he won, easily. Back went Gude and, wonder of wonders, he breezed to victory again.

"Such a sudden rise would be unequaled in the world's rowing history, it is said," reported the writer in referring to young Gude's aspirations to win the national championship. "Young Gude is the son of William F. Gude, the florist, and shows the same determination and fighting spirit that carried his dad to high places in the business world. Like father, like son, it appears to be, in point of character, at least. The elder Gude won his way up from nowhere.

"Granville is barely 19 years of age and weighs 162 pounds. His weight is distributed perfectly. Stripped, he is a living replica of statues of ancient Greek athletes that delight the eyes of people who admire beauty in the human body. And he is still a boy with several years yet to reach full development.

"Young Gude is an athlete of considerable versatility. At Tech high school he won letters in basketball, football and baseball."

"Granny," as the boys call him, is unchanged by his sudden acquisition of fame, but you ought to see "Pa" Gude when somebody asks if Granville Gude is his son. He quickly shows the smile that won't come off and as quickly acknowledges such ownership. And the boy is now preparing himself for selection to participate in the next Olympic meet. T. N. S.

MEETING AT MT. PLEASANT.

Mt. Pleasant, Mich., was the scene of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society's meeting September 4. The organization's members were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Caple and they made up a merry crowd, as seen in the illustration on this page. Mr. Caple is proprietor of the Mt. Pleasant Greenhouses.

A 6 o'clock banquet tendered by Mr. and Mrs. Caple came as an agreeable surprise. The banquet was served at the Bennett hotel. After dining to the accompaniment of many clever talks and toasts, the members were given an automobile trip to the various institutions and other places of interest at Mt. Pleasant.

After a sincere vote of thanks to the Caples for the delightful entertainment, all voted to meet in Saginaw at the houses of Zorn & Gaertner the first Monday in October. Each meeting of the organization is held at a different place, so that the trade may better exchange ideas and methods.

PROPAGATING HELIOTROPE.

How and when can I propagate heliotrope? N. R.—Del.

Soft-wood cuttings of heliotropes will root readily now in a cutting bench, if watered occasionally and shaded until rooted. C. W.

ROSES RESTED TOO LONG.

We have mailed you several specimens of Columbia roses, which we should like you to examine. We lost about 8,000 rose plants in the bins this summer. While drying them off, we gave them a rest of four to six weeks. And we lost the entire lot of Columbia, Butterfly, Crusader and white Ophelia. We really think the cause of the trouble was our taking about two or three inches of top soil from the bins. As a result, since there was not much shade on the glass, the roots were burned by the sun. However, there may be another cause. Will you advise us? W. T. F. Tex.

The rose plants received did not show any noticeable disease, but they looked as if they might have been dried off too long, so that the vitality was out of them when they were started up again. To rest rose plants in summer in the hot and dry climate of Texas for six weeks is probably more than they will stand. Columbia especially, does not seem to require a long rest and is slow in starting under such conditions.

If, after resting the plants, the soil is thoroughly soaked for three days or more before any top soil is taken off, so that the exposed roots have a chance to take up the moisture while you are changing the soil, you may bring them through, but even then three weeks' rest should be a great plenty. In the north, four weeks is considered long enough to rest any rose, and I have no doubt that three weeks in Texas should give them fully as much of a rest as four weeks near Chicago. W. J. Keimel.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Memphis, Tenn.—D. K. Grace and G. T. Hayes, doing business as the Purity Seed Co., filed a petition in bankruptcy August 26 with the Federal court, listing liabilities at $2,831.93 and assets at $3,698.12. Among its bills payable are those to the W. A. Garrabrant Co., of Kansas City, Mo., $799 for printing. This is the firm's largest liability. Other creditors are: W. G. Shelton, Whiteville, Tenn., $75 for seeds; Armstrong & Bailey, Coffeeville, Miss., $70 for seeds; W. S. Wright, Big Creek, Miss., $210 for seeds; S. C. Mitchell, Calhoun, Miss., $300 for seeds. Most of the firm's debts are due firms in the east. Accounts listed as due the firm, stock in hand, store fixtures and household goods of Mr. Grace make up the assets.

Pleasant Hill, Mo.—The stock and property of the Pinehurst Floral Co. were sold at public auction by George M. Jones, referee in bankruptcy, Saturday, September 9. R. L. Isherwood, Chillicothe, Mo., bought it on the third bid. His offer was $3,000, subject to the first mortgage of $53,000, with interest, and help liens, amounting to about $60,000. Mr. Isherwood's bid will have to be approved by the court before the deal is consummated. The property auctioned included all growing stock, property and real estate. Range No. 2 had been torn down and No. 1 about filled the space originally occupied by the former. This will give the new owner practically the same amount of glass that the Pinehurst Floral Co. bought from the George M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., the original owners, three years ago. H. H. Beardsley, of Kansas City, represented the first mortgage bondholders.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary Gage Peterson.

Mrs. Mary Gage Peterson, widow of P. S. Peterson, late proprietor of the Peterson Nursery, Chicago, and mother of the present head, William A. Peterson, died at the Bethany Girls' Home, Chicago, September 6.

Mrs. Peterson was 78 years old. Her birthplace was Concord, N. H. She came to Chicago in 1865, the year of her marriage, following her graduation from Mount Holyoke College, of which she was trustee until the time of her death. With other prominent Chicago women, Mrs. Peterson established the School of Domestic Science, the Chicago College Club and the Bethany Girls' Movement. In connection with the latter movement she established a summer camp at Winona Lake, Ind., and the Wellington avenue home, Chicago.

The Peterson estate was, until part of it was recently given over to city subdivisions, the largest piece of single property within the city limits, it is said. The old Indian trail contained therein, together with the fact that it is one of the best known nurseries in America, marks it as a point of interest.

Mrs. Peterson was largely responsible for the opening of the Sunday school in Bowmanville, Ill., which later became a Congregational church. She had been for many years a trustee at Mount Holyoke College, from which she was graduated, and was considered a national authority on forestry, being chairman of forestry of the General Federation of Woman's Clubs.

Until a few months before her death she had lived continuously in the old homestead at 3400 Peterson avenue, Chicago, where her son, William A. Peterson, and three grandchildren were born and grew up.

Funeral services were held Thursday, September 7, at 3 p. m. There were many floral tributes.

Louis Becu.

Louis Becu, of 2111 Salisbury street, Pittsburgh, Pa., a florist in Phipps conservatory, Schenley park, was found dead near the conservatory Sunday morning, September 3. A hemorrhage is said to have caused death. When last seen by fellow employees, Mr. Becu appeared to be well.

Mrs. C. W. Harold.

The death of Mrs. C. W. Harold, wife of one of the proprietors of the Ozark Pansy Gardens, West Plains, Mo., occurred September 6, at the family home. Mrs. Harold underwent an operation for cancer March 21. The operation was a success, but in her weakened condition she was unable to withstand the shock. Her maiden name was Thora Francis Finch and she was born at Farmer City, Ill., December 2, 1873. She was an energetic worker and entered the florists' business on East Main street, Decatur, Ill., in the spring of 1908. Mr. Harold was a grower of wholesale plants and built up an extensive business in rooted cuttings and pot plants. In 1916 they sold out their interests in Decatur, Ill., and moved to West Plains, Mo., where they have conducted the Ozark Pansy Gardens. One small house was erected in 1920, which was destroyed by fire March 1, 1922, but since then Mr. Harold has been engaged in building a new place.

COREOPSIS UNDER GLASS.

Can coreopsis be forced successfully for winter bloom? We have a constant call for yellow flowers for table use and coreopsis would be a welcome addition to calendulas and bulbous stock if it would do well. How should it be handled? H. D. P.—N. Y.

Coreopsis grandiflora, which is an improved form of the older C. lanceolata, makes a useful plant for spring flowering under glass. It is really a biennial, although usually classed as a perennial, and it is not too late to sow seeds now and have good plants for forcing next season. This coreopsis will not stand much forcing and cannot be started early. It can, however, be flowered well indoors from early April until the middle of May and can be planted either in pots or in a bench or bed. Pots, if used, should not be less than six inches in diameter, and when the plants run up to flowers, it is an advantage to let them stand on a bed of soil and root through. They are vigorous growers, need plenty of water and liquid manure as the spikes run up.

Another nice yellow flower for cutting, an annual, is Leptosyne maritima. It produces much larger flowers than the coreopsis, is lemon yellow in color and carried on long stems. The flowers are quite fragrant and keep extremely well in water. It does not produce so many flowers as coreopsis, but blooms for a longer period. Sow seeds in late September and pot as long as needed. In 8-inch pots, splendid flowers are produced. As the plant is quite a strong grower, a stake will be needed for each.

While the leptosyne is an annual and should be grown along without a check, the coreopsis should be left outdoors until it has had several sharp freezes to stop growth. C. W.

TEMPERATURE FOR MYOSOTIS.

What night temperature does myosotis require? N. R.—Del.

Myosotis succeeds well in a night temperature of 45 to 50 degrees, not higher. C. W.

Ferns

COMBATING FERN SCALE.

I am sending you under separate cover a few leaves of ferns affected with some kind of bug. Do you know what it is and what spray solution to use? A. F. L.—Ill.

This is another example of the fern scale, an insect that is frequently found on Boston ferns, as well as on many other species of the same family. It will pay to go over the plants carefully and cut out the fronds that are most affected; after this a regular course of spraying once a week should be instituted. The best spraying solution for this purpose is composed of one-half ounce whale oil soap and one teaspoonful of a strong nicotine solution to one gallon of water. Dissolve the soap by boiling and add the nicotine after the mixture is cool and just before using. Some growers use a stronger solution than this, but it sometimes injures the tender tips of the fronds, especially when the sun comes out soon after the plants are sprayed. W. H. T.

MAKING FERNS GREENER.

Will you advise me as to what I can do to produce more green in my Boston and Roosevelt ferns? They are in benches with one-fourth rotted manure and some bone meal. They are growing finely, but have a yellow color. R. G.—Ky.

If these ferns were planted in poor soil, it would be advisable to apply additional fertilizer to give the plants color. With one-quarter rotted manure and also bone meal, it would seem that they are suffering from an excess of food and, instead of giving more, it is suggested that a light sprinkling of lime be applied to the soil, this to be scratched in with a hand weeder. Give the plants plenty of air and do not soak them too much with water. W. H. T.

FERN SCALE REMEDY.

On a shipment of 500 2¼-inch ferns I have just received, I find that some of the old leaves are infested in the manner indicated by the specimens I have mailed you. What is this infestation and how can it be got rid of? A. E. B.—N. Y.

The ferns received are badly infested with fern scale, and it would be a good idea to remove all the infested fronds and then to give the plants a dip in an insecticide, if they are still in pots. If they are planted outdoors, it will be more troublesome to get rid of the insects, and spraying at intervals of one week will be about the only way to attack the pests.

For either dipping or spraying, the solution should consist of half an ounce of whale-oil soap and one teaspoonful of a nicotine solution to one gallon of water. Dissolve the soap by boiling it in the water, but do not add the nicotine solution until the mixture is cool and until you are ready to use it. W. H. T.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

POTTING HYDRANGEAS.

For early forcing, hydrangeas which have been pot-grown through the entire summer are the best; the wood on these comes shorter-jointed, and by gradually withholding water from them they can be ripened much earlier than on the planted-out stock. Many successful plantsmen grow all of their hydrangeas in pots and find that it pays, especially when the plants are wanted for an early Easter. The average small grower prefers to plant out his hydrangeas and, provided they do not suffer from drought, such plants grow much larger than they would have done in pots. For large specimens nothing can beat the planting-out method. There are many florists who buy field-grown stock in the fall rather than grow it. In such cases it is not wise to order the stock until it is well matured.

Those who grow their own hydrangeas in the field should start potting or tubbing them now. Get a nice ball of earth with each plant, give them a generous soil, stand them outdoors and spray them freely until they are established. Shade them only from the strong sun, and remember that it is a common blunder to shade all plants too much after lifting. When the sun cannot warm the soil, the roots remain inactive and such plants will continue to wilt for a long time.

PROPAGATING GERANIUMS.

The nights are becoming much cooler and the mornings now have a decidedly fall-like nip. Frosts may have already come in some sections and will probably not be long delayed in others. September is a good month to start geranium propagation. October is better, provided you can be sure that the frost will not harm your stock. Geranium cuttings are less liable to root satisfactorily in August than later in the season, because the cuttings are too soft, and in hot, muggy weather many of them will damp off. The firmer the cuttings are, the better. It is for this reason that cuttings taken from stock under glass always show a much lower percentage of loss than those from outdoor stock, and florists who have an ample supply of stock plants under glass are fortunate.

Do not make the cuttings too long, and trim the leaves off quite closely, together with the little green scales on the sides of the shoots. If the cuttings are succulent, let them lie thinly spread out on a potting bench for twenty-four hours; they will then be less liable to damp off. Clean, sharp sand in flats or cutting benches which are well drained should be provided and a soaking watering given the cuttings. Run them on the dry side until they are rooted. Never shade geraniums at all. They do not need it and will root much better if the sun is permitted to warm the sand. If your sand is fine, add some fine coal, coal ashes or charcoal to it. For that matter, they will root well in any of the other mediums named. If you are short on any particular varieties, pot up a number of stock plants, cut these back well and run them somewhat on the dry side until they are established. These will give you a nice crop of cuttings in early winter.

AMARYLLIS.

These winter and spring-flowering bulbs, which are now botanically called hippeastrums, will have practically completed their growth, but should be given an ample supply of water for some time yet. The old method of laying the pots on their sides under a greenhouse bench soon after the plants have flowered has become obsolete, and it is recognized that amaryllis need little drying off if complete success is to be had with them. At present our plants are plunged to their brims in an old hotbed and fully exposed to the weather. They root through the pots somewhat, and the increase in the size of the bulbs is remarkable. These plants will remain in the frames, protected only from frost, until late in October, when they will be placed on a sunny bench well up to the glass and kept somewhat drier at the root. Water is only withheld, however, for a few weeks.

NERINES.

The beautiful nerines, known as Guernsey lilies, are popular outdoor plants in some of our warmer states, but with most of us they are cool greenhouse subjects. The spikes are just starting to show on the brilliant scarlet N. Fothergillii major. A little later will come N. corusca, sarniensis and the many beautiful hybrids, which come in a variety of colors. Though it is not grown much commercially, there is a good field for this charming plant, which comes into flower at a time when greenhouse flowers are none too abundant. Water them just a little when the spikes show; grow the plants cool and after they flower you may do any necessary repotting. Nerines always flower best when the pots are well matted with roots.

DUTCH BULBS.

A large proportion of the Dutch bulbs have now arrived and appear to be of unusually good quality. No rural florist can afford to be without a good batch of these. For home trade they are simply indispensable, and fill a place which no other seasonable flowers can usurp. The great buying public has become somewhat satiated with carnations, roses, mums and violets and when the gradually lengthening days bring along the early crops of tulips, hyacinths and narcissi, they are always eagerly welcomed as harbingers of spring. For hyacinths the demand is always less vigorous than for tulips and narcissi. The smaller sizes of baby hyacinths force well in flats and are useful, while there is a fairly good call for pots of such favorites as Czar Peter, La Grandesse, Queen of the Blues, King of the Blues, Grand Maitre, L'Innocence and other reliables and a certain number, of course, are used for glasses and many more for bedding out purposes.

Narcissi are the most valuable of the Dutch bulbs for cut flowers, although they are far inferior to tulips for bedding-out purposes. Single varieties are the most popular, although a good many of the old, rather coarse double Von Sion are sold. Single Von Sion, Golden Spur, Victoria, Emperor and Glory of Leiden are all splendid. The last-named is a beautiful thing, now comparatively cheap. King Alfred is a wonderful pure yellow of mammoth size, the American Beauty of the commercial daffodil family. A certain number of the sweet-scented Campernellii rugulosus are sure to sell, also a moderate number of such short trumpets as Barrii conspicuus, Sir Watkins, Mrs. Langtry and poeticus ornatus. The poetaz section also must not be overlooked; they are splendid for cutting.

Tulips sell well in pans. Especially popular of late years have been the Darwins, the queens of the tulip family. Good early forcers are La Reine, which comes of a lovely pink color when forced; White Hawk, pure white; Flamingo, carmine rose; Rose Luisante, beautiful deep rose; Fred Moore, orange; Keizerskroon, scarlet, bordered with yellow, and Yellow Prince, a sweet-scented bright yellow. Among early doubles Murillo holds first place, followed by Couronne d'Or, Tearose or Brimstone Beauty and Schoonoord, the pure white sport of Murillo.

Coming to the Darwins, which of late years have forged rapidly to the front, these make splendid pans, and William Copeland, Pride of Haarlem, Bartigon, Princess Elizabeth, Clara Butt, Farncombe Sanders, William Pitt and Mme. Krelage are excellent commercial varieties. The lilac, lavender, maroon, blue and heliotrope shades, while popular in bedding, do not sell well in pans. The Darwins need good-sized pans, eight to ten inches in diameter. They can also be forced in flats, but it is best not to start them so early as the other forcing tulips.

After potting, panning or boxing bulbous plants, soak them well with water. Where a good frost-proof but cold cellar is at your disposal, it makes an excellent storage place for bulbs. Shelves may be built in tiers to contain them. Some sand or fine cinders should be spread on the shelves and double thicknesses of burlap can be utilized to exclude light. Keeping the bulbs buried in the soil outdoors is a practice which is rapidly becoming obsolete, with little to recommend it. C. W.

BALTIMORE florists are preparing for the biggest F. T. D. gathering yet. The dates are October 10 to 12.

LAST week's heat wave, followed by the heavy rains and colder weather this week, cut down the large supplies of stock on the wholesale markets.

ONE Classified ad in last week's Review contained 219 lines. Their pulling power has transformed the aforetime "little liners," in some cases, into pretty big ones.

UNQUESTIONABLY the bulb crops are light, but even of the shortest of them it seems possible for the florist to obtain as many as he wants at the price. There is a limit to everything.

IF you have not gone over your heating system this summer, do so now, before cold weather arrives. A few minor repairs or replacements now may avert serious trouble in midwinter.

FEW accounts for telegraph orders between florists, particularly those in small towns, run into more than a few dollars. They should be paid promptly, not allowed to drag several months.

THE retailer who carries customers on his books six months, a year and more encourages one of two ideas in the minds of his clientele; they think he either is so poor a business man they can pay him as they please, or makes so large a profit he can well afford to wait for his money. Neither of these ideas is one we should be willing to let prevail.

DUTCH bulbs which do not reach these shores before the tariff act becomes law will be assessed at about twice the present rate of duty. Lily bulbs, on the other hand, will pay less than half the present rate. Complete report of the duties arrived at by the conference committee of the Senate and House of Representatives appears on page 24.

NOTWITHSTANDING the drop in temperature at the beginning of this week, the coal market has not increased in activity. On every hand reports are heard of large consumers holding off on purchases, for one reason or another. Now would seem a good time for greenhouse owners to buy their fuel, for deliveries and prices will likely be less easy when a wave of heavy orders stiffens the coal market.

UNTIL it has been demonstrated that a buyer is habitually looking for the long end of everything, "The customer is always right" is a good motto to keep in mind.

THE month of state fairs is here. And florists, who realize the need of greater selling effort this season, are participating in larger numbers than in previous years.

WHILE a few florists meet trouble because they are overambitious, many more suffer from lack of desire to do more. Many of us are satisfied, it would seem, with too limited a scope.

IT appears that figured glass bulb bowls are in favor this season. One Chicago firm has no less than seven styles of bowls. All of these can be sold at prices that should please the public.

A FEW bowls full of Paper Whites and pebbles, displayed in your show window with a tilted case of bulbs back of them, will remind passers that it's time to provide these home brighteners for the winter.

IF the seed crops at Rocky Ford are as good as the dozen melons which reached the Editor's desk from that place last week, J. C. Robinson will deserve congratulations. They were the best we've eaten all season. Thank you, Mr. Robinson!

IT'S remarkable how often people must be reminded to buy the same things they have bought in previous years, but it's remarkable, too, how the florist can add to his business if he goes to the trouble of reminding his customers constantly by various forms of advertising.

THE larger a business establishment becomes the bigger the profits when everybody is busy, but the bigger the losses when they are not. A florist should satisfy himself that he can maintain a greater volume of sales constantly before he sets out on an ambitious program of expansion.

WHEN complaint comes written with a pencil on a sheet from a scratch pad, that leading houses refuse trade prices to the complainant, the answer is not hard. Get printed stationery. That is some indication that you are entitled to trade prices; otherwise, if you are new in the business, there is none.

SURPRISING is the strength of sentiment that good times are at hand. Adverse occurrences appear to have little effect, just now, on the prevailing optimism. Apropos of this, one may quote Dun's review of business conditions last week: "Despite holiday interruptions and other impediments, the week has brought a turn for the better in business. Records of production in basic industries disclose the adverse effect of the labor unsettlement, but the restraints are lessened as coal mining is more fully resumed, and reports indicate improvement in the transportation situation. Evidence of recovery in iron and steel manufacture, following a decided setback, is encouraging, and there now seems reason to believe that fewer obstacles to progress will be encountered. In view of the scope of the strikes and their protracted duration, more stability has prevailed in business than might have been expected, and it is significant in this connection that the monthly statistics show a further reduction in number of failures."

PUBLICITY of the kinds florists frequently are asked to buy has no value unless it makes the cash register tinkle, which it seldom seems to do.

CORRESPONDENTS WANTED.

If you are in constant touch with your local fellow florists and like to write, you can find interesting and gainful occupation for some of your spare time as correspondent for The Review. Newsletters are desired from the following places:

New Orleans, La.	Albany, N. Y.
Dallas, Tex.	Rhinebeck, N. Y.
Fort Worth, Tex.	Buffalo, N. Y.
Lincoln, Neb.	Springfield, Mass.
Seattle, Wash.	Detroit, Mich.

If your city is not now regularly represented in the news columns of The Review, write the Editor as to your qualifications for putting it on the trade map.

ADVERTISING PULLS.

John Wanamaker says if there is one business on earth that a "quitter" should leave severely alone it is advertising. To make a success of advertising, one must be prepared to stick to it tenaciously. He should know before he begins it that he must spend money—considerable of it, and he must continue to spend it. Advertising is a growth. Results at the beginning are not always commensurate with expenditures. In this it is not different from other phases of substantial business prosperity. Advertising does not jerk; it pulls. It begins gently at first, but the pull is steady. It increases day by day and year by year, until it exerts an irresistible power. It is likened to a team pulling a heavy load. A thousand spasmodic, jerky pulls will not budge the load, while one-half the power exerted in steady effort will start and keep it moving. Great successes in advertising have been made by men of courage, conviction and stick-to-it-iveness.

EAST AND WEST.

It is an axiom in the publishing business that "it is not where a paper is printed, but where it is read, that counts in getting results for advertisers." It is proved by the experience of those who use The Review. Of course, Chicago rapidly is becoming the publishing center of America, but results to advertisers do not flow from the fact that printing is done at Chicago; orders arise from the circumstance that Chicago publications are read throughout the length and breadth of the land. It works like this:

Kindly discontinue our advertisement in the Classified department of The Review, of carnations; stock sold.—The Dingee & Conard Co., West Grove, Pa., September 1, 1922.

Please discontinue our advertisement of bulbs of the yellow calla, as our crop is now pretty well booked up.—W. W. Ayers, Capitola, Cal., August 29, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market has improved to the extent that there are occasional flurries, when staples are in good demand and herbaceous stock clears, but business of the character looked upon as seasonable has not commenced, although usually expected to start in with the opening of the schools. Due to the many outdoor attractions nowadays, the best class of flower buyers is absent from the city as much as possible; in fact, judging by the streams of motor cars to be seen continually on the fine roads in the neighborhood of New York, one is likely to wonder whether anybody at all is at home.

The supply of asters is shortening, but there are still too many to be easily moved, and arrivals include much inferior stock; the price range on quotable material is about 5 cents to 25 cents per bunch, and many transactions cover original packages just as they arrive.

Dahlias are coming in heavily, good, bad and medium. The supply of gladioli has decreased considerably, and much rubbish is arriving, the tail end of the supply.

The supply of roses is increasing, but, as the demand is unchanged, prices are weaker. American Beauty suffers through a large oversupply. Hybrid teas are also in too large quantity to make clearances easily, and there is daily much carried-over stock to be disposed of.

A few carnations are coming in, mostly from left-over field plants, but fair in quality at that. However, they do not attract much attention. Carnations are not expected to become much of a factor in the market until next month.

Orchids are in somewhat scant supply, yet ample for the demand, which is small. Cattleyas are bringing from $75 to $150 per hundred, the higher figure including some fine hybrids. A few spray orchids arrive, but not regularly enough to make a market.

White lilies are in good supply, with a sluggish demand. There is a sufficiency of rubrum lilies, and sales are made at $4 to $6 per hundred. Lily of the valley receipts are about in proportion to the demand, and prices are somewhat stronger.

There continues to be an abundant supply of herbaceous flowers, the offerings including zinnias in quantity, coreopsis, feverfew, tritomas, candytuft, delphiniums, calendulas, French marigolds, buddleias, cosmos, ageratums and rudbeckia. The supply of early chrysanthemums is increasing. This is true chiefly of the Golden Glow variety.

Various Notes.

William Saville, for a time connected with the Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, N. J., has severed his connection with that concern and is now operating the range of glass at Plainfield, N. J., formerly operated by Charles S. Stanley.

Sam Berkowitz, Jr., for a number of years buyer for Vesselius, of Paterson, N. J., is going into the retail business for himself, and will open a store at 105 Broadway, Paterson, September 30.

The Horticultural Society of New York has arranged to hold an exhibition of dahlias in the Museum building, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, September 22 to 24. Visitors to the exhibition will be able to enjoy an inspection of the garden's own planting of dahlias, including over 500 of the better and newer varieties, located close to the museum.

James Rutig opened the wholesale store of the new firm, James Rutig & Co., in the Eighteenth street flower market, Thursday, September 7, with a large display of stock. A large and handsome basket of American Beauty roses was displayed at the entrance, presented by friends of the new concern.

Charles Weber, the carnation grower of Lynbrook, N. Y., is turning a portion of his 11-acre tract adjoining his greenhouses into a real estate proposition. He has just completed his first house, located near Malverne station, on the Long Island railroad.

Charles F. Bertanzel, Roslyn, L. I., has met a strong demand for stock of his new Mother's carnation, the pot plant variety for Mothers' day sales. The larger part of the available stock is already sold.

Last week's state incorporations included the Larchmont Nurseries, Mamaroneck, with a capital of $5,000. R. Heidkamp, A. Heidkamp and A. Penn are the incorporators.

There is now on view in the Brooklyn Botanic Gardens a collection of perennial asters brought from England last year by Montague Free, the head gardener at the gardens. In all, there are about seventy-five varieties, embracing a number of shades of color. The plants came from the estate of the Hon. Vicary Gibbs, son of the late Lord Aldenham, who has devoted some years to the improvement of the type.

The annual chrysanthemum exhibition of the American Institute will be held in the American Engineering Societies building, November 8 to 10. The annual fall show of the Horticultural Society of New York will be held in the American Museum of Natural History November 9 to 12. The Tarrytown Horticultural Society will hold an exhibition of dahlias and other flowers in the Y. M. C. A. building, Tarrytown, September 22. The society's annual fall exhibition will be held in Music hall, November 1 to 3.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

Business has been picking up for the last two weeks, probably because the annual exhibition, with its million and a quarter attendance, brought the city families back. Also the opening of the schools has brought them back in large numbers, with a consequent increase in flower sales. The big jump will not come, however, until after the frost, as there are great quantities of garden flowers. The asters and gladioli are beautiful and the florists' windows are filled with beautiful displays of them.

Canadian National Exhibition.

Prizes have been awarded for the Canadian national exhibition. The Horticultural building was greatly patronized this year by florists and the public. There were many professional competitors, and after a long agitation the park superintendents were allowed to compete, much to the satisfaction of florists generally.

First prize for the big decorative display covering several hundred square feet went to Thomas Manton, with H. G. Dillemuth a close second. They also divided the prizes in several other groups, including ferns, palms, etc. Mr. Dillemuth had an exceedingly pretty group of caladiums, carrying off first prize. J. W. Cripps figured in the prizes, and the Dale Estate won first in the orchid display.

There were shows each week of cut flowers, the St. Thomas Horticultural Society figuring prominently in the winning of the gladiolus prizes. T. H. P. Hammett and the Georgetown Floral Co., two prominent growers, also secured several prizes. The show was one of the best from the professional florist's standpoint that has been staged at the Horticultural building in many years.

Various Notes.

The Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association has secured a federal charter without capital or shares. Emery B. Hamilton, of London, Ont., has been in charge of this committee and to him much credit is due for the manner in which this work has been handled.

C. J. Hay, president of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association, Brockville, Ont., has built large offices and a warehouse adjacent to his greenhouses on King street, the main street of Brockville, as well as a new store.

Many florists are planning to attend the F. T. D. convention at Baltimore. The telegraph delivery business has been increasing and there is a greater interest in the association than ever before among Toronto members.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Friday, September 8, the word went out that the market at last had turned and few there are, either among buyers or producers and sellers, who do not hope the change will prove not only permanent but progressive. The remarkable feature of the turn in conditions was that it should have come in the midst of a heat wave that was without parallel so far as September is concerned. At the beginning of the week there were signs that the turn was coming, but the return of the terrific heat that had marked the opening of the month postponed the change by crowding in the market with low-grade stock, especially open and soft roses. A well informed wholesaler suggests that not ten per cent of the roses which reached the market last week were of shipping quality, and that many of them were unsalable. But the torridity served to force the crop, and even before the heat wave broke the cuts fell off sharply. The demand balanced receipts September 8 and September 9. Most of the wholesale houses closed with fairly clean iceboxes.

It is not expected that there will be a sudden rise in prices, but it is believed there will be a legitimate demand for each day's receipts and that, with seasonable weather, the stock will be good enough to move at the prices asked. Not many expect to see high prices in the Chicago market this season, but nearly everyone looks for good, active demand and a large turnover from now on.

The present week opened with the daily receipts of stock much reduced. The change from high heat to subnormal temperatures checked rose production, but it so improved quality that there probably are more shippable roses than there were before. Prices have braced up a little, principally on the shorter lengths of stem.

Last week's heat wave went far toward finishing the gladiolus crops for the season. The late plantings were forced into flower and the houses handling the cuts of certain large growers were overstocked, while other houses had almost none at all. There will, of course, be gladioli until frost, but they have passed the stage of being much of a market factor.

Asters also were cut down by the heat and drought, broken September 9 and 10. Whether or not they can come back will depend on the weather of the next few days. However, there are northern asters which will come on this

The World's Greatest Flower Market

"Government figures show that about one-sixth of the enormous glass area of this country is in and around Chicago. Hundreds of the world s greatest commercial flower growers are here. Specialized producers are here. They get quality and big volume besides. If it's variety you want you can depend on this collection of growers.

"Chicago glass area provides stock for a tremendous shipping trade. North, South, East and West, as far as a thousand miles, Chicago is able to ship the fairest that grow. Glass by the hundreds of thousands of square feet is added yearly to supply the nation's demand, until shipping records now show that Chicago is the World's Greatest Flower Market,"—

market if there is a demand for them.

Carnations are increasingly abundant. While not long enough in stem for other purposes, they meet every requirement for funeral work, of which there has been a good run for several days.

Chrysanthemums have become a matter of regular supply. There is no special call for them as yet and it is interesting to note that consignments are being received from florists who, a little later, not only will use their own cut but probably will draw on this market as well. What they get now and will pay then may be a matter for comment at that time. In addition to the regular local supply and the consignments of surplus, we now have with us quantities of California mums, which are likely to increase rapidly if the weather stays cool.

Because of the exhaustion of the supply of cold storage bulbs, there are only a few growers now consigning lilies to this market, but it appears lilies are worth more elsewhere than here; at least, wholesalers who have sought supplies from other centers have been told lilies are to be had only on the assurance of a 20-cent average, or better.

There is an increased supply of valley, but the stock of pips in storage is so low this item will be in strong hands until the new crop comes in.

Of other flowers the supply is so small or the quality was so impaired by last week's heat wave that nothing need be said at present. The market is lacking in variety at the moment.

Kruchtens Plan Expansion.

Some months ago John Kruchten intimated to some of his friends that he and his brother Henry, composing the firm of John Kruchten Co., contemplated expansion this season. Now comes announcement that they have taken over and will operate the greenhouses of their father, Nick Kruchten, and that a one-third interest in the wholesale commission business has been sold to C. L. Sherer, who last week severed his connection, of some years' standing, with the Chicago Flower Growers' Association. Early in his trade experience Mr. Sherer was associated with the Kruchtens and he resumes that connection for the purpose of handling the shipping department. City sales and office details will be directly in charge of John Kruchten, while Henry Kruchten will have supervision of the greenhouses. It seems an arrangement which should make for progress.

Widening Western Avenue.

Preparations are being made for the widening and boulevarding of Western avenue, and numerous greenhouse establishments are affected. At Foster avenue there are the large ranges of A. H. Budlong, H. Bauske and the John Kruchten Co. All these houses have to be cut off seventeen feet. In the preparation for the work the city has appraised the properties and assessed damages and benefits. The growers are awarded a little more in damages than they are assessed for benefits, perhaps enough to pay for remodeling their places. Their loss will be in bench space. Krowka Bros. own another range which will be shortened seventeen feet, and farther north there are several other ranges which will be affected, most of them devoted to vegetables.

Various Notes.

Growers are taking in coal as they can get it, even if the price is high. As a matter of fact, so many buyers, to whom fuel is less vital than it is to florists, are holding off that the market is not so strong as it was; cars on which demurrage is piling up are being offered at small concessions. No florist can afford to take chances, and nearly everyone is buying a part of his season's needs.

The first meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club in the new season will be held at the range of Stielow Bros., Niles Center, Thursday afternoon, October 5, when a demonstration of the oil-burning equipment there will be provided. The engineer of the Victor Oil Burner Co. will be present to elucidate the improvements recently made in the type of burners originally installed at the Stielow range.

George J. Ball has closed a pending deal whereby he acquires thirty acres of land at West Chicago, nine miles from his range at Glen Ellyn. He plans to put some of it in perennials next spring and will build greenhouses there the following year. Since the new site is but nine miles from his present place, over concrete roads, he expects to operate both under his personal direction with ease.

September 11 Max H. Awizzus joined the staff of the Joseph Foerster Co.

B. F. Ellis, of Kennicott Bros. Co., has been making a trip into the northwest, looking over general business conditions and calling on members of the trade. He has found florists fairly well satisfied with the past and confident as to the future of their business.

Henry Arnold and Mrs. Arnold have returned from a three weeks' motor trip through Wisconsin.

Ed. Enders, president of C. A. Samuelson, Inc., has returned from his trip to the Pacific coast. He had the time of his life and found florists everywhere glad to lay down business to be hospitable. Mr. Enders spent some time at C. A. Samuelson's ranch at Wendell, Idaho, and is brown and hard from participating in the harvest. He reports that Mr. and Mrs. Samuelson both are greatly benefited by the outdoor life they now lead.

John Ziska's name appears pretty regularly in the news of the local links on the daily sport pages. Last week, in a choice hole event, twelve out of eighteen, at the Briergate Golf Club, he was

Ed. Hauswirth, once well known in the market, renewed old acquaintances September 11. For the last four years he has been located at McHenry, Ill., where, among his other activities, he helped develop the widely known McHenry golf course. Outdoor life has agreed with him, but he plans to return to the florists' business for the winter.

Sweet pea growers report that the hot weather last week gave the plants a severe setback, but the changed weather that opened the present week enabled them to make rapid recovery.

The range of M. Artner, at Morton Grove, is being equipped with the latest type of oil-burning apparatus by the Victor Oil Burner Co. It is expected that the installation will be ready to operate within ten days.

The latest addition to the staff of O. A. & L. A. Tonner is Oscar Morgen, Jr., son of Oscar Morgen and nephew of Peter Morgen, well known florists at Huntingburg, Ind. Young Mr. Morgen will handle the roses received by the Tonners.

September 20 Joseph Foerster and associates will celebrate the thirteenth anniversary of the concern, which opened on that day in 1909 as Kyle & Foerster. It is pleasant to relate that the thirteenth year has been the best of them all.

L. & J. Choromokos, who have for some time conducted a highly successful retail business at 76 West Washington street, have attained considerable publicity of late by advertising that September 8 20,000 roses would be given away to visitors to commemorate the change of their business name to the Athenia Florists. They advertised the change was because Americans find the family name difficult to remember or pronounce.

Bassett & Washburn are drying off their houses of Russell, with the intention of bringing the plants into crop for Christmas.

Visitors.

Among last week's visitors was Albert Barber, of Cleveland, who in good seasons has been among the heaviest buyers on this market and who plans to come back strongly this autumn.

E. W. McLellan, of San Francisco, was in town again last week, on his way home from New York, where, among other things, he had a conference with express officials with regard to allowance for the weight of ice in cut flower shipments. He was not able to get a decision; the matter is under consideration.

One of last week's visitors was William F. Mayhall, a pleasant young man who is the right bower of E. G. Gillett, the pioneer Cincinnati wholesaler. Incidentally Mr. Mayhall is Mr. Gillett's son-in-law. He had been vacationing in the north and on his way home took the opportunity of looking over this market.

Walter Hamilton, of the Manitowoc Floral Co., Manitowoc, Wis., was in the market September 11.

Danville, Ill.—Howard Porter has started in the florists' business here.

ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

The weather has been abnormally hot here the last week. Gardens and lawns are dry and outside flowers are deteriorating. Business is improving. There are numerous weddings and many social events in progress. All in the trade report numerous orders, but few of large size.

State Fair at End.

After one of the hottest weeks of the summer, probably one of the hottest September weeks ever experienced here, the 1922 state fair came to an end Saturday, September 9. The attendance was good, despite the heat, although not so great as last year. The exhibits in horticulture were better than in years past. Amateur flower growers in greater number exhibited and produced better material, notwithstanding the summer dryness. Amateur table decorations, in which garden flowers were used, covered fifteen tables scoring about 65; this made it a rather hard task for C. J. Olson, judge. Eighteen baskets of wild flowers and ten baskets of garden flowers were exhibited by amateurs.

A creditable gladiolus show was kept in good condition all week by the Riverview Gardens and Rainbow Gardens. The collections of annuals and perennials displayed by amateurs were not so large as usual, but of better quality. C. A. Kirtland won the American Gladiolus Society bronze medal for the best amateur collection of gladioli. The West Side Floral Co. won first place with its Kaiserin roses. Holm & Olson won first on Mrs. Charles Russell, Columbia, Ophelia and red roses. The Chicago Avenue Floral Co. won first on Premier and on yellow and pink roses. Swanson's, Inc., won first on white roses and second on Columbia.

John Sten, of Red Wing; C. A. Mathes, C. E. Cary, A. B. Franklin, T. A. Kenning, E. A. Cusner, O. J. Olson and C. O. Rosendahl acted as judges in the various classes.

Professional awards, in addition to those mentioned in last week's Review, were made to Holm & Olson, Swanson's, Inc., and the Chicago Avenue Floral Co.; these firms won first, second and third places, respectively, in the following classes: Window box, filled; bridal bouquet, corsage bouquet, perennial phlox, not less than twelve varieties; table decoration, wreath on easel and basket of flowers.

Various Notes.

Harold Thompson, of Albert Lea, was a visitor at the fair, Friday, September 8.

Gust Melmquist exhibited a few nice peaches at the fair, which he had grown at Bedford.

C. F. Rice, of Rice Bros., was confined to his home several days last week by illness.

The general committee of the flower festival met at the Elks' Club, Thursday evening, September 7, and took up matters dealing with the show November 11 to 16. Advertising, finance, exhibits and other matters were taken up and will be reported on at the next regular meeting of the Minnesota State Florists' Association, September 21. C.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The week just past has been the hottest and driest of the summer, each day being hotter than the one previous, until the "pep" was all taken out of business. Sunday night, September 10, brought relief in the form of heavy rains.

Vacationists are returning home and, with the cooler days, the florists are looking for an increase in business. Outdoor stock is still plentiful. Roses are to be had in quantities and are of good quality, considering the extremely hot weather. A few carnations are to be had, but their stems are short. Gladioli, asters, zinnias and calendulas are in abundance.

Various Notes.

The Posie Shop, in the Washington street market, is doing well, considering the quietness of trade in general.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blossom and Mrs. Shives motored to Toledo, O., and visited with the trade. From there they went by boat to Detroit for a few days.

The Blossom Floral Co. has been receiving some good strawflowers from Miss Flick's farm, in California.

The Doswell Floral Co. reports business quiet. Mrs. R. W. Doswell took her place again in the store September 1.

Judge and Mrs. Vesey have returned from a month's motor trip through the east. A number of the large greenhouse establishments were visited.

Fred Lienhard has taken a position as rose grower with W. J. & M. S. Vesey. Stock is looking fine and in good shape for fall business at the Vesey greenhouses.

Recent trade visitors were Alexander Sawyer, J. Levine, D. D. Johnson, H. A. Hecht and Mr. Thomas. S. N.

Streator, Ill.—L. M. Mason, who has for several years been engaged in growing greenhouse vegetables for the wholesale market, with a few flowers as a side line, has this season set aside a section of about 25,000 square feet of glass for flowers. R. M. Klum, formerly with the Alpha Floral Co., of Kansas City, Mo., is in charge of this department, which will now be made an important branch of the business.

The Market.

There is no change in the market. The supply of roses is made up of short-stemmed stock from the young plants and sell at a low price. A few long-stemmed Russells are bringing a high price, but the demand for these is not large. Dahlias are heavier in supply, taking the place of asters, which are short-stemmed and of a poor quality, selling at low prices. There are a few asters, however, that bring $4 per hundred. Gladioli are plentiful and good. The supply of lilies is slowing up, with the consequent advance in price. Chrysanthemum Golden Glow and Bouvardia Humboldtii have taken their place in the market and are of good quality, bringing fair prices. Taking the market all of the way through, the supply is greater than the demand, and no one suffers from a lack of stock.

Various Notes.

George Burton will erect on his grounds at Arlingham, White Marsh valley, a greenhouse, 28x402 feet, and a service building for boilers, packing room and machinery, 50x120 feet, with a railroad siding elevated to the boiler room. Two Coatsville 200-horsepower boilers will be installed. The water for the range will be obtained from a water stand pipe with a capacity of 105,000 gallons. The contract was awarded to Hitchings & Co. Mr. Burton and his family have taken a trip to Canada.

Emil H. Geschick and wife returned Labor day from a tour of Europe.

A. C. Patterson enjoyed a few weeks at Ocean City. He is looking well.

Leo Niessen is getting some fine shipments of cattleyas.

Sydney Bayersdorfer is tipped off that the tariff bill is going through shortly.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The tide has turned slowly, but surely, and indications all point towards a steady improvement from now on. Far too many flowers are still coming in for the needs of the market, but the overwhelming gluts are over and clean-ups are decidedly better. Gladioli are still arriving in great numbers, but the spikes are smaller and the popular sorts sell more readily. There will be an ample supply of these until killing frosts arrive, and these may be looked for any time after September 20 in this latitude.

Many asters were spotted and spoiled by recent drenching rain storms. The weather has been extremely fickle, and the first third of the month gave us over two and one-half inches of rain. Good asters are selling decidedly better than they were a week ago; a good many American Branching are now seen. Roses have been in better demand, especially whites for weddings, but calls are so variable that one day there will be a good clean-up and the following day, a glut. The demand is best for medium lengths. There are too many short stems and the call for fancies is not at all robust.

Tuberoses are more plentiful than for years, but they do not sell well. Everlastings of all kinds are abundant, and there are small supplies of delphiniums, dahlias, cosmos, calendulas, liatris, buddleia and other outdoor flowers.

Cattleyas continue scarce. Valley has been selling better, with the renewal of weddings, and there is now a nice supply of white bouvardia available for bridal bouquets, for which it is popular. Sweet peas are scarce and poor. Asparagus and adiantum are abundant and unchanged.

A few small carnations come in,

Dahlia Exhibition.

Nearly all available bench space was occupied for the annual combined dahlia shows of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and the New England Dahlia Society, at Horticultural hall, September 9 and 10. Interest in the dahlia as a garden flower continues to grow apace. Exhibitors continue to strive after size and the big, new, handsome decorative and peony varieties appear to be all the rage, although artistically they entirely lack the grace and beauty of the single and cactus types. Long rows of bottles containing single blooms appear to interest the fanciers and some amateurs, but too little is done in the way of artistic arrangement of flowers. The dahlia has not found any favor in Boston as a flower for decorative effects and never will until growers and retailers show people how effectively dahlias can be arranged.

Another change which must be insisted on at future shows is that all flowers be named. Several tables at the last show contained hardly a name. Of what earthly use are such exhibits either to the exhibitor or the would-be buying public? Such displays should be ignored in the giving of awards.

In the Massachusetts Horticultural Society classes the principal winner was I. R. Loker, who took first for twelve show and fancy and twelve cactus, and second for twelve decorative and twelve peony-flowered. W. H. Symonds was second for twelve show and fancy, and first for pompons. Thomas Leavitt, of Dorchester, was first for twenty-four decorative and twelve peony-flowered. Hayden & Storey were first for twelve decorative.

For the largest and best collection, E. M. Gerould, Sunbeam Farm, Beach Bluff, Mass., won first with a splendid collection of beautiful varieties. Especially fine were William Slocombe, Miss Lorna Slocombe, Mrs. Alfred Stearn, Ben Wilson, Rose Nell, Mephistopheles, A. C. Lawrence, Black Beauty, Sorosis Sun, Sulphurea and Judge Marean. Second went to Edgar W. Darling.

Joseph Breck & Sons showed an extensive collection of dahlias, finely arranged and including all types. The decorative and peony-flowered varieties were extremely good, and were worthily awarded a silver medal. George B. Gill, of Medford, had a display of decorative varieties. Norman and Hazel Anderson, E. F. Duryea & Son, Mrs. C. D. Benedict, D. H. Graff and G. L. Fish, all received awards of honorable mention. L. D. Towle, for Læliocattleya Colmaniæ, received a first-class certificate.

In the section in the main exhibition hall devoted to the New England Dahlia Society's exhibits, the Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. had an excellent and well arranged display of dahlias and gladioli. No dahlia attracted more attention than the old cactus, Marguerite Bouchon. Other pleasing varieties were Millionaire, World's Wonder, Margaret E. Millis, Yellow Colosse, The Grizzly, Gladys Sherwood, Kalif, Latonia, Patrick O'Mara, George Walters, M. Inman, Dr. Tevis and Aurora Borealis. Among the gladioli Pink Perfection, Schwaben, Panama, Summer Beauty, Orange Glory, Peace and Loveliness were noteworthy.

Quanapowitt Dahlia Gardens, Wakefield, Mass., had a large table most artistically arranged and a pattern for other growers to take note of. The long-stemmed flowers in baskets and vases were beautifully arranged as to colors, and the use of a little chiffon with some was most pleasing. San Mateo, Tom Lundy, Mrs. R. R. Strange, Mabel B. Taft, Mary C. Burns, Mrs. Carl Salbach, Ruth Gleadell, Elsa Bonnell and Sulphurea were some of the best varieties.

John K. Alexander, East Bridgewater, Mass., was the largest exhibitor and filled several tables with an extensive display, comprising all types.

T. N. Snow, Mather street, Brockton; A. E. Thatcher, 17 Hamlet street, Dorchester; William H. Symonds, Marblehead; Dewing Bros., Phillips avenue, Beachmont; Seven Acres Dahlia Farms, Stoneham; President Dahlia Gardens, Waltham, and Hav-a-Look Gardens, South Billerica, were all among the prize-winners and had excellent displays.

Thomas J. Murphy, Peabody, had, as usual, a beautiful collection of rare and beautiful peony and decorative sorts. Another fine display was that of W. D. Hathaway, New Bedford, Mass. N. R. Comley had a charming, artistically arranged basket of dahlias. No other retailer had a display.

In connection with the show, Albert tance were James Stuart, Mamaroneck, N. Y., and C. Lowther, New York. All reports on finance, transportation, publicity, entertainment and programs were excellent and the meeting was a most enthusiastic one.

Some of the earlier arrivals for the convention include M. C. Ebel and Miss Dorothy Ebel, New York; Thomas W. Head and wife, Red Bank, N. J.; George McMahon and Miss McMahon, Des Moines, Ia.; Frank Wallington, Great Neck, L. I.; Joseph Manda, West Orange, N. J.; R. W. Ross, Dixmont, Pa.; W. J. Sealey and Miss Sealey, Portchester, N. Y.; John Barnet, Sewickley, Pa.; John Tonkin, Chestnut Hill, Pa.; John Johnson, Pittsfield, Mass. A party of over thirty arrived on the morning of September 12; via the outside steamship line of the Eastern Steamship Corporation, and were met by the local committee and taken to the Hotel Brunswick. A good many are arriving over the road per automobiles and the convention gives every indication of being far the most successful yet held.

In the lecture hall of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, where the business sessions will take place, are fine displays of dahlias and gladioli from several specialists. On the stage are choice orchids, dipladenias and other plants, while large palms are also effectively arranged. The ladies' committee, in charge of Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, will serve tea in the small exhibition hall immediately at the close of the first session, to which everyone is invited.

Various Notes.

The coal situation is somewhat improved and Fuel Administrator Hultman assured the public that they need not worry; that present exorbitant prices will decline and that, if some fuel other than domestic sizes of hard coal is used for public buildings, hospitals, apartments, business blocks and churches, there will be ample fuel to go around. He advises householders and others to take advantage of the present unpleasant situation and get rid of their former entire dependence on hard coal. In the state house, Boston, where formerly hard coal was used entirely, a saving of $17,414.75 was made between December 1, 1921, and July 1, 1922, by using a mixture of bituminous and hard coal screenings. There was no smoke nuisance and there was no change made in grates, and only a slight change in draft. The rather desperate coal situation is compelling a number of growers to turn to oil, in lieu of coal, for heating purposes. Among those who are changing over is Fred W. Holbrow, of Dorchester, the bouvardia specialist. The

The Royal Fern

IT IS a well accepted fact that Florists are not in business for money-making. They are a class made up from the world's cultured students of nature and find life's greatest pleasure in the companionship of flowers.

"Consider the lilies . . . . . even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

Flowers! For this great boon to humanity the soul shall speak in terms of gratitude.

Guidnick Greenhouses, Guidnick, R. I., are doing the same, and M. Ernest Moore, the noted lettuce and cucumber specialist, of Arlington, will use oil for the whole of his 150,000 feet of glass, commencing this fall. He has used oil profitably for two years on half his plant. Several other prominent local growers are seriously considering changing over to oil.

The Horticultural Club of Boston will give a complimentary dinner at the Parker house, September 20, to its president, E. H. Wilson, assistant director of the Arnold Arboretum, recently returned from a two years' world tour; during this time he covered nearly 100,000 miles.

Do not forget that the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will resume its meetings at Horticultural hall September 19. Herman H. Bartsch will speak on Canada; Gustave Thommen, on Florida, and William H. Judd, on Bar Harbor and Mount Desert Island, Me. There will be the usual interesting displays of seasonable flowers.

James Methven, of Readville, will succeed W. N. Craig, October 1, as superintendent of Faulkner Farm, Brookline, when the latter moves to Weymouth, Mass. Irving, son of George F. Stewart, will succeed James Methven at Readville.

Peirce Bros., the Waltham rose growers, are completing the installation of a pair of Babcock & Wilcox 350-horsepower boilers, which can be utilized for either coal or fuel oil heating.

William H. Elliott & Sons Co. is putting in two large boilers at Medbury, N. H. W. N. C.

Notes from Penn's.

Henry Penn has just returned from Jamaica Camps, Belgrade Lakes, and has never enjoyed a vacation more, as it was one complete rest of thirty days, with plenty of fishing thrown in, and Mr. Penn is more than a little fond of this recreation. Since his return he has taken up his residence at his new home, 41 Winslow road, Brookline.

Miss Susie Duwan, Duncan Robinson, William Garden and John Roohal are all back on duty again at 124 Tremont street, after pleasant vacation trips in various parts of the country, and are ready to devote all their energies toward making this year's business second to none.

Penn, the Florist, received two prizes at the exhibition of the North Shore

Northern Fern Co., Schofield, Wis.

Horticultural Society recently, one for a table decoration and another for a basket decoration. Spiras Kefalas, decorator, is the man who was personally responsible for this.

One of the great recent social events at Beverly Farms, Mass., was the wedding of Miss Alice Harding, of Washington, daughter of the governor of the Federal Reserve bank, and Robert Thompson Pell, of New York, which took place September 7. The wedding was one of the most attractive on the north shore this season. Penn, the Florist, had the decoration of the church and the home, under the personal direction of Fred Maxwell, decorator. Palms, bay trees, hardy hydrangeas, gladioli and roses were combined to make the place a veritable fairyland for the bridal party and their guests. The bridal bouquet was exquisite, one large bunch of bouvardia. There were six arm bouquets for the bridesmaids, of orchids and delphiniums, and several corsages of orchids, besides fourteen boutonnieres of gardenias for the ushers.

ON MOTOR ROW.

At this time of year the motor car companies are putting on their fall campaign to sell closed cars for the winter season. How important is this campaign may be indicated by the statement that at least twenty-five per cent of the automobiles now sold are closed cars, whereas about two years ago the proportion was only ten per cent. One of the most important parts of the campaign is making attractive to prospective buyers the automobile salesrooms on motor row. Nearly every buyer of an automobile makes at least one visit, and usually a number of visits, to the salesroom before he buys his car. Not uncommonly he takes the wife along. For this reason automobile dealers provide luxurious quarters, with furniture, for customers' comfort, of imposing and expensive styles. It is not hard for the florist to convince the motor dealer that he should go one step farther and add a few flowers and plants to make his salesroom still more attractive to those who visit it. In every large city one or more florists have several motor car dealers who are regular customers. Yet there are many automobile salesrooms still undecorated save by an artificial palm or two. Here is a chance for the florists to add a little business.

To show the motor car dealer how his salesroom should look, on this page is a view of the establishment of the Beacon Motor Co., Boston, Mass., agent for the Peerless car. For the opening of the autumn season this salesroom was made attractive to the thousands of visitors who came there, by means of baskets of gladioli and other seasonable flowers, as well as a few palms. The officials of the Beacon Motor Co. believe that such decorations enhance the appearance of their cars and add to the success of their salesmen in inducing visitors to buy. The decorations for the Beacon Motor Co. were provided by Penn the Florist.

The Florist Can Add Decidedly to the Attraction of an Automobile Salesroom.

HOW TO SHAKE HANDS.

The title of this dissertation might just as well be "How to Rub Elbows." In business we are forever rubbing elbows. In order to do business we must have someone to do business with. And when doing business, just what do you think of each of these "someones" as individuals and what do you suppose they think of you? The intangible yet practical bit of power contained in that all-too-limited word, personality, is a topic that is too often forgotten in the more tangible business of checking books, making purchases, selling and the like. But all in all it must be admitted that the way we are has much to do with the way the profits multiply or decrease.

"He's a good mixer." Thousands of times have we heard that expression regarding some successful business man, whether he be florist, banker, doctor or what not. Perhaps we have come to think that a good mixer is just born that way and our conclusion is that we, not being so born, are irrepamably "out of luck." But is that truly the case? Is it innate that some of us talk too much, others talk too little, some listen, others do not, some are "nervy," others are not? It does not seem possible. As the author of another year said: "If you want to find out where the trouble lies, stand before a mirror and open your eyes."

Getting back to the title of this essay, have you ever noted the various kinds and types of handshakes? Some clasps are close and clammy, some are overvigorous and squeeze to a point of hurting, while still others are hearty and give an impression of sincerity and cordiality. Handshaking sounds like a trivial topic and yet it is certainly true that a warm shake of welcome has often helped to elucidate a transaction.

Encountering or meeting a stranger in business is a good deal like going swimming. After the first plunge everything is pleasant, provided one does not develop cramps and can swim. In the first place, many are overly embarrassed and this leads the second party to lose confidence, while the embarrassment of the first party leads him into more and more unpersuasive channels until he finally decides to leave—and he goes without winning a point in the conversation. The best way to address another is with absolute frankness, looking squarely into the face of the one addressed. Also it is well to enter into a conversation with a degree of cautiousness, asking questions and listening as much as possible. It is frequently disastrous to utter any dogmatic or set opinions. This often will close a conversation before it has started to be valuable. The expression of decided opinions, especially to strangers, is always undiplomatic.

Still another profitable quality is the possession and the expression of confidence in what you do or say. With inward confidence, it is quite likely that the second party will gain confidence and will concede the point.

The old saying that familiarity breeds contempt holds as true today as ever. Some individuals like the jocular tone of familiarity, but others dislike it, and here judgment should be used by the careful business man.

The habit of dressing neatly lends helpful embellishment to the personality. When we see a man poorly dressed or dressed in a careless manner, we get the idea that he is unfortunate or not prosperous and as a result we do not care to do business with him. It always pays to appear neat, because everybody respects neatness.

If this article succeeds in giving any retail florist or his salesman a hint as to how he can look into the "mirror" of himself, then it has gained its point.

BALTIMORE DAY.

Pleasure After Business.

well as to have its homes filled with visitors. The lid will be off, the city will be yours during your visit to the F. T. D. business meeting, October 10 to 12.

Baltimore has a reputation for hospitality that must be sustained. It was for this reason that Robert L. Graham, Sr., was chosen chairman of the hospitality committee. Mr. Graham was president of the Florists' Club when the S. A. F. held its convention in our city in 1911, and to him belongs a great deal of the credit for the splendid entertainment that was lavished upon our brother florists at that time. He is just as full of life as ever, and the only thing that is worrying him is how he is going to get the program of entertainment he has mapped out into one day.

You know, the Baltimore committee has strict orders to let no entertainment feature interfere with the business meeting that will be held October 10 and 11. These orders are direct from headquarters and must be obeyed. But Thursday, October 12—and that is Columbus day, by the way—school will be out. The rule will be, everyone have a good time.

Automobile Tour.

The hospitality committee is composed of florists who believe in combining pleasure with business. Bright and early Thursday morning a start will be made from the Emerson hotel; then we shall go out along the Belair and Joppa roads to the wonderful White Marsh dahlia farms, where Uncle Dick Vincent will be waiting to welcome the F. T. D. visitors with that southern hospitality he so well knows how to bestow.

If you have never enjoyed a lunch served in the Vincent packing sheds at one of their dahlia exhibitions, you have no idea what is in store for you. But that lunch will not be all by any means. If frost will hold off, and it's more than likely it will, we are going to show you a 200-acre farm full of dahlias, cannas, etc., all in full bloom. The Vincent farm at this season of the year is a sight

About A Squeaking Door

Yesterday I met Dave Rumsey on the street.
Hadn't seen him in 20 years.
He was my camp mate in a boat house then.
He is a famous judge now.
Famous, but possessing the same wonderful qualities that made him such a delightful camp comrade.

Recall one day I ate something that certainly did lay me flat on my back.
And what a headache! Gee whiz!
Every once in a while the wind would swing the door back and forth and its squeak fairly made my head split.
Without saying a word Dave scared up an oil can and silenced that door.

He never spoke of it.
Neither have I.
But I never forgot.
A little thing it was, but something tells me that because he noticed that little thing that day and acted, has a lot to do with his having the unimpeachable reputation that he has today as a judge.
After all it's the little things that really matter.

Some of us take much care in putting our finest of roses in a box and nestling them about with wax paper, and then tie them up indifferently.
A little slip-shod slip of a string and that invaluable right-first-effect is lost.
Isn't it your opinion that every big man and every big business is the result of little things done surpassingly well? Not just done well.
But surpassingly well.
It's a good creed, don't you think, for all of us F. T. D. members?

Handshaking sounds like a trivial topic and yet it is certainly true that a warm shake of welcome has often helped to elucidate a transaction.

Encountering or meeting a stranger in business is a good deal like going swimming. After the first plunge everything is pleasant, provided one does not develop cramps and can swim. In the first place, many are overly embarrassed and this leads the second party to lose confidence, while the embarrassment of the first party leads him into more and more unpersuasive channels until he finally decides to leave—and he goes without winning a point in the conversation. The best way to address another is with absolute frankness, looking squarely into the face of the one addressed. Also it is well to enter into a conversation with a degree of cautiousness, asking questions and listening as much as possible. It is frequently disastrous to utter any dogmatic or set opinions. This often will close a conversation before it has started to be valuable. The expression of decided opinions, especially to strangers, is always undiplomatic.

Still another profitable quality is the possession and the expression of confidence in what you do or say. With inward confidence, it is quite likely that the second party will gain confidence and will concede the point.

The old saying that familiarity breeds contempt holds as true today as ever. Some individuals like the jocular tone of familiarity, but others dislike it, and here judgment should be used by the careful business man.

The habit of dressing neatly lends helpful embellishment to the personality. When we see a man poorly dressed or dressed in a careless manner, we get the idea that he is unfortunate or not prosperous and as a result we do not care to do business with him. It always pays to appear neat, because everybody respects neatness.

If this article succeeds in giving any retail florist or his salesman a hint as to how he can look into the "mirror" of himself, then it has gained its point.

well as to have its homes filled with visitors. The lid will be off, the city will be yours during your visit to the F. T. D. business meeting, October 10 to 12.

Baltimore has a reputation for hospitality that must be sustained. It was for this reason that Robert L. Graham, Sr., was chosen chairman of the hospitality committee. Mr. Graham was president of the Florists' Club when the S. A. F. held its convention in our city in 1911, and to him belongs a great deal of the credit for the splendid entertainment that was lavished upon our brother florists at that time. He is just as full of life as ever, and the only thing that is worrying him is how he is going to get the program of entertainment he has mapped out into one day.

You know, the Baltimore committee has strict orders to let no entertainment feature interfere with the business meeting that will be held October 10 and 11. These orders are direct from headquarters and must be obeyed. But Thursday, October 12—and that is Columbus day, by the way—school will be out. The rule will be, everyone have a good time.

Automobile Tour.

The hospitality committee is composed of florists who believe in combining pleasure with business. Bright and early Thursday morning a start will be made from the Emerson hotel; then we shall go out along the Belair and Joppa roads to the wonderful White Marsh dahlia farms, where Uncle Dick Vincent will be waiting to welcome the F. T. D. visitors with that southern hospitality he so well knows how to bestow.

If you have never enjoyed a lunch served in the Vincent packing sheds at one of their dahlia exhibitions, you have no idea what is in store for you. But that lunch will not be all by any means. If frost will hold off, and it's more than likely it will, we are going to show you a 200-acre farm full of dahlias, cannas, etc., all in full bloom. The Vincent farm at this season of the year is a sight

About A Squeaking Door

Yesterday I met Dave Rumsey on the street.
Hadn't seen him in 20 years.
He was my camp mate in a boat house then.
He is a famous judge now.
Famous, but possessing the same wonderful qualities that made him such a delightful camp comrade.

Recall one day I ate something that certainly did lay me flat on my back.
And what a headache! Gee whiz!
Every once in a while the wind would swing the door back and forth and its squeak fairly made my head split.
Without saying a word Dave scared up an oil can and silenced that door.

He never spoke of it.
Neither have I.
But I never forgot.
A little thing it was, but something tells me that because he noticed that little thing that day and acted, has a lot to do with his having the unimpeachable reputation that he has today as a judge.
After all it's the little things that really matter.

Some of us take much care in putting our finest of roses in a box and nestling them about with wax paper, and then tie them up indifferently.
A little slip-shod slip of a string and that invaluable right-first-effect is lost.
Isn't it your opinion that every big man and every big business is the result of little things done surpassingly well? Not just done well.
But surpassingly well.
It's a good creed, don't you think, for all of us F. T. D. members?

long to be remembered. Fancy, 200 acres of different colors! Anyone who does not think that colors in nature do not harmonize needs only to visit these immense gardens.

But we must be on our way. The next stop will be at the Akehurst range. This is the range that was formerly devoted entirely to carnations and is now turned into roses, and the success with roses is equal to that with carnations. The Akehurst people would not feel that they were entertaining company if there were nothing to eat; so here again a buffet luncheon will be served. There was some talk among the committee of too many luncheons, but when you get out in that Maryland air on a crisp October morning you just want to be eating all the time.

But Bob Graham will be getting nervous; so we must get the machines loaded and on our way to Stevenson Bros. We can't let you miss this place, for these are two of the most successful producers of quality roses in our state.

From here we will drive through the Towson Nurseries, a commercial garden of ornamental shrubbery that looks more like a city park than a place where trees are grown for profit.

Then over to Lake and Bellona avenues. Here we find the upper place and nurseries of the I. H. Moss Co. on the northwest corner, the picture place of Fred. C. Bauer on the southwest corner, and Archie Anderson's establishment on the southeast. There is strong rivalry among these three as to whose place will look the best. But we must be back to the hotel in time for Ed. Sceery to get into his dress suit for the banquet. We have covered over fifty miles and many of us will be willing to call it a day.

Side Trips.

But in case you are fed up on flowers and don't care to take the "Say It with Flowers" trip, there is the Washington trip. You can run over there in an hour, and let me remind you that the new store of Gude Bros. Co. is worth the trip to see. Then there is the trip to Annapolis, a place just teeming with points of historic interest, to say nothing of the Naval Academy, where Uncle Sam turns out his admirals and commodores. Or a trip up to the Gettysburg battlefield. It matters not what part of the country you may be from, you will find something of interest here; under the daisies on this field sleep men from every state in the Union.

We almost forgot Miss S. C. Groves told us to extend a special invitation to the ladies. After you have drunk a cup of tea with Miss Groves' committee, you will be friends for life. Miss Groves feels that there is no better way to get acquainted than over a good cup of tea. One of the qualifications for membership on the committee was the ability to make tea.

But space will not permit us to go farther. We want every F. T. D. member to come; we want to know you better; we want you to sit around our hearthstones; we want you to break bread with us; we want you to go away from Baltimore bearing such pleasant memories of us all that it will be a pleasure to return to us. R. T. P.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The wholesale cut flower markets experienced a dull week last week, owing to the extremely hot weather. Rather low prices prevailed. There was a scarcity of fancy roses, but in all other grades there was an oversupply. The best alone hold up in price.

Carnations are coming alone finely, few being cut from the young stock. Asters are in heavy supply; consequently carnations have little call. Clematis paniculata was in considerable demand all last week. Dahlias are arriving, but there are few in fancy varieties.

Gladioli are shortening in supply. Fancy long cosmos are in demand and are not overabundant at present. Lilies sell well; so also does first-grade valley.

A considerable number of outdoor flowers are still arriving, but the dry and hot weather has destroyed their quality. A few early mums and fancy dahlias are expected this week.

In greens the market has plenty of everything; fancy cocos leaves have a big demand now.

Flower Show Meeting.

The executive committee of the St. Louis Flower Show Association held a meeting September 3 at publicity headquarters. J. F. Ammann, chairman of the committee and manager of the show, presided. The meeting was well attended.

Executive Secretary Beneke opened the meeting with a pleasing report as to the financial status of the association; he reported that plenty of money was available to start activities for the fall show.

The following chairmen of committees made reports: H. G. Berning, W. A.

Rowe, L. A. Hoerr, W. J. Pilcher, Frank A. Weber, H. C. Irish, Paul Heil, W. C. Smith and A. H. Hummert. Mr. Hummert's report was the most important. His report showed that a little more than $9,000 had been subscribed to the guarantee fund and that the prospects for reaching the $10,000 mark by the next meeting of the committee were excellent. H. G. Berning announced that he would offer a special prize of $200 for the best window decoration by a retail florist during show week; $100 for first, $60 for second and $40 for third.

The St. Louis district of the National Flower Growers' Association offered a prize of $100, the distribution of this being left to the premium committee.

H. C. Irish announced several large prizes for the fruit display, reaching as high as $600.

The chairman announced that a big general meeting of the association, all

Mrs. John L. Koenig entertained the Lady Florists' Circle September 13 at her home on Clarence avenue.

Fred C. Weber, with his family and Mrs. Fred C. Weber, Sr., arrived home last week from a summer trip, which was spent among the northern lakes. Mr. Weber is president of the Retail Florists' Association, which will meet soon to arrange for a party to attend the F. T. D. meeting at Baltimore, October 10 to 12.

The "Say It with Flowers" bowling league started its season's bowling September 6. The night was hot, but the attendance was, nevertheless, good. Six teams started playing at 8:30 p. m. The Roses, captained by A. J. Bentzen, defeated Captain Dotzman's Carnations in two of three games. The Violets, captained by G. Kuehner, won the odd game from Captain Hoffmann's Daisies. The Orchids, captained by Fred Alves,

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Because of the cooler weather, the horse show and various fall openings, business has improved considerably. There was a great demand for orchids, valley and Ward and Ophelia roses for corsage work for social functions, in connection with the horse show and the industrial exposition.

Asters are overabundant and the price is low. Gladioli are still plentiful, but the choicer varieties are beginning to thin out somewhat. Delphinium is still in the market and the quality is excellent. Roses are much better at this writing and there is a strong demand for all the varieties. Red roses are in the minority. Sweet peas are at an end, with nothing to take their place.

Various Notes.

J. B. Keller Sons had a novel decoration at the Genesee Valley Club last week for a luncheon. It consisted of a miniature paddock of green moss, with miniature jumps, water jumps, hurdles, etc. Miniature horses and riders com-

Toronto fair, Canada. He reports a fine display and says that the Canadians were courteous and hospitable.

Ambrose Secker has been keeping sixteen men busy at landscape work all summer. He has recently purchased a Chevrolet touring car and is enjoying a motor trip to the Thousand islands with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Anderson, of Buffalo, were visitors here last week, calling on the trade and visiting the horse show, having motored here from Buffalo.

James Sproat and Alexander Lothian were judges at the exposition flower show, September 4 to 11. They report that the display was the best ever and that the flowers exhibited were unusually good. The Rochester Garden Club and the Rochester Rose Society each gave a silver cup for prize exhibits this year.

Frank Schlegel & Sons, of South avenue, are cutting great quantities of fine asters and gladioli.

E. C. Armbrust and family spent a few days at Lake Canandaigua recently.

Miss Dorothy Olive Riley, daughter of Park Commissioner William S. Riley, was married to Lynn Roberts, August 31, at Erie Pa. It was a great surprise to the parents of the couple, as well as to their many friends. E. C. A. tables at the breakfast were in the shape of a hollow square and a pleasing effect was secured by the use of an electrically driven water fountain, which sprayed over a globe of changing lights and about which were banked palms and aspidistras. Low gate vases filled with short-stemmed flowers were used for the tables. These vases have been found by Mrs. Strong to give a highly artistic and pleasing effect, without obstructing a view of one's neighbors about the table.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Gladioli and asters are coming in heavily from New York, but the stock is received in a poor condition and does not bring top prices. All of the good local stock finds a ready market. The quality of the latter is improving and some fine Gladiolus War brought $8 per hundred. This is about the highest price received for gladioli for some time. Some asters of local production showed up in fine quality, although the best prices obtainable had been around $4 per hundred. The asters shipped in brought only about $2 per hundred. The supply of dahlias is beginning now to exceed the demand and it is hard to dispose of arrivals. The best can be had at $4 per hundred and the retailers can get large stocks at about $1 per hundred.

There has been a persistent demand for stephanotis, swainsona and lily of the valley for bridal bouquets. The calls are coming in to the wholesalers daily, but in most cases the orders cannot be filled, owing to the scarcity of these flowers. Cattleyas are also scarce.

Cosmos and snapdragons had some call last week. There have been a number of weddings in which snapdragons were used in some quantity. These flowers seem to be popular at this time. Long-stemmed roses are beginning to make their appearance from the local greenhouses. Some of these are of good quality and bring as high as $15 per hundred. Several of the growers have stocks of the new varieties, including Crusader, American Legion and Mrs. Warren G. Harding. These are bringing from $4 to $10 per hundred. Some good Premier, Columbia and Butterfly are also offered.

Carnations have improved somewhat. Red Matchless seems to give the best quality of bloom and stem in advance of the other varieties. White Matchless and Ward are to be had. The prices on carnations average about $2 per hundred. Fern sales are increasing. Some of the large hotels are putting in fresh supplies and this always means pretty good orders for the retailers.

Various Notes.

Marche & Co. report good results from the fern sales they have been holding during last month. It is believed that this store has handled more ferns during the summer than any other florist's establishment in Washington.

standstill. There was little business and that was spasmodic. Vacations are about over. The weather, however, does not tend to help business much, as the thermometer last week registered the hottest weather of the summer, hovering around 90 degrees.

The stock coming into the market last week was not of a first-class grade. This is especially true about asters, as the late crop has not yet put in an appearance. Carnations are still small and so far only the whites have arrived. Roses are better and the demand for good stock has been heavy, especially for Premier and Columbia. Some large yellow and orange marigolds are coming in, and so far the demand has been much greater than the supply. Easter lilies are good and have been cleaning up nicely. Garden stock, such as zinnias, calendulas, bachelor's buttons, ageratum, scabiosas, etc., are coming in regularly. Dahlias are getting better daily, but they need a little cooler weather to harden them.

Various Notes.

Miss Fannie Evans, of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., has left on another two weeks' vacation.

The wedding of Frank Kocour, of the J. M. Gasser Co. retail store, was a huge success. It was held in a hall rented for the purpose and about 125 guests attended the reception. A good time was had by all. The bride and groom are spending their honeymoon in Chicago.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Asters and gladioli are abundant now and prices are low, compared with what they have been the last few years. Early chrysanthemums are just beginning to come into the market. Dahlias and cosmos are beginning to appear.

Various Notes.

Harry Stein, proprietor of the Public Service Terminal flower shop, has opened another store at 7 Saybrook place, near the Hudson tube entrance. The store is modern in all respects and Mr. Stein has an all-night window display, as large numbers of persons coming from or going to New York are traveling most of the night.

Hugh Kendall, director of the Bloomfield community house, and A. G. Pennell, garden supervisor, have completed plans for a dahlia exhibit, to be held at the community house, September 22 and 23. This is the first event of the kind held by the community house.

The first dahlia and flower show of Greater Newark opened September 13 and will continue until September 18, in

The Market.

Last week found the market glutted with asters and gladioli. While the quality of some of these is excellent, yet there is no demand for flowers at this time. Dahlias are also beginning to make their appearance, but the demand is limited.

The quality of carnations is getting much better every day. White carnations are the only ones to be had. Roses have been exceptionally fine, but each day finds quantities left over. Plenty of American Beauties were to be had last week, but the demand was limited. Quantities of outdoor flowers are still arriving, but there is no demand for them. Valley continues in demand, although the supply is limited. Easter lilies are called for every day; however, the supply is about equal to the demand. Yellow chrysanthemums are making their daily appearance and are being used by the prominent florists in window displays.

Various Notes.

Frank J. Zak, proprietor of the Greater Pittsburgh Floral Co., spent Labor day at Cambridge Springs. Mr. Zak seems to believe that this is the only summer resort.

Harvey C. Sheaf and Mrs. Sheaf have sent greetings from Mackinac island, Mich. Mr. Sheaf reports they are having a real vacation in this picturesque territory.

George J. Learzof, who was in the florists' business about six years in Mount Washington, has again ventured into the business in Dormont, Pa. Mr. Learzof says that even while he has been away from the business for the last six years, yet his heart has always been with the flower business and he is glad to be able to get back into this line.

A visit to several of the florists in Wilkinsburg and Homewood found them optimistic in their views of fall business. The majority have reported that business in August this year was somewhat better than that of last year.

Miss Emma B. Maxwell has just returned from her vacation at Bemus Point.

William Turner has been busy making alterations and improvements at his greenhouses. H. J. H.

WORCESTER, MASS.

The improvement in business continues. Stock of all kinds sells readily. Gladioli continue to flood the market; so also do asters. Frequent rains leave asters in poor condition. Autumn flowers in many shades are fine this season.

Saturday of last week found about all the city florists back at the stores and ready for the fall trade.

September 7 the Worcester Horticultural Society held a fine fall show. The list of premium winners is too numerous to mention; $5,000 was appropriated for the prizes.

Shipping business is improving. Roses, of which there is a good supply of good quality, are moving nicely at only slightly below regular winter prices. The weather, which turned decidedly cooler last week, will soon make carnations much better. There are still many gladioli and asters left. Local business is good, with prospects that it will soon be much better.

good summer business and a good deal of funeral work the last week.

Some fine American Legion roses are being brought in by the Roberts Rose Co.

Emil Glauber and Harry Harlow spent Sunday, September 3, and Labor day trout fishing. They reported catching several large-sized rainbow trout.

G. L. Roberts, of the Elitch Gardens Co., on returning from a pleasure trip, learned of the death of his brother in New York city. Mr. Roberts left the next day to attend the funeral.

J. M. Mulvahill was in Colorado Springs last week.

Oliver Wheatley, of the Curtis Park Floral Co., is reported to be in a serious condition. Gangrene, caused by an ingrowing toe nail last April, has resulted in two operations and the resultant loss of three toes. It is feared now that another operation will be necessary. The outlook is not at all favorable.

WATER UNFIT FOR USE?

About eight weeks ago I had a well drilled. The water obtained from this well has a taste similar to that of Epsom salts. An analysis of the water was made by the state water survey division, at Urbana, Ill., and it was found that the water is unfit for use in watering "some plants." What I should like to know is, to what plants is the water injurious? Is it advisable to make other arrangements for a supply of water?

A tabulated analysis of the water from the well produced the following statement by R. E. Greenfield, chemist of the state water survey division at Urbana, Ill.: "Bacteriologically the water is not in good condition. The water should be boiled or sterilized in some other manner before being used for drinking purposes. A careful examination of the casing and top of the well should be made for leaks where surface drainage could enter. If such leaks are found, they should be stopped. Some time after the repairs are made, another analysis should be made to see if the quality of the water has improved. Besides, the water is highly mineralized, probably containing large quantities of either sodium or magnesium sulphate (Glauber's or Epsom salts). This is what gives the water its peculiar taste. Many people would find the water objectionable for drinking on this account. We are of the opinion that the water will not prove to be entirely satisfactory for watering all sorts of plants. The high mineral matter would affect the most delicate plants, at least. There is no economical means of treating such water. Another supply should be sought." G. H.—Ill.

The report of the chemist does not give a clear idea regarding the amount or kind of the mineral matter contained in the water, which would be likely to injure plants. As a whole, the analysis covers points which relate to the use of the water for household rather than for greenhouse use. The fact that the water contains bacteria and nitrates will increase rather than lessen its value for watering plants.

The only thing reported in the analysis proper which would be likely to be harmful is chlorine, of which forty-two parts in one million are reported. The base with which the chlorine is combined is not stated, although, as the presence of sodium is indicated, it is evident that the water has a small amount of common salt in solution, but as it would not amount to more than one-hundredth of one per cent, it would not be injurious.

A residue of 5,442 parts of mineral matter—on evaporation—in one million is reported. The greater portion of this is, doubtless, silica or lime, which would not be injurious, but in a footnote we find the statement that "it probably contains large quantities of either sodium or magnesium sulphate and we are of the opinion that the water will not prove to be entirely satisfactory for watering all sorts of plants." From the standpoint of a florist looking for a supply of water for his plants, the analysis is quite unsatisfactory. No attempt appears to have been made to determine the percentage of sodium or magnesium, and from the use of the word "probably" in the report, as quoted above, it would appear that there is some doubt regarding the presence of either of these minerals, or the combinations in which they exist. From the standpoint of an analysis of water for household purposes it is fairly complete and the suggestions are excellent, but it is suggested that a quantitative analysis be obtained which will show the percentages of sodium and magnesium and the combinations in which they are found.

It is doubtful if the presence of magnesium in the water will be likely to cause any difficulty, if it is used on plants, but it is not desirable to use water containing much sodium, especially as a chloride or sulphate. The greatest injury would be in propagating beds and seed boxes, and for bedding and other plants in small pots, stove plants, orchids, etc., but the presence of even a small amount of common salt in the water would cause injury to all kinds of plants. INDIANA STATE FAIR.

The floral exhibit at the Indiana state fair, held last week at Indianapolis, Ind., was unusually large and attractive this year, causing the competition to be exceedingly keen. The exhibits were staged in the new Horticultural building instead of the Woman's building, which was used last year. The list of entries was changed somewhat this year, making a larger display.

The "200 square feet" exhibits were especially beautiful. In previous years this entry was for 100 square feet, but the larger displays of this year gave opportunity for more elaborate arrangement.

In the plant collections some well grown stock was staged. The ferns were especially good.

The cut flower exhibits were not up to the standard of previous years, due to the intense heat of the season. Never in the experience of the Indiana state fair have we had such torrid weather. Due to the hot spell, the attendance ran 35,000 behind the previous year.

S. W. Taylor, of Boonville, Ind., was the department director. A. F. J. Baur was the first assistant director; Ernest L. Lutz, of Boonville, Ind., second assistant, while George H. Blackman, of Evansville, was the judge of the various floral exhibits.

The awards were as follows:

Display of potted greenhouse plants, covering 200 square feet—E. E. Temperley, first; Roepke Floral Co., second; Pahud Floral Co., third.

Collection of ferns, ten plants, not to exceed 8-inch pots—E. E. Temperley, first and second; Pahud Floral Co., third.

Last week hot weather affected the market considerably. The thermometer ranged from 80 to 90 degrees during the entire week, driving in a lot of stock; with an unusually quiet market, much of it had to be dumped. Never has this market been stocked with asters as it is this season, and much of the stock runs short-stemmed, due to the dry weather. Roses, dahlias and gladioli are plentiful and the demand is light. Shipping business is quiet, as the trade is pretty well supplied with a great variety of garden flowers. Lilies and chrysanthemums are arriving in limited quantities, with sufficient demand to keep them cleaned up.

The Florists' Club held its monthly meeting Thursday, September 7, at the Blatz hotel, with a fair attendance. It was decided to hold a fall flower show at the Public Library building the first part of November. This show will be conducted along the same lines as the spring show held at the same place, and will be free to the public. The show is put on for educational and publicity purposes and no premiums are offered. P.

Spartanburg, S. C.—Fred W. Sass, who was formerly connected with Fred's Flower Garden, has again entered the trade under the firm name of the Spartanburg Floral & Truck Co. The firm has built a greenhouse, 15x75, and plans to erect several more in the future.

The Market.

Autumn business seems to have begun. Last week was busy from start to finish. Several weddings, for which orders were on a generous scale, and funerals created a demand far above any other week since early June. Orders for the Garvey funeral were about as elaborate and numerous as for any ever held here. Roses are in good supply. Asters are fine and plentiful. There are still some gladioli, but not enough for all calls. Stock will be better after the recent rains. One and eight-tenths inches fell Friday night, September 8. This was exactly twice as much as fell in the entire month of August. The rain fell in gentle, soaking showers, with little wind, and it was absorbed immediately by the dry ground. It was the first good rain since September 2, when three-fourths of an inch fell, and was the heaviest since July 10 and 11. Still more rain fell Saturday, September 9, and the extremely warm weather is probably over for the season; for this growers are deeply grateful, as the heat was beginning to tell on all stock.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Bohannon returned from Pittsburg, Kan., the early part of last week and left for Minnesota.

Miss Blanche Parrish, of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., won third prize for the best costume at the Electric park carnival. Miss Parrish wore a costume of paper wisteria, with a garland of the flowers in her hair. The prize was $5.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Evans, of Omaha, Neb., were in the city last week on their honeymoon. Mr. Evans is in the store of Hess & Swoboda, in Omaha.

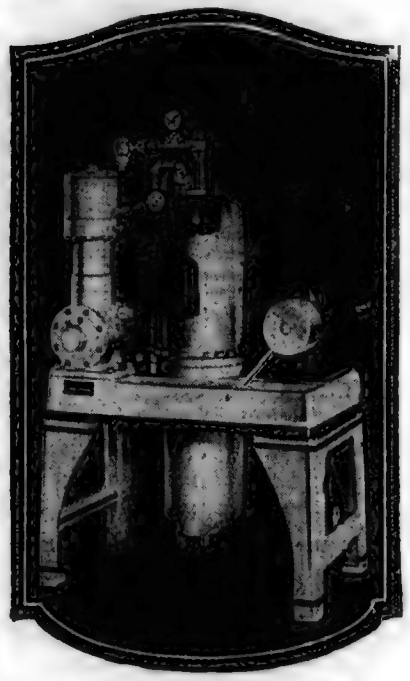
Mrs. John Murray and Miss Nettie Seymour, of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., have returned from their vacations. Walter Oberg and Ernest Moore have also returned.

Wiley Pendleton and Miss Mary Eleanor Severance were married in the Oak Park hotel, Chicago, September 5. They spent their honeymoon at the Lake Shore Country Club and will be at home in Independence, Mo., after September 20. Mr. Pendleton is secretary of Rock's Flower Gardens, Independence, Mo. Lawrence Rock, treasurer of the company, attended Mr. Pendleton as best man at the wedding. Mr. Rock left Chicago that night to be present at the wedding of another friend in Kansas City, September 6.

The Apollo Flower Shop received a shipment of strawflowers from California September 4.

Mrs. Edith Roberts has returned to Hollywood, Cal., after a visit of nearly two months here.

C. E. Thomas is cutting some fancy asters and a few gladioli.



Charles E. Robinson is in charge of the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. in the absence of L. R. Bohannon, who is visiting in Minnesota.

Ray Blessing, of the T. J. Noll Floral Co., is slowly but surely recovering from the effects of a severe case of blood poisoning. He is at work steadily now after three relapses.

Glenn K. Parker, manager of the Stuppy Supply Co., spent Saturday, September 9, in Pleasant Hill, Mo. After attending the sale of the Pinehurst Floral Co., Mr. Parker spent an hour fishing. He caught seven fish, all of good size. This firm has moved to 1012 Oak street. As the distance was so short from the old location, little inconvenience was experienced in moving.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Spokane, Wash.—Ray Mellen, of 1828 East Third avenue, started to grow bulbs about two years ago. He now has a stock of about 20,000 bulbs.

SAN FRANCISCO DAHLIA SHOW.

More than 200 varieties of dahlias and nearly a quarter of a million blooms were shown at the seventh annual exhibition of the Dahlia Society of California, held at the Palace hotel, San Francisco, from August 31 to September 2. Large crowds viewed the display, which was declared to be the best ever given in the state.

Public institutions as well as professional growers and amateurs exhibited. An excellent exhibit was that of the gardens of Golden Gate park, shown by Superintendent John McLaren. The prize for the best display by a public institution was awarded to dahlias from the Garden Beautiful of the San Quentin penitentiary. Three thousand blooms, representing 200 varieties of dahlias grown in the prison yard by the convicts, were shown. The dahlia garden of this institution is the outgrowth of a single bulb mailed to one of the prisoners years ago.

Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., enhanced the value of his fine collection of dahlias by using large tree ferns and other tropical greenery as a foil for the brilliantly colored dahlias. Mr. Pelicano won the first prize for the most artistic exhibit.

Among the prize-winners were:

General display for effect—Star Dahlia Garden, first; F. D. Pelicano, second; Jessie Seal, third.
Collection peony dahlias—Aimee Hodgens, first; Jessie Seal, second; Star Dahlia Garden, third.
Collection decorative dahlias—Aimee Hodgens, first; Jessie Seal, second; Bessie Boston, third.
Collection cactus dahlias—Aimee Hodgens, first; Star Dahlia Garden, second; Jessie Seal, third.
Collection show dahlias—Star Dahlia Garden, first; Jessie Seal, second; Aimee Hodgens, third.
Collection hybrid cactus—Jessie Seal, first; Aimee Hodgens, second; Bessie Boston, third.
Three American cactus—Jessie Seal, first; Bessie Boston, second.
Three hybrid show dahlias—F. J. Brown, first; Star Dahlia Garden, second; Jessie Seal, third.
Collection pompon dahlias—Jessie Seal, first; Edna Spencer, second; Aimee Hodgens, third.
Collection collarette dahlias—Jessie Seal, first; J. F. Brown, second.
Basket of single dahlias—Aimee Hodgens, first; Jessie Seal, second; William Hill, third.
Twelve blooms, one variety—Jessie Seal, first; Bessie Boston, second; Richard Lohrmann, third.
Twenty-five blooms, one variety—Jessie Seal, first; Bessie Boston, second; Frank Burns, third.
Fifty blooms, one variety—Jessie Seal, first; Star Dahlia Garden, second.
Established 3-year-old seedling—Bessie Boston, first; William Buehl, second; Aimee Hodgens, third.
Seedling, 1921—Jessie Seal, only award.
Largest dahlia in show, Richard Lohrmann, fifteen inches.
Basket of dahlias—Jessie Seal, first; Star Dahlia Garden, second; F. D. Pelicano, third.
Basket of pompon dahlias—Jessie Seal, first; Star Dahlia Garden, second; F. C. Burns, third.
Exhibit—F. D. Pelicano, first; Star Dahlia Garden, second; William Hill, third.
Collection of California dahlias—James Davis, first; Jessie Seal, second; F. C. Burns, third.
Basket of cactus dahlias—Jessie Seal, first; Aimee Hodgens, second.
Six dahlias of California origin, one variety—Bessie Boston.
Display by a public institution—Garden Beautiful, San Quentin prison.

The officers of the society are as follows: President, C. Salbach; first vice-president, William Kettlewell; second vice-president, R. Lohrmann; secretary, H. T. Henning; treasurer, F. D. Pelicano; bulletin editor, F. C. Burns. Directors: T. A. Burns, J. W. Davis, Mrs. E. W. Lymbery, R. McWhirter, Mrs. Jessie Seal and G. A. Neiborger. M.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

With the opening of September, both wholesalers and retailers report an increase in business. The continued heat doubtless holds back the shipping end somewhat, but here also a great improvement is noted. Roses continue poor and carnations are not much better. Dahlias are now at their best and prices have hardened a little on the best stock, though, as usual, there is an oversupply of stock of medium quality. Gladioli are still coming through in lesser quantities and good stock is taken quickly. Greens are now in better supply than at any time since last winter. Outside of palms, ferns and a few good coleus, there is little in the way of plants and it looks as though there is an opening for something besides cyclamens to be handled by plant growers.

Various Notes.

Every time one visits the nursery of Roy F. Wilcox & Co., the impression is strengthened that it is one of the cleanest and best conducted places of its kind in the state. From end to end the same order and tidiness prevails and the stock everywhere is in first-class condition. The young heather stock is particularly fine this year and an immense number of the principal commercial kinds are being handled. The red sport of Erica melanthera here looks quite different in habit from the type, being shorter and stiffer in growth, though this may change as the plants get older. Close to a million young kentias are in the palm houses, making a wonderful show, every plant being healthy. Boxwoods in all sizes and shapes and in every stage of growth are here, these becoming one of the most important features, though practically all kinds of ornamental stock are grown. Gardenias have been largely grown this year and so successfully that a considerable increase in the number handled is in prospect.

The stand of the Superior Nursery & Dahlia Gardens at the pageant of progress was one of the most attractive in the whole show and C. Gutting, as usual, has to be complimented on doing the thing right. Mr. Gutting, it is pleasing to record, has found good business in dahlia bulbs, sold through the excellent flowers on display, and he has a full order book. A good business was also done in renting decorative plants to other exhibitors.

G. Rossi, of the Art Floral Co., of Long Beach, says that the firm had a record August business at this popular resort.

Frank Reymond is back on the job at the place of the Redondo Floral Co. after his vacation. The three partners here have an excellent plan that allows one of them to be away at any time, so that when Mr. Reymond goes prospecting for gold on the desert, A. F. Borden and Albert Knopf are at work, and Mr. Borden ceases growing sweet corn while Mr. Knopf attends to his Orange county lemon ranch.

Howard Gates, of Anaheim, says that his records show a considerable increase in summer business over that of last year.

N. Swanson is always sold out early on the excellent dahlias he brings to the American Florists' Exchange. He is also selling a fine line of bulbs grown by him at his place near Culver City. The Emperor daffodils are particularly fine, hard, heavy bulbs, with plenty of life.

R. Garland, of the Westrem-Garland Florists, is back on the job. This progressive firm has added another delivery car to its equipment.

Business is good in the redecorated store of the E. C. Amling Co. and a big wedding decoration is reported from the retail store at Sawtelle.

O. C. Saake has been suffering from a severe cold, but has been sticking gamely to business most days. Always on deck at the same old stand, Mr. Saake enjoys a regular and remunerative line of business that shows Fourth street still on the map.

When Frank Lichtenberg took the long jump out to Figueroa and Seventh streets, many figured that he was going out too far, but that he was right is shown in the rapidly increasing business there. One great advantage is that customers in automobiles have a chance of stopping off for a few minutes, a thing impossible in the tremendous crush of the downtown streets. Mr. Lichtenberg recently had the entire management of a large funeral at San Diego, which used much fine stock.

Business is improving rapidly at the store of S. Murata & Co., especially in the shipping end. Postcards from Japan show Y. Oike, the head shipper here, enjoying himself around the hot springs in his native land. S. Murata had a successful business trip north to San Francisco, driving both ways in his Stutz.

Out at Palms John Finken has been gradually increasing his stock of trained fruit trees until he has a large variety in every conceivable shape. Cherries, apples, pears, plums and others trained in cordon, espalier and fan shapes, make a most interesting display, while large breadths of plain budded trees are also in fine shape. Besides this, Mr. Finken has good plantings of Erica melanthera in excellent order and, as he also keeps up his position as representative of the Beverly Hills nursery, and looks after the landscape end for Mr. Reeves, Mr. Finken may fairly be styled a busy man.

Walter Armacost escaped so well from business shackles this season that Manager Williamson, of the Fourth street store, says he has heard nothing of his comings and goings upon the earth since he disappeared in a cloud of dust in his Buick bound for Lone Pine and from there to the wilds of Mono county. Probably the golden trout families are broken up about it too. F. Royston, of this firm, left Churchville, N. Y., for Aurora, Ill., last week, having had his new Cadillac car delivered to him in the east,

The Market.

Stock was plentiful last week. Splendid Chrysolora chrysanthemums were displayed, and there were plenty of them. Other varieties were also shown, including Early Frost and October Frost. Dahlias were at their zenith and they ranged in size from flowers with long stems and huge heads, to small pompons. The gladioli were still seen, and asters seemed to be as plentiful as ever. Good roses were scarce and even the ordinary grades of roses were not much in evidence. This was only a temporary condition, however, as new cuts of roses are soon due. Rubrum lilies were not seen in the market, though one or two growers were cutting them. There was the usual flood of delphinium, marigolds, zinnias, gillyflowers, scabiosa, etc. Fresh as well as dried strawflowers were fairly plentiful. Orchids were scarce, but there were enough gardenias to take care of the local trade. Two holidays in one week, Labor day and Admission day, September 9, did not depress the retailers particularly, as a rush of weddings and funerals kept them fairly busy, combined with the fact that the social season is just beginning.

Various Notes.

The shipping of chrysanthemums is beginning. J. A. Axell, after making the rounds of his chrysanthemum growers, declared: "I never saw the chrysanthemums look better for shape and length of stem, and the foliage is good. I think about the middle of September the stock will be in excellent shape for shipping and from then until the beginning of November will be a busy season. I have just heard from the express company that refrigerator cars are to be run from here twice a week—Tuesdays and Fridays. All the cars seem to be getting through satisfactorily." Mr. Axell is shipping Chrysolora and Early Frost at present.

Darbee's is in the swing of the early shipping season. They are busy with chrysanthemums and asters. Mrs. A. J. Gooch stated that the refrigerator cars have been getting through well and consignments arriving in a satisfactory condition.

P. D. Mortensen, of the E. W. McLellan Co., stated that the firm's customers in the eastern and southern territory have been receiving their shipments of chrysanthemums and asters in good shape. Apparently, there has been no delay en route. E. W. McLellan is still traveling in the south. All the McLellan rose houses have now started up again.

Brown & Kennedy had ten weddings Saturday, September 2. They say that there has been a greater rush of weddings during the early part of September than at any time during June. They have also had some good funeral orders.

The Castro Flower Shop had six weddings Sunday, September 3, and this firm adds confirmation to the idea that September seems to be the bride's month this year.

Harold A. Dunlap has joined the staff of Avansino Bros. & Co. Until recently he was with Pelicano, Rossi & Co. He is well known to the trade.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. were busy with some large funerals. Frank Thatcher, of this firm, stated that people are now coming back from vacations, and business in general is taking a spurt.

F. C. Jaeger, of F. C. Jaeger & Son, requested The Review to express his appreciation of the kindness and hospitality shown him on a vacation trip to Los Angeles and San Diego, from which he has just returned. He called on most of the florists and growers and was much impressed with the satisfactory summer business and the growth of the cities of the southland. "Roy Wilcox, of Los Angeles, has the finest palm nurseries west of the Rocky mountains," he declared. "Everywhere the growers and florists are forging ahead in the south." In addition to coming back a great booster for the cities, Mr. Jaeger was enthusiastic over the beaches, the bathing and the resorts generally. "I was particularly delighted with the marine gardens at Catalina. They were about the most beautiful growing things I have seen, and impressed me almost as much as the wonderful hospitality of southern California," he said. John Morley, superintendent of public parks, San Diego, was courteous in showing Mr. Jaeger around town.

Charles F. Shellgrain, of Shellgrain & Ritter, has returned from an extended Alaska trip. In addition to going up the Lynn canal and calling at Skagway, he continued the trip up the coast to the Bering sea and visited Nome, the Aleutian islands, etc., enjoying the novel experience of reading his newspaper by the light of the midnight sun. In all his travels, Mr. Shellgrain only found one florist—a sort of florist-nurseryman in Nome, who grows a few things and gets prices for them that would stagger anyone who does not know the cost of growing stock in the far north. On his return trip, Mr. Shellgrain was shown around and entertained at Seattle by the Rosaia brothers.

Victor Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, stated that the demand for flowers for the social season has begun satisfactorily. The staff of this firm enjoyed a picnic Labor day, followed by an excellent dinner

George Wagner, of Joseph's, summed up the many conventions held in San Francisco during the summer by saying that most of them had greatly helped the florists' business. "Such men as those who attended the bankers' convention are the kind of tourists who spend money," he declared.

The Charles C. Navlet Co. continues to show fine dahlias, gladioli, etc., as window displays, to obtain orders for roots and bulbs for future delivery. Manager L. Picetti finds that this saves much time at the busy season of the year, as customers make their selections when the summer season is on and business is fairly quiet. Orders this year have run much to pompon dahlias. Because they last days longer than the larger varieties, Mr. Picetti believes that they are the coming vogue among dahlia fans.

H. K. Tanaka, manager of the United Flower & Supply Co., said they are not discouraged by the strike, as they are convinced the railroads will get the express cars through. "We are shipping to the middle west and to the south. Chrysanthemums are exceptionally good this year and the prices are lower than usual."

Mrs. Darbee has succeeded in interesting several florists in Italy in the F. T. D., according to a letter received in San Francisco, September 5, by General and Mrs. Gooch, of Darbee's.

Domoto Bros. have some fine crops of chrysanthemums coming on and have now started their fall shipping. M. Domoto stated that, in addition to the Chrysolora, they are cutting white and pink mums. This firm is still cutting rubrum lilies.

Albert O. Stein and staff are launched on the social season's work industriously. The head decorator, M. S. Marcus, said: "At Woodside we have had ten tables, all in Columbia roses and delphinium, arranged in garlands and baskets. A wedding at the St. Francis hotel, September 14, will be done in autumn yellow and browns, with Italian pottery and dishes to harmonize.

September 16 we have the garden wedding of C. C. Moore's daughter. It will be in blue and russet colors, and the fancy tablecloths will blend with the colors of the decorations. There will be eight bridesmaids and a maid of honor to carry bouquets, in addition to the bride.''

Enomoto & Co. have heard from their customers to whom early shipments of chrysanthemums were sent and they have reported that all the consignments got through in good shape. They anticipate no trouble from the railroad strike. M. M.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Much of the work for this summer's social functions has been by Leikens, who had the Fahnestock ball, at Villa Rosa; the Aspengren ball, at Aspen hall, and the Burden ball, at Oakwood.

The annual September flower show of the Newport Horticultural Society was held Wednesday and Thursday, September 6 and 7, in the dining hall of the First Presbyterian church, dahlias and gladioli predominating. This year's was considered the finest display of these flowers ever made here. The entries were attractively staged under the direction of the exhibition committee, consisting of John T. Allan, Bruce Butterton, Frederick Carter, Andrew Dorward, Richard Gardner, William Gray, James Hooper, William MacKay, Alexander McClellan, Andrew S. Meikle, James Robertson, William F. Smith, John B. Urquhart, V. A. Vanicek and William G. Taylor. The society's silver medal was awarded Fred P. Webber's seedling peony-flowered dahlia, Starbright. Many of the other flowers exhibited by Mr. Webber received awards. Other large winners were James Hooper, gardener for Mrs. T. K. Gibbs; Andrew Dorward, gardener for Mrs. T. J. Emery; Alexander Fraser, gardener for Mrs. Hamilton Mck. Twombly; J. T. Allan, gardener for J. R. Drexel; William H. Ackerman, Stewart Ritchie, Kempenaar & Christensen and Neil Ward, of Lonsdale. The judges were John T. Allen, Alexander McClellan and John B. Urquhart.

John S. Martin reports an unusual number of orders for fall landscape work.

V. A. Vanicek and William Bloomfield left Tuesday, September 5, on an automobile trip to Canada.

William Allen, gardener for Dr. and Mrs. Alexander H. Rice, who has been ill for several weeks, is reported to be in a critical condition at the Newport hospital. W. H. M.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business has started with a rush. The opening week of September was the most active of any similar period in several years. There have been an unusual number of weddings, many small affairs, accompanied by several showers and other prenuptial gatherings. Funeral work has been active. Gladioli and asters are leaders at present, the former having come to the fore this season in popularity. Roses are strong in both quantity and quality. Early carnations show good promise.

Various Notes.

George Reopell, with T. J. Johnston & Co., is on his vacation, which he is enjoying at Block island.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Alexander Forbes, Newark, N. J.; secretary, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

CHANGES made in the tariff act, as regards seeds and bulbs, by the conference committee of the Senate and House are noted on page 24 of this issue.

G. F. BRADLEY, of the Templin-Crockett-Bradley Co., Cleveland, O., made a tour of Yellowstone national park with his wife while on vacation this summer.

THE onion set crop at Chicago has turned out considerably better than last year, the yield being about four and one-half bushels to the pound of seed sown.

BANKRUPTCY proceedings in the case of the Purity Seed Co., Memphis, Tenn., are reported on another page of this issue, under the heading, "Business Embarrassments."

THE W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, has received 534 cases of Dutch bulbs to date, all of which arrived on the steamer Ryndam. The company reports that Chinese lily bulbs have arrived.

ACCORDING to August H. Hummert, of the St. Louis Seed Co., St. Louis, Mo., the firm's fall bulbs are arriving daily. Although prices are higher on these than they were last year, advance orders are cleaning up arrivals almost weekly.

THE trade will be pleased to know that Mrs. C. D. Coventry, wife of the manager of the wholesale department of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, has fully recovered from injuries suffered in an automobile accident several weeks ago.

R. B. HOWE, president of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, and his wife, have returned from their vacation in Yellowstone national park. Mr. Howe returned full of energy for the season's work, and he describes with enthusiasm the wonders of the park.

ALBERT HOPKINS SMITH, treasurer of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, has returned to his desk after an automobile tour through the Alleghenies. He reports he drove 2,800 miles without a puncture and his associates say his fingers still stay crossed.

IT is said that J. Oliver Johnson, Chicago, last season sold considerably better than half a million dollars' worth of seeds and fertilizers without any other means of personal conveyance than his old Ford; but the other day he bought a dolled-up Mercer.

DAMAGE by fire, estimated at $50,000, was suffered by the Willett Seed Co., of Augusta, Ga., several days ago when fire, starting just before midnight, gutted the main store and warehouse. The chief loss is in the destruction of valuable seed stock and a quantity of calcium arsenate.

NOT much can be added to the good words the annual volumes of convention proceedings of the American Seed Trade Association have merited in the past, but the one just to hand—of the fortieth convention, at Chicago, last June—looks the best of those which the expert hand of Secretary Kendel has prepared. The material is accurately presented, and the pleasing typographical arrangement

VISITORS SEE BODGER CROPS.

"During the last ten days," reports John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Cal., "we have experienced some extremely warm weather in southern California, the thermometer hovering between 85 and 100 degrees every day, and while it has had a tendency to ripen many of the seed crops a little ahead of their regular time, it has also tended to shorten the crops a little. have been in full bloom during this period, and while the extreme heat has affected some of the more delicate colors and taken a little from the freshness of the crop, no apparent damage has been done and the crops will be harvested in good season, with a good yield of seed.

"The warm weather has brought the asters into full bloom at this date, which is five to eight days earlier than in other seasons. Our large acreage of many-colored asters, together with the brilliant showing of zinnias, has made a spectacular display for the many visitors who have been with us the last few days.

"Our visitors commented favorably upon the large acreage we have devoted to the flowers which are so popular for florists' use in this country today, such as two acres of Zinnia pumila Salmon Rose and a full forty acres of American Beauty asters and dahlia-flowered zinnias, including Exquisite and the new giant salmon and deep rose shades. The two acres of Didiscus cærulea, the blue lace flower, which is such a favorite among the florists at this time, was a pleasing sight to them, as it was in full bloom and standing waist high.

"Another thing which proved attractive was the seemingly bewildering collection of European varieties of asters and other flowers, which were collected by our John Bodger, Sr., during his visit to Europe last summer. Among these is a full collection of the European bedding asters, such as Mignon, Victoria, Unicum, Dwarf Chrysanthemum, pyramidals, crowns, etc.

"We have had the pleasure of a visit from the following seedsmen the first week in September: S. C. Michael, of Michael's Seed Store, Sioux City, Ia.; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Eisele, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. and Mrs. Adolf Corneli, of St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cropp, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; George Clark, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; J. C. Cherry, of H. W. Buckbee, Rockford, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Beckert and family, of Beckert's Seed Store, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"Earlier in the season we had the pleasure of entertaining: George C. Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Massie, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Gurney, of the Gurney Seed & Nursery Co., Yankton, S. Dak.; Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Bradley, of Templin, Crockett & Bradley Co., Cleveland, O.

"We also anticipate a visit from: C. D. Coventry, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, Ill.; W. H. Dildine, of James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y.; Adrian J. Schoorl, of San Francisco, Cal.; C. R. Gloeckner, of Henry F.

VILMORIN CENTENARY.

A double event was celebrated at the famous nursery of Vilmorin, Andrieux & Co., at Verrières-le-Buisson, France, July 27. The fête was designed to mark the occasion of the nomination of Mme. Philippe de Vilmorin, the present proprietor, as a member of the Legion of Honor, and to commemorate the centenary of the establishment of the Verrières nursery. A special train from Paris to Verrières carried the guests and the employees at the Paris and Reuilly branches of the business—in all some 960 persons. It was in 1815, rather more than a hundred years ago, that the famous Verrières establishment was formed out of a plot of ground which then contained a pavilion built by Louis the Fourteenth for the use of Mlle. de la Vallière. This residence is now that of the Vilmorin family. Since 1815, the interest of the property has steadly increased, as more and more valuable plants and trees have been added to the original collections. The chemical laboratory was added in 1891 and contains every facility for agricultural and horticultural research. In 1901 the alpine garden was formed, by the late Philippe de Vilmorin, and is the admiration of every visitor to the nursery.

The déjeuner, which was the principal feature of the celebration, was a great success, and everyone was gratified at the presence of Mme. Henry de Vilmorin, the widow of the late proprietor's father. Mme. Philippe presided over the chief table, at which were a number of distinguished guests. After the déjeuner she rose and addressed the company in well chosen terms, alluding with much feeling to her late husband, who died in 1917, and expressing gratitude for the presentation which had been made to her, of a gold plaquette bearing a portrait of her husband.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Brown Bulb Ranch, Capitola, Cal.—A condensed, briefly descriptive 8-page catalogue, devoted principally to sweet peas, but also containing lists of a few other varieties of flower seeds and of California gladiolus bulbs.

Forest Nursery Co., McMinnville, Tenn.—A 20-page descriptive catalogue of ornamental nursery stock, both deciduous and evergreen. A few of the favorite varieties of fruit trees, and of bulbs and herbaceous plants, also are listed.

G. Beckwith & Son, Hoddesdon, Herts, England.—A 4-page folder, devoted entirely to the company's new hybrid tea rose, Elsie Beckwith, a seedling of Ophelia crossed with Mevrouw Dora Van Tets. The folder is neatly printed with green and black ink and bears a picture of the rose in black and white. The price is quoted in English currency, with a discount to the trade.

Bertrand H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa.—A finely colored circular, offering "two groups of peonies for those who want quality," also the "rainbow collection" of seedling irises and four of "Farr's wonderful 1923 introductions" in irises. Accompanying the circular is an announcement that "a new type of Farr catalogue will be published this fall," but it is intimated that there may be an advantage to the customer in ordering from the older catalogue.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE National Association of Gardeners is in convention at the Hotel Brunswick, Boston, this week.

CHANGES made in the tariff act, with respect to nursery items, by the conference committee of the Senate and House of Representatives are noted on page 24 of this issue.

THE Larchmont Nurseries, Mamaroneck, N. Y., have been incorporated. The capitalization is set at $5,000, and the incorporators are R. Heidcamp and A. Heidcamp.

RECENT rains have put stock in fine shape at the Clyde Nursery, operated by A. R. Pickett & Sons, Clyde, O. Sales are reported to be running about the same as a year ago.

AT the Cook county fair, at Palatine, Ill., there was no more prominent exhibitor than Klehm's Nurseries, of Arlington Heights. More than thirty-five varieties of fruits were shown.

THE death of Mrs. Mary Gage Peterson, widow of the late P. S. Peterson, of Chicago, is noted on the obituary page of this issue. She was the mother of the present proprietor of Peterson Nursery, William A. Peterson.

As a result of the recent rains in that vicinity, Rice Bros. Nursery, Rochester, N. Y., suffered a loss of $25,000. The wall of the storage plant on the Carter road collapsed. The wall was 320 feet in length and twenty-five feet high.

WHEN the votes were counted in the Ohio primaries, it was found that H. S. Day, of the Fremont Nurseries, Fremont, O., candidate for the nomination to the office of state treasurer, polled a plurality of 123,000, or 43,000 more than the combined vote of his two opponents.

A. A. N. COMMITTEES.

Paul C. Lindley, president of the American Association of Nurserymen, in appointing the committees of the organization for his term selected the chairmen, who picked their coworkers. The complete slate announced is as follows:

FRUIT TREES ARE FEWER.

According to the census of 1919, the agricultural tables of which have just been issued, the fruit trees of this country have shrunk remarkably in numbers in ten years, despite the great increase in our population in the same period. Of apples, for instance, the trees of bearing age numbered 151,322,840 in 1910 and only 115,309,165 in 1920, while the trees not of bearing age were 65,791,848 in 1910 and 36,195,085 in 1920. The total number of apple trees in this country in 1910, therefore, was 217,114,688, while it was only 151,504,250 in 1920. The decrease in ten years was thirty per cent.

In pears the decrease is smaller. Trees of bearing age in 1910 were 15,171,524 and in 1920 were 14,647,412. Trees not of bearing age in 1910 were 8,803,885 and in 1920 were 6,052,247. The total number of pear trees in the country in 1910 was, therefore, 23,975,409, while in 1920 it was 20,699,659. The decrease in the ten years in this case was slightly less than fourteen per cent.

In peach trees a larger decrease is to be noted. Trees of bearing age numbered 94,506,657 in 1910 and only 65,646,101 in 1920. Those not of bearing age were 42,266,243 in 1910 and 21,617,862 in 1920. The total trees in 1910 were 136,972,900 and only 87,263,963 in 1920. Here is a decrease of over thirty-six per cent.

A decrease in the number of plum and prune trees of bearing age from 1910 to 1920 was nearly offset by an increase in the number of such trees not of bearing age. In 1910 the plum and prune trees of bearing age were 23,445,009, while in 1920 they numbered 20,452,293. The trees not of bearing age numbered 6,923,581 in 1910 and 9,375,268 in 1920. So the total in 1910 was 30,368,590, while in 1920 it was 29,827,561. The decrease was only half a million trees, or less than two per cent.

The total number of these kinds of fruit trees was 408,431,587 in 1910 and 289,295,433 in 1920. The decrease in the ten years totaled 119,136,154 trees, or approximately twenty-nine per cent.

Interestingly, the figures as to the bushels of fruit obtained of these trees in 1909 and 1919 show larger in the latter year than the former, aside from apples, despite the fewer trees. Here are the production figures in bushels:

	1909	1919
Apples	145,412,318	136,560,997
Peaches	35,470,276	50,686,082
Pears	8,840,733	14,204,265
Plums and prunes	15,480,170	19,083,942
Total	205,203,497	220,535,286

It will be seen that production per tree is climbing faster than the number of trees decreases, but still the average yield is three-quarters of a bushel per tree per year, counting all the trees, and only slightly more than one bushel per tree if one counts just the trees of bearing age. It would appear that better yields are to be desired as much as more trees. There is ample room for both, since the figures would indicate that there are but two bushels per year for each person in the United States, of apples, peaches, pears, plums and prunes. If these figures are correct—and they are United States census figures—there is ample room for increased business in fruit trees for nurserymen.

QUARANTINE NO. 43 EXTENDED.

An announcement from the United States Department of Agriculture states that quarantine 43, known as the European corn borer quarantine, has been amended and notice is given that the following towns are now added to and included within the area infested by the European corn borer, and regulation 3 amended accordingly:

Massachusetts—Attleboro, Berkley, Dighton, Fall River, Norton, Rehoboth, Seekonk, Somerset and Swansea, in Bristol county; Acton, Holliston, Hudson and Marlboro, in Middlesex county; Foxboro and Norfolk, in Norfolk county; Southboro, in Worcester county.

Michigan—Bedford, Exeter and Ida, in Monroe county.

New York, eastern—Goeymans, in Albany county; New Baltimore, in Greene county; Canajoharie, Minden and St. Johnsville, in Montgomery county; Cherry Valley, in Otsego county; Pittstown, in Rennselaer county; Carlisle and Fulton, in Schoharie county; Cambridge, in Washington county.

New York, western—Freedom, Machais, New Albion and Yorkshire, in Cattaraugus county; Clymer, Ellington and French Creek, in Chautauqua county; Wales, in Erie county; Alabama, Batavia and Pembroke, in Genesee county; Cambria, Lewiston, Lockport, Newfane, Pendleton, Porter and Wilson, in Niagara county; Attica, Bennington, Middlebury, Orangeville, Perry, Sheldon and Warsaw, in Wyoming county.

Ohio—Austinburg, Harpersfield, Plymouth and Sheffield, in Ashtabula county; Independence, Newburg and Warrensville, in Cuyahoga county; Margaretta and Perkins, in Erie county; Chardon, in Geauga county; Amherst, in Lorain county; Allen, in Ottawa county; Townsend, in Sandusky county; Lake and Ross, in Wood county.

Pennsylvania—Conneaut, Elk Creek, Franklin, Washington and Wayne, in Erie county.

Until further notice the rules and regulations supplemental to quarantine 43 will apply in all respects to the towns enumerated above. The amendment became effective September 2.

FLORISTS SELL NURSERY STOCK.

Each season brings an increase in the amount of nursery stock sold through florists. Every florist who does a business in spring bedding plants can do as much in autumn with shrubs and other hardy ornamentals if he makes the effort. One by one florists are finding out that there is a big demand for hardy plants and that the average person does not have the opportunities for buying them that are afforded for buying greenhouse stock. The result is that more and more each year florists enter this line of activity, usually buying their stock from a wholesale grower who advertises in The Review. It works like this:

Roses For Forcing

Extra strong selected plants for Easter forcing Tausendschoen, 3-year, very heavy, $30.00 per 100. Strong No. 1 plants, as ordinarily furnished, at special prices. Write for quotations.

NEW YORK CLUB OPENS SEASON.

First Fall Meeting.

The first meeting of the New York Florists' Club in the new season was held in the club's quarters in the Engineering Societies' building, Monday evening, September 11, with an attendance of about seventy members. President Irwin presided.

After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, a resolution on the death of the late Patrick Welch was unanimously passed, the assembly standing.

Paul Rigo, for the transportation committee, presented a report covering the recent trip to Kansas City and through the Great Lakes back to New York. Thirty-three members of the club journeyed to Kansas City, and nineteen took the full trip. Financially, the trip was a success, showing a small balance in hand, which was voted to L. W. C. Tuthill, for his services in the preparation of publicity matter in connection with the trip. Votes of thanks were passed to the Kansas City Florists' Club and the florists of Kansas City for the many courtesies extended to the club's party at the convention; and to the florists of St. Paul and Minneapolis for their courteous treatment of the members taking the lakes trip.

Four candidates were nominated for election at the next meeting: Peter Reis, Union Hill, N. J.; Fowler Marsden, Lawrence, N. Y.; John Murray Harris, New York; and Prof. Lester Ortig, Wardover Farm, Bernarsdville, N. Y.

Profits from Spring Show.

Secretary Young announced that a check for $140.66 had been received from F. R. Newbold, treasurer of the flower show committee, which made the total share of the club in the profits of last spring's flower show $6,145.66. The secretary recommended that instructions be given the board of trustees to make permanent investments of both the flower show and life membership funds now carried in deposit accounts.

A communication from the secretary of the New York State Federation of Horticultural Clubs and Floricultural Societies, inviting the club to participate in the forthcoming annual meeting, was referred to the club's delegates, Anton Schultheis and F. R. Pierson.

The secretary reported the deaths of J. Max Nitzsche and J. H. Rodman, members of the club, and the chair appointed committees to prepare memorial resolutions, in the case of the former, Sam Seligman, F. Golsner and C. Lowther, and in the case of the latter, A. L. Miller, Steve Masur and Christian Bonnett.

Tales Told by Travelers.

The remainder of the evening was given over to reports of those who visited the Kansas City convention. A. M. Henshaw told of the experiences of himself and Wallace R. Pierson on their trip by automobile to the convention, in Mr. Pierson's Lincoln car. Secretary Young eulogized the Kansas City florists and committees having in charge the convention details, and he was supported in his statements by Vice-President Anton Schultheis, Jr., who also described at some length the trip through the lakes.

Roman Irwin told of his trip to the convention of the Canadian florists, in Montreal, and subsequently to Yellowstone park. C. H. Totty told of his visit to the Montreal convention as representative of the president of the S. A. F., and expressed his belief that the American florists could not get too close to their Canadian brethren in the prosecution of the profession of horticulture.

Exhibits.

C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., exhibited a fine vase of the new rose, America, for which he received a vote of thanks. John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., staged a grand display of gladioli and dahlias, which was awarded a cultural certificate.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, received a vote of thanks for an exhibit of emblems of the American Legion.

RUST ON SNAPDRAGONS.

I have mailed you a few leaves of my snapdragons. I should like to know what the disease is which is troubling these plants and also how to get rid of it.

J. Z.—O.

The foliage was covered with rust. Pick off the badly affected foliage. Avoid wetting the leaves unnecessarily, since dampening the foliage is the great breeder of rust. Water the plants carefully and maintain a drier atmosphere. Do not close the ventilators at night at this season, as a free circulation of air is necessary. Spray the plants with a fungicide like Bordeaux mixture and repeat this action if the trouble continues. The great point, however, is to avoid wetting the foliage when watering and to keep a dry and buoyant atmosphere.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

HEATING PROTECTED HOUSES.

I contemplate building three greenhouses, 13x40 feet, and wish to maintain a temperature of from 40 to 45 degrees when the outside temperature is at zero. The greenhouses will be protected on the west and northwest sides, while the ground slopes toward the east. Kindly give me general instructions in regard to the heating arrangement. This range will be heated by a separate boiler.

H. E. C.—O.

The sketch which accompanies your letter shows the range in question to consist of three houses, each 13x40 feet. A 2½-inch flow pipe will answer for each of the houses, and with four 2-inch returns will give you 45 degrees in each house, except in the east house, which has four feet of glass in the exposed wall and will require one additional return pipe to maintain the desired temperature. It would probably be possible to secure 40 degrees with the four returns suggested. Run all of the flow pipes downhill and connect the expansion tank at the highest point in the system.

ADJUSTING OLD SYSTEM.

I have mailed you a diagram of my greenhouse range and should like to know how this range should be piped for the heating system. How large should the main feed line from the boiler and the leads from this be? The upper houses are on a hillside, wth a slope of four and one-half feet from the north to the south. The large house at the north side is on a level, but the boiler pit is thirteen feet deep. I am now using a gravity system. It was formerly operated with a trap, but we have found that the system works better without the trap. I wish to change the piping, because the present arrangement is not satisfactory. There is an overhead pipe from the main line passing out across the alley into the roof of the big house. This pipe is boxed to hold the heat. The chimney is of brick, eighty-five feet high, while the outside diameter is eight feet.

S. F. C.

There are six houses, 18x100 feet, on one side of the workroom, to be used for roses and plants requiring a similar temperature, and one house, 20x100 feet, for ferns and propagating purposes. For each of these houses it will be advisable to use one 2-inch supply pipe overhead, with six 1¼-inch returns in the coils, except in the two outside houses, for which eight returns will be required.

If 1-inch pipe is now used in the houses, this, of course, will answer every purpose in houses of this length, using eight returns of this size in place of six 1¼-inch and ten in place of eight.

Satisfactory results may also be secured with two 1½-inch overhead supply pipes on the purlin posts instead of one 2-inch under the ridge. The sketch does not show the arrangement of the benches, but, as a rule, it is advisable to use at least one return under each bench for bottom heat. Start from the boilers with a 4-inch main for this range of houses, using another of the same size for the houses on the other side of the workroom.

On the east side of the workroom there are three houses, ranging from 18x156 to 18x200 feet, and two houses respectively 20x100 and 20x140 feet, to be used for carnations and general stock. It will be well to use either one 2-inch or two 1½-inch supply pipes and four 1¼-inch returns for the 18-foot houses. In the 20-foot houses use five returns, or six if there is glass in the exposed walls.

The large rose house, 42x150 feet, is on the south side of the boiler house, from which a 3-inch main is carried overhead across the alley. The main should be extended about five feet below the ridge, to the east end of the house, where it should be connected with the coils, which should contain eighteen 1¼-inch return pipes if there

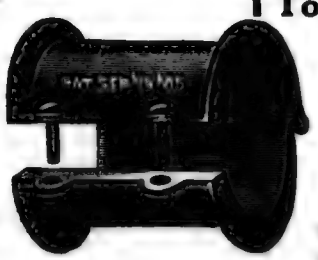
You Should Have a Standard Recording Thermometer

J. K. Alexander, the dahlia king, East Bridgewater, Mass., writes: "Your thermometer is the best I have seen for my business."

Records are as important in the growing business as in any other business. Progressive growers who spare no effort in raising highest grade stock use Standard Recording Thermometers and know the great aid of keeping records of temperatures. Your equipment is far from complete if you have no Standard Recording Thermometer.



The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal, which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

is glass in the side walls; otherwise sixteen or seventeen returns will answer. There appears to be a door in the north wall of this house near where the feed pipe enters, which would prevent running a coil the entire length of the house on the north wall, and perhaps some of the other coils would be cut off by cross-walks. Provision should then be made for a coil of three return pipes to be carried on the wall of the house from the door in the west end around to the door in the north side. To feed this coil, run a 1½-inch pipe to the west end of the house from the 3-inch main. If any of the other coils are cut off by cross-walks, short coils may be run under the benches to be supplied at the west end of the house. In case the entire amount of radiation to be supplied in the west end of the house is in excess of 200 square feet, increase the size of the supply pipe to 2-inch. There should be no occasion for using a steam trap when the boiler pit is thirteen feet deep.

CORRECTING HEATING PLAN.

I have sent a sketch of our greenhouses and general heating plans. We use a Kroeschell steam boiler No. 36, from which a 3-inch main with 2-inch leads goes into the houses. We desire enough radiation to insure a 60-degree temperature in all the houses, although we keep only one house at that temperature. Would it be advisable to take another lead from the boiler for the new houses? If so, how much pipe and what size will be necessary?

In the new south house, shown in the sketch, the pipes must be placed under the benches and in the house shown to the west the pipes will have to be placed under the west bench and on each side of the solid bed in the center, which has concrete walls about twelve inches high. At present, water backs up into the radiators in the residence, when the boiler is being pushed. We should be grateful for suggestions as to how we may improve our system. H. R. M.—Kan.

The sketch shows four houses 100 feet long and, respectively, twenty, nineteen, eighteen and fourteen feet in width. In addition, there is a corridor house, 18x51, and an office, 18x20, besides a dwelling, in which there are three medium-sized radiators. The 20-foot and 14-foot houses each have one wall exposed, with three feet of glass, and the corridor house has one exposed wall with four feet of glass.

The three houses now in use have eight 1-inch return pipes, in addition to a 2-inch lead in each house. This would be all right in mild weather and would probably give at least 50 degrees when 20 below zero in the 18-foot and 19-foot houses, but for 60 degrees when 20 below zero it would be well to use eleven 1-inch returns in the 20-foot house, nine returns each in the 18-foot and 19-foot houses, eight returns in the 14-foot house and eleven 1-inch returns in the corridor house, in addition to the mains. While 2-inch leads will be large enough for the 14-foot, 18-foot and 19-foot houses and 1½-inch for the corridor house, it would be advisable to use 2½-inch pipe for the lead in the 20-foot house, since it not only supplies 450 square feet of radiation in this house, but a 1½-inch lead to the dwelling, and another to the corridor house and office is taken from it.

It would be advisable, then, to extend the lead in this house to the west end and, after taking off 1½-inch leads to each of the coils and one of the same size to the dwelling, extend it into the office as 2-inch and then reduce it to 1½-inch to feed the coils in the corridor house.

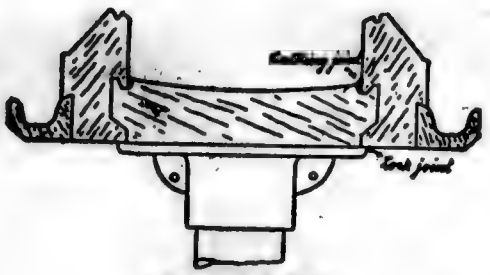
At present, the leads to the 19-foot, 18-foot and 14-foot houses are all supplied by one 2-inch main. This means that it is carrying about 900 square feet of radiation, which is altogether too much for a main of this size. It is suggested that the lead to the 18-foot and 14-foot houses be disconnected from the present main and that a 2½-inch main be run from the boiler to supply these two houses, maintaining this size until the lead to the 18-foot house has been taken off.

While the present mains are certainly too small to carry the radiation, it is not certain that the backing up of the water in the radiators and coils can be ascribed to it. If the lower portions of the radiators are not at least three feet above the water level in the boiler or if the return pipes are too small, it will be likely to occur.

For drip pipes use 1-inch pipe from each coil; 1¼-inch pipe from each house and 1½-inch pipe for each half of the system.

HEATING A LEAN-TO.



We should like to have some information and advice on the heating of a lean-to greenhouse, 12x40 feet. We desire to install a Wilks boiler and burn hard coal so as to dispense with a night fireman. It is our wish to pipe this house so that we can erect another house on the south side later. How should this house be piped to maintain 55 to 60 degrees? The house will be used for propagating conifers. We have thought of placing one 3-foot bench against the south wall, leaving a walk of two feet; then a bench six feet wide. This would give us two walks two feet wide and two benches. Is this arrangement all right? V. N.—N. C.

With a good grade of soft coal and an oversized grate there should be no difficulty in maintaining a regular temperature without a night fireman. The larger the plant the easier it will be. We cannot advise regarding the size of the boiler without knowing the amount of glass to be heated. The lean-to house will require a boiler rated for 320 square feet of radiation, and if a house 20x40 feet is to be added, the two houses can be heated by means of a boiler with a rating for 900 square feet of hot water radiation.

Two walks, each two feet wide, with two benches, respectively three and six feet wide, will require a house thirteen feet wide and some changes will be necessary if they are to go in a house twelve feet wide. We suggest that four inches be taken from the width of each walk, and the same from the width of the wide bench.

For heating this house run one 2-inch flow pipe on the south wall plate and another two feet below the ridge. Six 2-inch return pipes will be required.

HEATING FOR TOMATOES.

I have two greenhouses, 33x200 feet respectively. How many flow and return pipes will be required to heat these two houses to a temperature suitable for growing lettuce, radishes and tomatoes? The houses run east and west, with glass exposed on all sides. I have steam, and live steam when necessary, furnished by the power boilers of the city power plant, which is located about 200 feet from the range. The pipes are already in the ground, as the system was formerly in operation. I also have a steam vacuum pump to force the condensation back to the power plant.

S. G.—Mich.

If either of the greenhouses is to be used for forcing tomatoes during the winter months, it would be advisable to pipe the range for 60 degrees, but if the range is to be used for lettuce and radishes during the winter and for tomato forcing in the spring, it will only be necessary to plan the radiation for a temperature of 50 degrees when it is 10 degrees below zero.

In the former case a 4-inch main would be required for each house, while a 3½-inch main will suffice if 50 degrees only will be needed in the winter. To pipe the houses for 60 degrees, we would use three 2½-inch mains as flow pipes, with twelve 2-inch return pipes in each house. Carry one flow pipe on each side wall plate and the other four feet under the ridge. Four 1¼-inch pipes may be arranged in a coil on each side wall and the remaining four returns may be placed in the walks.

For 50 degrees, use the same arrangement of piping, except that the flow pipes may be 2-inch pipes and only nine 1¼-inch returns will be needed.

If a contract can be made at a reasonable rate for a supply of steam from the waterworks, we certainly advise it, since it will only be necessary to use live steam in extremely cold weather.

"Most interesting; in fact, when one pauses to think what has been done in the growing of bulbs in the southern country by Charles L. Baum, at Knoxville, Tenn., it is little short of marvelous," observed Simon Dernison, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, commenting upon the millions of gladioli, Lilium candidum, L. giganteum, L. regale and Spanish iris, growing on the home farm. Highly satisfactory is a planting of four acres of a 600-acre tract with lilies at an altitude of 4,500 feet. Soil and climate have been pronounced ideal by several scientists. The experimental stage has been passed and, judging from the quantity of bulbs already sold, the outlook for the future is encouraging. The greenhouses are in fine shape, under the care of Roy Baum. Three houses are being added to supply the Home of Flowers, presided over by Karl F. Baum.

"Tradition says that when the governors of North and South Carolina meet they excel in hospitality," observed Charles A. Moss, Spartanburg, S. C., referring to the call of Otto Busick, Asheville, N. C., for a meeting of the members of the F. T. D. in the two states, Monday, September 11, at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, Charlotte, N. C., as a preliminary to the annual conference to be held in Baltimore in October. It was a combined business and social affair. Among the exhibits were samples of cyclamens from the Charles A. Moss establishment, admitted to be as fine as ever shown. Charles A. Moss, Jr., is now actively interested in the 40-acre nursery connected with the greenhouse plant. Harold, a younger member, leans toward rose growing; Grower Ayres excels in the production of Columbia, Hadley and Ophelia.

Dan C. Horgan, of the Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga., was caught on the fly, so to speak, on his way to the golf links. "A fine way to get limbered up for the fall campaign," he commented, "far better than sitting around the store and lamenting the dullness of business. It will come. We have faith in the future, or we surely should not place the several signboards with our slogan in various parts of the county. Our coal is on the way. The first crop of cotton was heavy and sold at a good figure; the second crop looks good. Greenhouse stock never was in better shape, the decks cleared for action. Several special sales brought back most by using

Kuhls' Elastic Glazing Composition

It is light gray in color and the only glazing material that can be applied with the hands the same as putty, and will not stick. It retains its elasticity indefinitely and prevents breakage of glass. Withstands heat, cold and dampness and will adhere to wood, iron, stone, etc. Beds perfectly and lasts as long as the glass lasts. If the glass breaks, Elastic Glazing Composition can be cut out without injury to the wood, as it remains flexible.

"The finest of the cactus dahlia family," commented Charles Wachendorff, of Wachendorff Bros., Atlanta, Ga., referring to Attraction, a lovely lavender; Kalif, best red; Geisha, crimson and gold; Judge Marean, and Hortulanus Fiat, pink. Blooms of all average eight inches across. The plants are disbudded, fed with poultry manure and irrigated by the Skinner system, which is so satisfactory that a new line will be used next season on a planting on high ground, secure from frost two weeks later than that just below. Should Jack Frost pay a visit, the sprinkler is turned on before sunrise and the crop is saved. Just as close attention is paid to stock grown under glass, by Edward Wachendorff, who rightly claims that to compete favorably with every day produce, one must go just one better. It is the secret of success at this place. Crotons, begonias and cyclamens are in tip-top shape. Chrysanthemums will stir up competiton at the annual fall shows. Worthy of note is the opinion that no difference is seen in the growth of plants on concrete or wooden benches. Concrete is taking the place of wood.

Walter Lawrence, of the Lawrence Floral Co., Atlanta, Ga., is around again, after a long, enforced rest. The business has been ably taken care of by his son, Charles W., assisted by Miss Lawrence, or shall we say the reverse? There is nothing like team work.

* * * *

Alex Scott, of the C. A. Dahl Co., Atlanta, Ga., has the usual high-grade plantings of carnations and chrysanthemums. Stock did well this season.

* * * *

A. C. Oelschig & Sons, Savannah, Ga., have opened the fall campaign with a series of captions, such as "Say It with Flowers, Ferns and Decorative Plants," intending no branch shall be overlooked. Carl Oelschig expects to attend the meeting of the F. T. D. at Baltimore.

* * * *

A. W. Richardson, Savannah, Ga., has turned over the growing end to his son-in-law, John Karouski, at one time with Thomas Rochford, of London. The result is evident in the fine line of decorative plants flourishing here. This reminds us that Dreer's had a finely colored Souvenir de Thomas Rochford in the splendid collection of crotons at the S. A. F. convention display. This variety is considered a gem among crotons.

the midst of touching up his extensive range just at convention time, so contented himself by thoroughly digesting the report in The Review. Everything looks spick-and-span, both inside and outside. Carnations, roses and chryanthemums are up to the usual high standard. Feelers are being sent out in every direction to start up the new season's business. The summer stock is about exhausted; gardens look awry. John Wolf, Jr., is taking a 3-year course in floriculture at Cornell, to be followed with a year at a good commercial house. William Wolf, a brother, has not yet decided. There is a fine opportunity for the young man.

* * * *

The Rosehill Greenhouses, of Columbia, S. C., have rose stock in fine shape for later crops. Bushes in gardens are now giving their best, but they will soon be exhausted. While passing through Trinity churchyard, the writer was attracted to a noble specimen of the English yew. This has a spread of fully thirty feet, and the trunk at the base is about thirty inches around. This tree was possibly planted in 1834, as the last burial was made at that spot during that year. A Cedrus Deodara towering near is another rarity in age and size. The English ivy flourishes fully as freely as in its old home. A fine opportunity is here for nurseryman or florist to secure abundant stock, the demand for which is increasing each year.

* * * *

The Carolina Flower Store, Charleston, S. C., is well pleased with the volume of funeral work and the work for social functions. Manager Loget has made many changes, combining northern tact with southern environment.

* * * *

At the H. W. Buckbee place, at Rockford, Ill., one of the newest ideas, as the outcome of the quarantine act, is the building of several concrete frames, 6x80 feet, with protecting roofs, for the propagation of hardy plants, such as Hydrangea paniculata and Dielytra spectabilis. Several thousand of the latter, grown from seed, will form clumps, according to Superintendent C. W. Johnson. He still clings to his first love, the chrysanthemum, as evidenced by the thrifty stock growing for both cut flower and mail order business. Some fine specimens in pans are being grown for exhibition at the St. Louis flower show. Roses, carnations and the large variety necessary to keep the mail order catalogue complete means perpetual motion on the part of the company. W. M.

Branded for Your Protection

YOUR guarantee in purchasing Greenhouse Glass manufactured by the American Window Glass Company is the grade marking indelibly branded on the end of every box. The standards used in grading our product are so high that our "B" quality is difficult to distinguish from ordinary "A" and our "A" grade is the choice of all growers and greenhouse construction companies seeking higher quality. An excellent combination of quality with economy is to use our "A" grade on the south side of your house, with "B" for the north side and gables.

For Greenhouse Glazing

The careful grower demands glass that is reasonably flat and of uniform thickness on the edges; it must be comparatively free from the blisters that cause sunburn and of a clear, refined metal to admit all the light there is in the dark days of winter. The branded product of the American Window Glass Company meets all these requirements. Serious errors in flattening or annealing, noticeable discoloration, blisters or other defects are not permitted in "A" or "B" quality glass. Both grades are furnished, carefully packed, single and double strength, in all the sizes popular for greenhouse glazing.

Get acquainted with our Specialties—29, 34 and 39-ounce Glass

When you obtain an estimate from a jobber or greenhouse construction builder, specify American Window Glass Company's branded product and look for the brand on every box delivered. Write us direct if the dealer does not handle it.

Florists Go Visiting.

September 7 Ira K. Landis took the following party to Chester county to visit growers there: Charles M. Weaver, Elmer J. Weaver, L. S. Landis, James Landis, A. K. Rohrer and H. K. Rohrer. The party called first on Leon Wintzer, the grower of gladioli, at West Grove, Pa. About 5,000,000 bulbs of blooming size are being harvested here. An hour with such a grower as Mr. Wintzer is surely an hour well spent. The trial grounds here showed many of the newer varieties, but a variety must score high before it becomes one of the standards at this establishment. It was fine to note the cleanliness of the place and the many varieties, true to color.

Adjoining Mr. Wintzer's place is that of the Conard & Jones Co. Many acres are planted to cannas. There are rows and rows of seedlings being tried out in cannas, the results of patient work on the part of the veteran, Antoine Wintzer. The nursery stock—evergreens, perennials and roses—is in the best of condition.

The party then called on E. J. Marshall, who is held in high esteem by all Lancaster county growers. His carnation houses are filled with vigorous plants and promise an excellent cut. Laddie forms a considerable part of the planting. A rose house, with 5,000 2-year-old plants, is looking fine. Seldom does one see a lawn containing such a variety of fine old trees as are to be seen surrounding this home.

Various Notes.

The Rosery, of which Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moore are proprietors, had one of the finest wedding decorations ever seen here September 9, for the Marshall-Evans wedding.

The F. & I. Tobacco Products Co., with Charles Newbold as sales manager, is sending out carload lots of the firm's varied line of tobacco products. Many large rose-growing concerns find this firm's insecticides of great value. A special brand of fertilizer is put out by the company, well adapted to lawns, and many parks and golf courses are using it extensively. H. K. R.

NOTHING'S MATTER IN KANSAS.

There's nothing the matter in Kansas, according to the business reports reaching The Review. Users of Classified advertisements report like this:

Please discontinue our ad on field-grown carnations; we are sold out.—Truitt's Greenhouses, Chanute, Kan., August 22, 1922.

Please discontinue our ad on smilax and stevia plants, as we have sold out on them.—The Wirt Floral Co., August 23, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Wakefield, Mass.—Winfred Dike and Frank L. Moulton are to open a flower store at 494 Main street in the near future. This store will bear the name of the Dike & Moulton Flower Shop.

Gary, Ind.—A conspicuous feature of the final day of the flower show held last week at the International Institute was the beautiful display by the Mann Floral Shops. George S. Farr, the manager, added to his fine exhibit exquisite brides' bouquets; one was composed of Angelus roses and lilies of the valley. These were much admired.

CYCLAMEN PLANTS
READY NOW.

We can emphatically recommend them as a superior grade of plants, inasmuch as we have specialized On CYCLAMEN for years and have constantly improved our strain and methods of growing.

Through the use of a specially prepared compost, we have produced wonderful root action and a fine foliage, in fact we have never produced a finer lot of plants of the very best known varieties.

We have broken all records this year in the sale of plants and seedlings and have even shipped in full carload lots to eastern points.

Our plants positively have no trace or sign of the mite or any other diseases CYCLAMEN are subject to.

WHITE HYBRID DELPHINIUMS.

Several years ago Wm. Toole, Sr., discovered a plant among some Delphinium Formosum which bore pure white flowers. Since then he has crossed them with choice hybrids and selected from the best of these.

In general habit of growth they are like a good strain of hybrids of the blue color. Some of them are double though most are single, some have dark centers but most are pure white.

The plants we offer have all been selected and marked while in flower and no inferior specimens are sent out.

Price for strong selected plants, carefully packed, 35c each, $3.50 per doz., $25.00 per 100, $225.00 per 1000.

WILLIAM TOOLE & SON,
Garry-nee-Dule, Baraboo, Wis.

For many years we have given special attention to the betterment of Delphiniums and we feel confident that no better plants or better strain can be had anywhere. Ask the florists who have forced our stock.

Belladonna, strong 1-yr., $7.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000; Belladonna, strong 2-yr., $10.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000; Bellamosa, strong 1-yr., $7.00 per 100; English Hybrids, fine strain, $10.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

250 at 1000 rate. We will be pleased to book your order and make reservations for you. Also a good list of other hardy plants.

King GREENHOUSES

have built up a steadily increasing reputation over a period of years for rendering that day-in and day-out dependable service so absolutely necessary for profit in the flower and vegetable growing business.

That is why so many of the growers come back to us year after year with their greenhouse requirements—a testimonial to the unvarying quality of King Greenhouses.

The proof of the pudding is in the eating—the proof of a greenhouse is in the quality, service and profit gained on the original investment.

A few moments spent now in writing for the bulletins about King Greenhouses may pay you a handsome profit in the future. We'll be glad to send the bulletins immediately upon receiving your letter.

When you think of good greenhouses, think of KING.

A Few Weeks Ago—And Now

WALL WITH ANGLE EAVE READY FOR WOODWORK

There is all the difference in the world. A few weeks ago, many were thinking that hard times had come to stay, that it was hopeless to expect business to come back to normal.

But NOW—

there are signs of an increase in business on every hand. The automobile manufacturer is behind in his orders, the shoe dealer is working over time, the steel mills are running full, and you? What are you doing to prepare yourself for big business, which is not far ahead?

Are you still scared? If you are, and don't get over it pretty quick, you will lose out, on the big opportunity to get your share of the profits.

If you have been planning on building, you make a mistake to delay another minute. Come in and talk with AGMCO experts. If there are any questions you would like to ask, we will be glad to answer them. As one of the largest greenhouse builders in the country, we advise you to BUILD NOW.

The Art of Buying Greenhouses

Too often is the custom observed of selecting a number of "Greenhouse manufacturers in the same class" and arbitrarily placing the order with the lowest bidder.

If it were possible to find a group of Greenhouse manufacturers identical as to plant, equipment, judgment, experience, zeal for excellence, pride of production, integrity of purpose—if such a manifestly impossible thing were possible, then this practice would appear most reasonable.

But greenhouse manufacturers differ—and the differential in the quality most generally is indicated by the differential in their estimates.

The most expensive manufacturer will insist that by using his product the largest return will achieve on the investment.

On the other hand, the cheapest manufacturer will probably contend that his greenhouse is "just as good."

Sometimes the particular work should be placed without regard to price: Sometimes, but not often the cheapest (which by the way will NOT be "just as good") will suffice for the work in hand and will prove a good investment. In most cases, however, some golden mean between the most expensive and the cheapest will be the wisest choice.

To pick this greenhouse requires nice discrimination, and here is where the Art of Buying Comes In.

But always remember this: The greenhouse must be good enough not only to serve its present purpose, but the future, and must also maintain the prestige of the manufacturer that builds it.

That's Us.

Write for estimates.

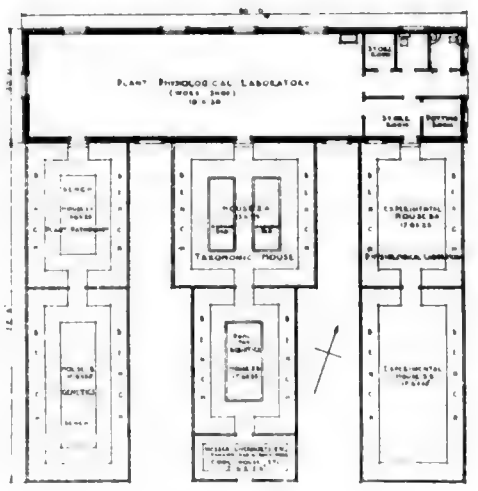
View of the Houses Composing the McGill University Botany Greenhouse Laboratory.

Famous Old Canadian University



Completes Its New Botany Greenhouse Laboratory

McGill University, of Montreal, has recently completed one of the finest greenhouse laboratories in the Western Hemisphere.
In truth, it quite outstrips anything like it, even in England.

For over ten years the Board of Governors has had the project in hand.
To Professor Lloyd is due great credit for the original conception of the idea, and the careful working out of every detail.

Here is an extract from "The McGill News" which we take the liberty of quoting.

"The building consists of four parts, three glass houses and a building of artificial stone, which harmonizes well with the other buildings. This building of a single story 75 feet long and 20 feet wide is in greenhouse parlance the "header house," but in this case it will serve as a laboratory and workshop. Here advanced students will be afforded space for their work, and the equipment will ultimately be especially planned for work in plant physiology, plant pathology and genetics. This equipment will include work benches for wood and metal work and a few tooling machines. As the accompanying plan shows, a small part of the space is set aside as storerooms, a potting room and so forth.

"Extending approximately south from the southern face of the workshop are three glass houses. These are numbered in the plan. Each house is 58 feet 8 inches long and 17 feet 6 inches wide, with the exception of one compartment, 25 feet square. House No. 1 is divided into two compartments, one of which will be devoted to plant pathology, the other to genetics. House 2A is 25 feet square and has a total height of about 20 feet. An increased height for taller plants is obtained by means of two depressed ground beds occupying the middle of the house. A second compartment (House 2B) is furnished with the cement tank for the culture of aquatic plants. Both of these compartments have ordinary side benches. A third small compartment with a narrow sidewalk and a central depressed ground bed will be used in the cultivation of mosses, liverworts and other lowly forms.

"House No. 3, which is divided into two compartments, is intended for experimental work in plant physiology. Here there are only side benches, the middle of each compartment being continuously floored with cement so that tables and apparatus may be arranged in a fashion to suit the exigencies of any particular case.

"The system is heated by steam. This is a departure from the usual method of using hot water. It is confidently believed that steam heating will prove completely adequate to our needs, and has the advantage of permitting a practically complete use of beds below the benches. It permitted also a very material reduction in cost of construction."

To which let us add that the construction is our best type of iron frame and high grade equipment throughout.

AMERICAN LEGION EMBLEMS

This emblem is difficult to show at its true worth in a cut, as the rich and attractive colors can not be reproduced on the printed page. The background is a stiff boxboard heavily gold frosted. Then comes a broad band of blue fringe carrying the words "American Legion" in gold letters. The large, decorated Gold Star in the center is on a background of green dyed lycopodium. You will not need many flowers in any design in which this Emblem of the Legion is used. We offer the Emblem in four sizes, each in its individual cardboard box, as follows:

HOLYOKE, MASS., March 20 1922

Cordley & Hayes
New York, N.Y.

Dear Sirs:

We have been using the Fiber Vases for the past Twenty-One Years, and, perhaps some may doubt it, but we still have one or two vases doing duty at the present time that we purchased twenty-one years ago. That was the time we opened up. Some service, I'll say, for a Fiber Vase. We find they are much more durable than crockery vases, which get more or less abuse in a retail place.

Yours very truly,

GALLIVAN BROTHERS

DJG/LMH

If others can you can

ONLY the test of time can prove the worth of a vase. "Fibrotta" florists' vases bought over 21 years ago are still in use and going strong. Quality and service are vital factors in any product —especially so in your business.

Consider not only the endurance of "Fibrotta" vases but the other qualities which have created their large sales:

(1) "Fibrotta" vases give flowers an air of distinction. They set off the natural beauty of each variety.

(2) "Fibrotta" vases are obtainable not only in the natural polished mahogany-like color—but also if desired may be either green or white enamel.

(3) "Fibrotta" vases are non-conductors of heat and cold. Unlike metal vases they keep water cool. When the flowers are placed in the refrigerator "Fibrotta" vases prevent the water from becoming so cold as to chill the stems.

(4) "Fibrotta" vases are made of seamless fibre. They cannot rust out, sweat or stain woodwork.

(5) Cut flowers placed in "Fibrotta" vases last longer than in metal vases. The rust which inevitably invades metal vases deposits upon the stems of the flowers. These naturally wilt more quickly. Especially is this noticeable when the flowers are shipped out to customers.

"Fibrotta" saucers for flower pots are also important. They are light, not easily broken and cannot mar or discolor woodwork. You can sell these to your customers for their own use at home. Write Cordley & Hayes, 14 Leonard St., New York City, for full information.

McCRAY

REFRIGERATORS for ALL PURPOSES

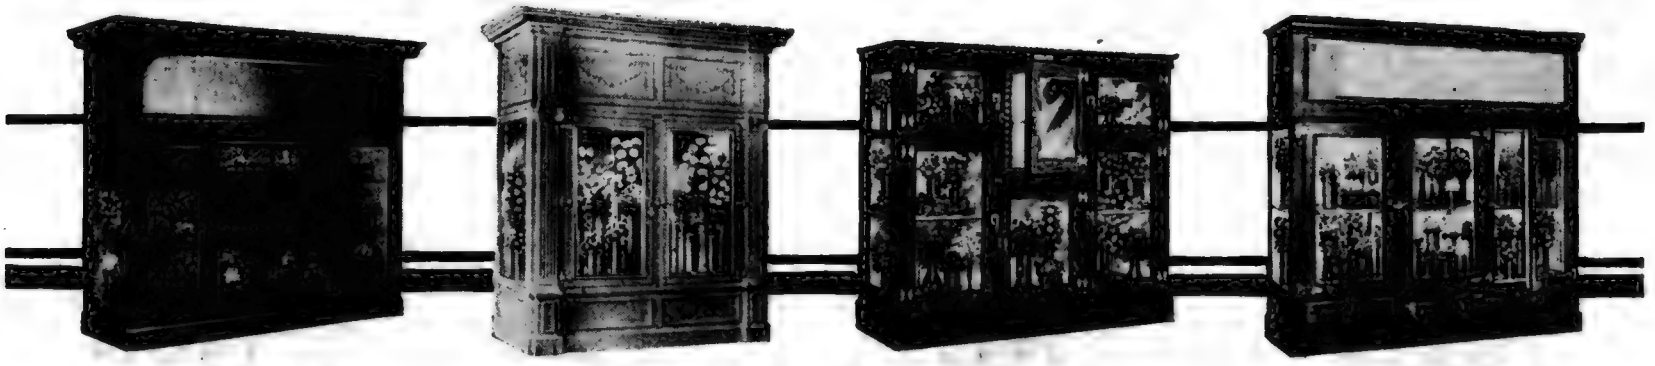
This view of Dards', Inc., at Madison Avenue and 44th Street, New York, shows how the McCray harmonizes with the surroundings of the most exclusive shop.



What florist does not appreciate the importance of preserving his stock in its fresh beauty, not only to prevent loss, but to increase sales? It is doubly significant, therefore, that most of them choose the McCray, that this quality refrigerator is found in so many of the best floral establishments.

The reason for this choice lies in the efficiency of the McCray. For the McCray patented cooling system, forcing a constant circulation of pure, cold air through every compartment, provides thorough refrigeration, and the high quality materials assure lasting service.

Various styles and sizes in stock and special equipment built to order. There is no need to delay installing a McCray; easy payment may be arranged if desired.

VIOLET
Frey's Fragrant

THIS variety is a sport of the variety California. The foliage and color resemble Gov. Herrick. However, Frey's Fragrant is twice as productive as Herrick, producing longer and stronger stems, larger blooms and is fragrant. Frey's Fragrant comes in bloom in October and the last season we had them for Mothers' day, six weeks after all other Violets were out of the market in this vicinity. It does well in any soil that will produce good carnations and we find the best temperature for this variety is from 45° to 50°. Every grower of violets in this vicinity that has seen Frey's Fragrant is growing this variety to the exclusion of all others.

NEPHROLEPIS

We are the largest growers of Nephrolepis Ferns in the country. In fact, we are headquarters for them.

NEPHROLEPIS NORWOOD

The most beautiful form of Nephrolepis to date; graceful, compact and symmetrical, a vigorous, healthy grower. All growers are invited to inspect it at our Norwood Greenhouses. Strong plants.
2¼-inch pots, $2 per dozen, $12 per 100, $100 per 1000.
4-inch pots, $6 per dozen, $45 per 100.

NEPHROLEPIS VERONA

Makes a good plant in all sizes. Much finer frond than any crested sort outside of N. Smithii. The fronds are carried on a heavy, wiry stem. We consider it one of the best of the newer introductions.
2¼-inch pots, $10 per 100, $90 per 1000; 4-inch pots, $40 per 100; 6-inch pots, $12 per dozen, $90 per 100.

All prices quoted in this list are strictly net. SHIPPING INSTRUCTIONS: Give your name, post office, county and state and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier, and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. CORRESPONDENCE: We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. ERRORS: Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. When we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

A·B·C "WATCH US GROW"

Single Early Tulip KEIZERSKROON Grown as a Pot Plant

A. B. C. "Supreme" Quality

From the inception of the American Bulb Company it has been our constant aim to furnish, each season, the HIGHEST GRADE OF BULBS OBTAINABLE, contracts being placed in Europe with growers who are specialists in their respective lines and of known reputation for supplying dependable stock. Furthermore, our up-to-date knowledge of the florist's needs, with personal inspection during the growing and packing season, insures you the pick of the season's crop. Although the size of flowers, their depth and purity of color, can be increased by cultural skill, the number of flowers cannot be increased beyond that which is determined by the bulb itself. It is obvious, therefore, that the best stock, which our "Supreme" quality represents, is cheapest in the end.

Japanese Lily Bulbs

OUR LEADING SPECIALTY

With our personal representation at the source of supply we hold a rominent position in the Lily Bulb market which is well known to the ade, and we shall spare no expense to insure our continuation as aders in this important Florist's line. The various Lily types offered e produced by experienced growers and under high cultivation—par-cular attention being given to grading of the bulbs.

As is well known, the crop of Giganteum and Formosum, season 1921, as far below normal and shortage of same this year, especially in the rger sizes, is even more pronounced. We therefore advise early rchase.

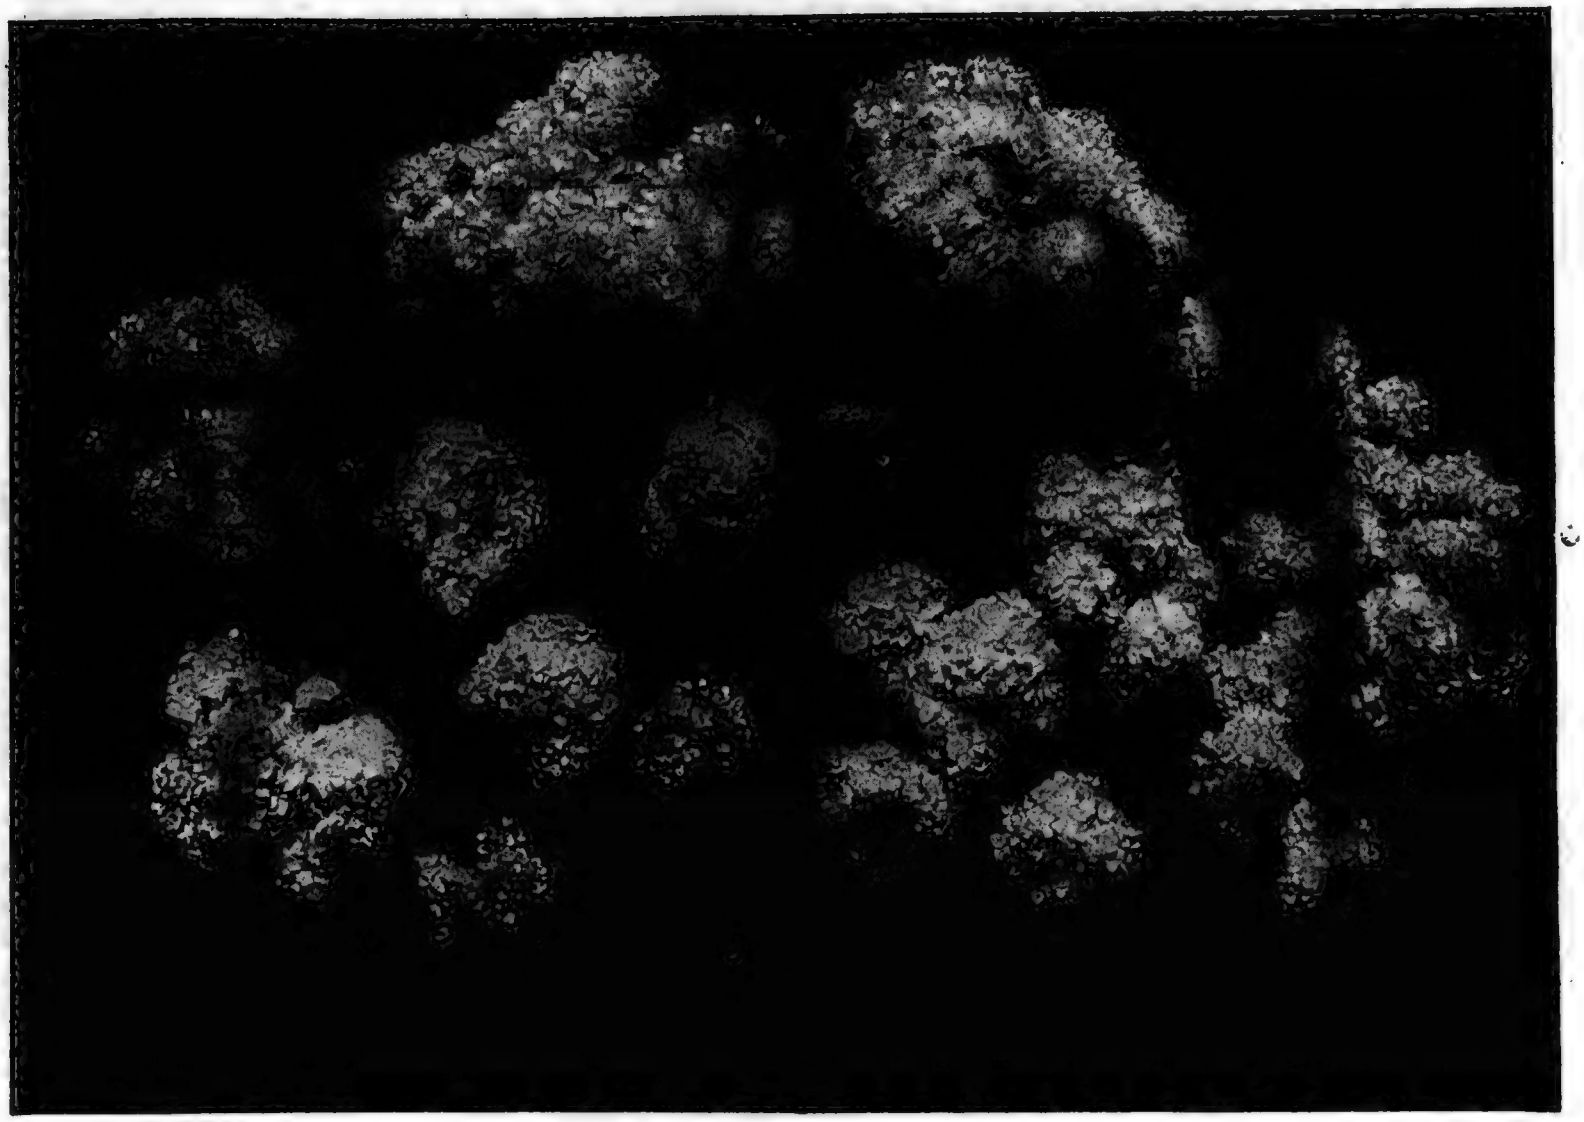
Plant White Carnations

On account of the high price of Paper White Narcissus bulbs and their resultant scarcity this winter, an extra bench or two of white carnations will come in handy. We suggest that you carry along in pots enough carnation plants to replant part of your early mum beds. Pot into 4-inch pots now and set into your coldframes until the early mums are out of the way. It will pay you big.

We have fine plants of Harvester, Matchless, White Enchantress and White Wonder. Any of these varieties will do well handled in this way.

$10.00 per 100, $80.00 per 1000



We also have a few thousand Enchantress Supreme and Benora. Same price as the others.

Remember Them?

—at the Indianapolis Show

There were 12 of those big fellows, some with 140 flowers on them as big as your head. They all came from here. That Cleveland expert, Lars Anderson, grew them.

Our last year's stock was very good. Some claimed, "Not a blind shoot in them," and this year's stock looks just as good if not better. No secret in growing them, just common sense. Your favorite variety by the thousand from 4-inch, 5-inch, 6-inch and 7-inch pots at 25c, 40c, 60c and 75c. Some larger plants from $1.00 to $3.00 each. Get our list, it is the most complete.

Order now and get them shipped while the weather is warm.

SIZING UP THE COMING SEASON

After two years of readjustment, which brought florists varying changes of fortune from the post-war era of so-called prosperity, the trade looks forward to the coming season with appraising eyes. What our estimate is to be depends upon certain business factors, set forth in this article.

WHEN the heat and lethargy of summer are over, and the first cool days of autumn stimulate thoughts regarding the season shortly to open, florists, particularly those in the retail end of the business, like to cast up the balance between the favorable and unfavorable factors which seem likely to affect their profits during the coming months, so that they may govern themselves in accordance with their conclusions in laying in supplies and making other preparations for the business to come. Of course, the greenhouse man is compelled to make his forecast several months sooner, but he has, as a compensation, the advantage of being less immediately affected by changes in business conditions; their effect on him is usually a lap behind their influence on the members of the trade who deal directly with the public.

In sizing up the season which is now beginning, the florist finds conditions more favorable than it seemed they would be when one looked ahead several months ago. Perhaps the reason is that the summer has been so unfavorable a time, because of the disturbances of business by strikes, that the reaction carries a stimulus to trade in general.

Stimulating Influences.

Certainly, the coal mines, after a period of idleness of nearly half a year, must produce at top speed to meet the requirements of the public for the winter at hand. In consequence, the railroads which are the fuel carriers will be correspondingly busy. The steel companies and the other industrial establishments which curtailed activity when coal was scarce will begin to make up for lost time when fuel is to be had in ample supply.

The strike of the railroad shop men has had a similar influence. The repair shops must now operate day and night. The railroad equipment companies have booked orders which assure them unparalleled prosperity. The railroads, to meet the unusual demand upon them, are compelled to add equipment even more rapidly than they had planned to do in order to make up for neglect during the war and post-war period. The stimulation which results is far-reaching.

Other lesser fields of activity are stirred to an unusual degree by the operation of the same circumstances. One might mention as an instance the building trade, which has languished for one reason or another, either because of internal disorder or external disturbance, for several years, and a lowering of prices for some commodities, chiefly labor, is expected to spur activity in this trade.

Another influence which is powerful is the size of the crops. Most of the grains are expected to reach figures higher than recent averages, and the farmer will make money despite the low prices which he is still getting for his products. He is handicapped by the absence of foreign markets, since our former customers of agricultural products abroad either haven't money to spend or won't spend it. In passing, it should be noted that this same reason will operate as a dampener on any notable boom in industry. Our manufacturers have a considerable demand at home, but the requirements which make for a high degree of prosperity are those which come, in addition, from abroad. Until the finances and the politics of Europe are on a more stable basis and international trade is on a more even keel, our export business will not attain great proportions, and so long as the dollar is at a premium in almost all foreign markets, they will be inclined to trade with one another rather than with us.

Nevertheless, to revert to the farmer, his purchasing power is already making itself felt. The agricultural machinery manufacturers are booking orders fast. The big mail order houses, which a year ago were in the depths of depression, report decided increases from month to month. After the crops are marketed, it is probable that the buying ability of the farmer will be even more markedly demonstrated. This fact appeals most strongly to the trade in the central west, whose prosperity shines or dims in reflection from that of the farmer's.

Buying Power.

When one is talking about buying power, one should not overlook the fact that the major portion of the world's gold is now in this country. Further than that, instead of there being large foreign investments in American enterprises, as there were before the war, the shoe is now on the other foot. Americans have been seeking to employ their accumulations of capital by investments, some of them on an extensive scale, abroad. Though we are obtaining little income yet from those investments, the dividends which formerly went out of the country are most of them now staying here. In this connection, it might here be noted that industrial companies which cut down or passed altogether their dividends during the last two or three years are now resuming them. Even the railroad companies show likelihood of restoring dividends passed or curtailed in the last few years. This fact is of especial importance to florists, since it has long been a matter of note that more flowers were sold to the class of people whose income came from such dividends than any other class. Two years ago florists complained that customers were absent from their shops because dividends were passed. Now the trade is welcoming them back, and others are coming.

Despite these favorable factors, however, it should be noted that the incomes of many persons have been curtailed in the readjustment period, and that purchases of flowers, as of other commodities, are not to be this season on the lavish scale of a couple of seasons past. It is worthy of remark that the most prosperous mercantile establishments at present are the 5 and 10-cent stores. All of the famous chains are undertaking expansion at this time, and all report marked increases in their sales. Save in a few industries, workers are not paid on the scale that they were a year and two years ago, and purchases are restricted accordingly.

Gasoline or Flowers.

Though it does not always follow that buyers of automobiles are buyers of flowers, yet it has become more or less of a byword that a family which could afford money for gasoline could afford money for flowers. If this be true, then florists may look forward to a good season, for the motor car manufacturers have never had so prosperous a year as 1922. Nearly all the automobile manufacturers report record sales and large earnings despite the cuts in the prices of cars. Nor is the boom over. The orders for closed cars for this winter and those placed for 1923 models of automobiles already on display have accumulated so rapidly that expansions are planned in a number of motor car factories. Indeed, Henry Ford is the only one whose plans tend in the opposite direction—and Henry has made more Fords so far this year than he has ever made in twelve months before.

Business Speeding Up.

The acceleration in business already noted in various lines has led to a demand for workers. The restrictions on immigration have curtailed the entry into this country of men desired for positions of unskilled labor. The consequence is a scarcity, if not a shortage. Certain trades have been able to hold up their wage scale despite the readjustment in other lines, and other trades which underwent reductions in their pay have regained part because of the competition between industries for their labor. The newspapers have broadcasted the increase of twenty per cent to the workers in steel mills. Affecting fully as many, though not so widely published, was an increase, also of twenty per cent, in the textile industries.

The consequence of these increases is not only a greater buying power on the part of the persons who receive them, but, it must be remembered, an increase in costs. The florist has had notice from dealers in a number of lines that prices are now at their lowest and that new supplies, as the season advances, are likely to cost more. It would pay, therefore, to calculate on a good season's business and stock up on staple supplies early, in anticipation of a rising rather than a falling market.

Must Go After Money.

The florist, though the outlook is favorable, will not have an easy time this season, because the public is looking to see where it can get the most for its money, though costs have an upward trend. The grower's costs are as high or nearly as high as they were a year ago. Despite all the economies of operation which he can institute, he must get as much for his flowers as he got last season. If the retailer is to pay the same figures that he gave for flowers a year ago, he must look for other means of reducing his prices to the customer. Economy of operation and curtailment of overhead are two likely places for him to begin his work. Another means for meeting the situation is that which many florists tried with success a year ago, creating a greater demand and widening the market by means of advertising. A questionnaire sent out since the close of last season revealed the fact that more than half of those who responded had enjoyed an increase in business over the preceding year. More than half of such florists reported that the reason for the better showing was the more extensive use of advertising. By a program of constant reminders to the public, present patrons can be made to buy flowers oftener, and so make up for their curtailment of the amount spent on each occasion, and persons who bought few flowers or none can be made good customers. Though Henry Ford may have found that the country was near the saturation point with regard to his type of automobile, no one believes that the saturation point has been anywhere near reached with regard to flowers.

WHAT ABOUT THIS?

A German contemporary, the Verbandszeitung Deutscher Blumengeschaftsinhaber, reports in a recent issue that the firm of Max Schling, of New York, has donated a gold and a silver medal as prizes for a flower show soon to be held in Berlin, and that various Americans have donated sums of money, as follows:

S. A. Anderson, Buffalo	1,400 marks
Eric Buchholz, Muncie, Ind.	3,000 marks
Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis	1,595 marks
Albert Pochelon, Detroit	5,726 marks
M. Bloy, Detroit	4,295 marks

The present value of a mark is a little less than seven-tenths of a cent, but there is no telling what anyone paid for them.

LAWN PLANTING

AUTUMN LAWN BUILDING.

Timely Advice.

The springtime is commonly considered to be seedtime, but florists who do home planting should remember that in the case of lawns better results are often obtained by seeding at some other season. Except, perhaps, in the northern tier of states and in New England, early autumn seeding is more satisfactory than spring seeding. South of the latitude of New York, spring seeding should rarely if ever be practiced. Young grass does not stool well in spring and summer and is not sufficiently aggressive to combat crab grass and other summer annual weeds. In the area south of this and north of the Potomac and Ohio rivers the time is early in September. The reseeding of an old lawn should be done at the same season as new seeding.

Preparing Ground.

A suitable soil is of first importance, especially where the climate is not particularly favorable to the formation of good turf, and most soils can be improved by treatment such as drainage, manuring, fertilizing and liming. A deep, loamy soil is easily prepared, as it already has the right texture, but it may need fertilizing with barnyard manure or bone meal in applications of twenty pounds to 1,000 square feet. Stiff clays need both sand and vegetable matter before they are ready to support a good turf, and there is little danger of overdoing the use of either of them. A layer of sand one inch thick, worked into the clay, will produce a permanent improvement in texture. Conversely, clay may be used to improve light, sandy soils. Decayed vegetable matter lightens the texture of clay soils, increases their water-holding capacity and improves their drainage; it also improves sandy soils and makes them more retentive of moisture. About one-half ton to 1,000 square feet ordinarily is sufficient.

When white clover and blue grass do not grow well, it is probable that lime is needed. One hundred pounds of air-slaked lime to 1,000 square feet of lawn, well worked in before the seed is planted, is a satisfactory application in most cases. It is not recommended as a top-dressing for turf and should not be used for bent grasses or fescues unless the soil is acid. The soil should be thoroughly prepared for planting several weeks before the seeding takes place, in order that there may be time for it to settle and for weed seeds to germinate.

Kentucky blue grass is the most satisfactory for lawns in the northern states, but best results are obtained when it is used in a mixture with other grasses. A mixture containing seventeen parts blue grass, four parts of recleaned redtop, three parts perennial rye grass and one part of white clover has been found to be as good as any.

Quantity of Seed Used.

At least two pounds of this mixture should be used on 1,000 square feet of soil. The rye grass and redtop grow quickly and form a nurse crop for the slower-growing blue grass and white clover. After the lawn has been cut for a time it will consist almost entirely of blue grass and clover.

Patch lawns may be repaired, but when the turf is poor it usually pays better to remake the lawn entirely. The areas to be improved should be scratched up with a steel rake and dressed with a mixture of good loam or compost, with which the seed is mixed.

Good turf requires frequent clipping, say twice a week, during the season of rapid growth, and it is advisable to remove the cut grass. In dry periods it is impossible to keep lawns in good shape without watering, and an occasional thorough soaking is better than frequent light wettings.

It is difficult to make a good lawn in shady places, but the grasses in the recommended mixture can be encouraged to grow better in the shade by liberal watering, the use of extra quantities of fertilizer and possibly lime. The best available grass for shady places is red fescue of the variety known as Chewing's fescue. It requires the same treatment as the mixture, except that no lime should be used.

SPRINGFIELD, O.

Florists' Club Holds Show

The Springfield Florists' and Growers' Club recently staged an individual trial bed contest for the growers of Springfield and vicinity. Entries were made under five classes: Roses, geraniums, dahlias, cannas and miscellaneous.

The tour of inspection and judging of the various trial beds was held Thursday afternoon, September 7. After the local beds were judged, the party motored to Urbana, where a miscellaneous display, entered by J. G. Botkin & Sons, was judged. Dinner was served at 6 p. m. in the display room of the J. G. Botkin & Sons greenhouses. After this the regular meeting of the club was held.

President Fred Binnig announced the awards made by the judges, Frank E. Good, J. A. Doyle and Harold McGregor, as follows: Reeser Plant Co., Springfield, silver cup for display of cannas; Good & Reese Co., Springfield, silver cup for display of dahlias; Highland Floral Co., Springfield, silver cup for display of roses; Clarence Ustler, Springfield, silver cup for display of geraniums; J. G. Botkin & Sons, Urbana, silver cup for miscellaneous display.

The prize-winning canna bed of the Reeser Plant Co. is sixty feet square. The center is of King Humbert cannas, bordered with dusty miller. There are four beds in the corners, each composed of different varieties of coleus. The entire bed is bordered with Mrs. Alfred Conard cannas, considered the most beautiful pink grown.

There were several interesting addresses delivered at the meeting. Arthur J. Todd thanked the Botkin family on behalf of the club for the cordial entertainment. Among those who spoke were: George H. Mellen, J. G. Botkin, Charles Schmidt, Martin Guldemond, Harold McGregor and Edward Kreigbaum. Mr. Botkin spoke especially of his observations at the national convention of the S. A. F. held at Kansas City.

The florists hope to arrange to have the contest beds next year in the Big Four park, where they can be admired by the general public and create more general interest. This matter will be taken up later with the city and Big Four officials.

Those in the Springfield party were: Frank E. Good, Harold McGregor, John Doyle, Fred Binnig, George H. Mellen, Clifford Baden, Martin Guldemond, John Neunhausen, Lewis Campbell, Edward Kreigbaum, J. W. Summers, Charles Schmidt, C. A. Schaefer, J. F. Businger, Arthur J. Todd, Judge George W. Tehan, Frank Goe, Morgan Swope, Frank Cadwallader, Leo Ridge, William Roeth, William Winkie, Clarence Ustler, John Phares, William Toews, George Leedle, Charles Leedle, Harry Elwell and Mr. and Mrs. William Artman, of Piqua, O.

Ten florists from Urbana were also present at the dinner and meeting.

HARTFORD FLOWER SHOW.

Sets New Record.

At the old state house, Hartford, Conn., September 14 and 15, the Connecticut Horticultural Society held its annual flower show, in coöperation with the Hartford Florists' Club. The old state house was a glory of color and a better place to hold such an affair would be hard to find. Its snow-white walls and large pillars helped to show the beauty of the flowers. It was estimated that 15,000 viewed the exhibits in two days.

The long walk from Main street was lined with hundreds of potted begonias and cockscombs, furnished by the park department, with many evergreens and other plants in tubs supplied by the W. W. Hunt Co., and throngs could be seen gazing at the wonderful effect all through the two days.

Coombs had a large made-up basket of Schwaben gladioli, with pink roses and a large bridal bouquet. The display was banked with ferns and palms.

George Lane's baskets were a riot of color. Harvard gladioli and asters were prettily arranged with specimen ferns in fancy jardinieres on marble stands. There was also a large vase of Golden Glow chrysanthemums. Black velvet served as a background.

George McClunie had several vases of new large seedling gladioli banked by large ferns. This showed good arrangement.

J. Albert Brodrib showed several vases of gladioli. There were Golden Glow chrysanthemums in fancy vases and jardinieres. Several canary birds perched and sang in their fancy cages.

Kenneth Mackay exhibited a fancy crib, with a baby doll nestling among daintily colored blankets; there were several nicely made-up children's fancy bouquets and children's comfort boxes in fancy colors.

C. Louis Alling was awarded $10 for his splendid seedling dahlias.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., exhibited several vases of roses, which were an added attraction. The new rose, Commonwealth, showed in all its glory here, and a rose of better color, substance and length of stem would be hard to find. This new rose will be disseminated in 1923; it was awarded a first-class certificate. A large truckload of palms and cibotium ferns was furnished by this firm. This added a great deal to the decorative effect of the building.

Cadwell & Jones had several vases of gladioli, a handsome made-up basket of dahlias and a good-sized collection of asters, cosmos, zinnias and other flowers, all neatly arranged. A handsome photographic view of a formal garden, nicely framed, on an easel, drew the attention of the crowds at the entrance.

Spear & McManus exhibited a beautiful made-up window basket of fine, large zinnias and marigolds and a large vase of pink gladioli. There were roses nicely arranged, and palms and large ferns.

All the florists were well pleased. The advertising feature of this show will not soon be forgotten by them, and they are anxious to make this an annual event.

Awards Made.

Awards were made in the professional classes as follows:

Twelve varieties of dahlias—William B. Sweeney, Willimantic, first; C. L. Alling, New Haven, second.
Collection of dahlias—William B. Sweeney.
Twelve varieties of cactus dahlias—Alfred A. Doty.
Twelve varieties hybrid cactus—Alfred A. Doty.
Twelve varieties show dahlias—Alfred A. Doty.
Decorative dahlias—Alfred A. Doty.
Seedling dahlias—Nathaniel Slocombe, Farmington.
Individual seedling dahlia—Nathaniel Slocombe.
Largest dahlia bloom—Alfed A. Doty.
Vase asters—Niel Nelson.
Collection of gladioli—East Hartford Gladiolus Co.
Annuals—Niel Nelson.
Perennials—C. H. Minge, Rocky Hill.
Exhibit of roses—Niel Nelson.
Ornamental group of potted plants—Francis Roulier, Hartford.
Evergreen plants—W. W. Hunt & Co.
Basket of flowers—Niel Nelson.

DAHLIA SHOW AT NEWARK.

To Make It Annual.

The first Greater Newark dahlia show, which opened at Newark, N. J., Wednesday, September 13, in the Globe Indemnity building, closed September 16. It is intended to make this show an annual affair. At this first show an excellent exhibition of blooms and plants was displayed in a most attractive manner. Background and settings were made with a view to setting off the particular displays in front of them. In one instance the background was an altar, the object being to show how flowers can be used in a church. Each day of the exhibit there were flowers of a different color, thus giving a variety of altar effects. One of the displays illustrated a decoration for a wedding. Though this exhibit was staged in the amateurs' room, it was professional, being shown by R. G. Wilson, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Charles A. Searle, of Westfield, N. J., featured a new dahlia, the Mindowaskin, against a purple velvet background. The blooms are of apricot shade, with a pink reverse to the petals. The flowers were on 4-foot stems. Other varieties shown in this exhibit were the Hollywood, a yellow bloom, and the Shackamaxon. Another bloom shown was the Eleanor Augusta, which has velvet-like petals, edged with cream and with silver on the reverse side. Mr. Searle's exhibit contained many of the Judge Marean collection.

The Elizabeth Nursery Co., Elizabeth, N. J., one of the professional exhibitors, had an exhibit consisting of a garden house flanked by shrubbery and flowers.

One of the features of the exhibit of Stewart & Fisher, of Trenton, N. J., was the Amun Ra, named for a sun god. These blooms are colored red and gold, like autumn leaves. This variety was originated by Mrs. Jessie L. Seal, of San Francisco. Jersey's Pride and Jersey's Queen, originated by W. H. Waite, of Rumson, N. J., and the A. T. Stewart, a maroon cactus type, also featured this exhibit.

Prize-Winners.

This show was well attended and admittedly a success. There were many amateurs taking part and many professionals. Among the professional winners were the following:

100 short-stemmed varieties, at least four types—W. W. Kennedy & Sons, Red Bank, N. J.; first; A. F. Clark, Netcong, N. J., second.
Fifty short-stemmed varieties, at least four types—Stewart & Fisher, Trenton, first; Mrs. C. Gordon, Hilton, N. J., second.
Decorative and hybrid dahlias—A. F. Clark.
Cactus or hybrid cactus dahlias—A. F. Clark.
Show or hybrid show dahlias—A. F. Clark.
Peony or hybrid peony dahlias—A. F. Clark.
General display, fifty square feet—W. W. Kennedy & Sons.
General display, 100 square feet—Stewart & Fisher.
General display, more than 100 square feet—Dietz & Trivett, New York.
Rock garden exhibit—Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.
Orchid plants in flower, for arrangement—Julius Roehrs Co.
Display of gladioli—Walter H. Rice, Rumson, N. J.
L. E. Doolittle dahlia introduction—Stewart & Fisher.
Exhibit of roses—Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., first; Washington Florists, Newark, second.

Granville Gude.

Gladiolus exhibit—Walter H. Rice, Rumson, N. J.
Exhibit by woman grower—Miss Frieda Fisher, Newark, first; Mrs. Catherine Gordon, Newark, second.
Bulb display—J. J. Wilson Co., Newark.
Delphiniums—William C. Deckman, Madison, N. J., honorable mention.

The youngest exhibitor and prize-winner at the show was Miss Catherine Sachs. She is but 5½ years old, but she won first place for the best arrangement of flowers without aid from elders. Her father, Fred Sachs, was secretary and manager of the show.

The flower department of Hohne & Co., Newark, exhibited a display of flowers suitable for a wedding.

A considerable number of gardeners were in attendance, and many of them had distinctly meritorious exhibits. Emil Panshka, gardener for C. A. Apgar, West Orange, N. J., won first place for three types and twenty-five varieties of dahlias. Mr. Griffiths, gardener for the Elkus estate, Newark, took first price for decorative dahlias, and Fred Klinger, gardener for the Dreiber estate, Lawrence, N. Y., took second prize. Gardener Panshka won first in the class for twelve blooms of the peony type. George Nasson, gardener for Frederick Frelinghuysen, took first place for the most meritorious dahlia exhibit by a private gardener. John Worhun, gardener for Mrs. A. B. Jenkins, of West Orange, N. J., won first prize for his gladiolus exhibit.

In charge of the judging for this show was Dr. Marshall A. Howe, curator of the Botanical Gardens, New York. Dr. Howe was assisted by J. Otto Thilow, of H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; W. A. Waite, of Rumson; William Reed, of Orange; Alex Robinson, of Montclair; John White, of Elizabeth; William Pannaski, of West Orange, and James Shaw, of Montclair.

CHAMPION WITH OARS.

You read, of course, in last week's Review "Gude Wins Fame with Oar," and on this page you see the likeness of the 19-year-old son of William F. Gude who has startled the rowing world with his feats. They were described briefly last week. The Washington Times, in a Sunday edition, captioned his 4-column portrait thus: "They All Say He'll Win Next World Rowing Title," and devoted a full column to description of his meteoric career, which was marked by his winning three championships in one day six weeks after he had first occupied a sculler's seat.

Many in the trade know Granville Gude. Already he has started his career as a florist, as a member of the staff of Gude Bros. Co., at Washington, D. C., and he has attended many conventions. He is a life member of the S. A. F.

ATLANTA, GA.

Weinstock's Flower Shop is installing a Lipman ice machine and has added a new Dodge truck to the delivery department.

W. O. Coursey has completed his new plant house, at Mayson and Turner road. His present house is 18x100.

Stallings' Flower Shop has been displaying California mums for the last week. They have caused considerable comment and many admirers have enjoyed the first of the season's arrivals.

At the "Made in Atlanta" exhibit, Dahl's will have a booth devoted to the firm's wirework. Various forms will be made up during the week.

John Wolf, well known florist of Savannah, was a recent visitor to Atlanta.

E. G. Carswell and Mrs. Carswell, of the Thomas C. Joy forces, have been called to Columbus, Miss., their former home, due to the death of Mrs. Carswell's mother.

Tampa, Fla.—The Knull Floral Co. is erecting two more houses 25x150 feet, with 7-foot gutters, 4x4 cypress posts, 1-inch iron purlin posts and continuous ventilators, using Moninger material and ventilating machines. They purchased this lot of material from the Westmoreland Floral Gardens, of Lakeland, Fla., they having shipped it from Oklahoma two years ago. At that time the Knull concern purchased material and erected one house; now they have bought the balance, as the Westmoreland people are giving up the growing end of the business and will, in the future, maintain only the retail place in town. Lakeland is situated thirty-one miles east of Tampa and is reached by direct trains and hourly bus service.

GARDENERS AT BOSTON

GARDENERS IN CONVENTION.

Large Attendance at Boston.

The annual convention of the National Association of Gardeners opened promptly at 2 p. m. September 12, at Horticultural hall, Boston, with a large attendance, including many ladies. Visitors from a distance were unusually numerous. The hall was tastefully decorated with large palms from the Harold A. Ryan Co. On the platform were many choice orchids from Donald McKenzie, of the E. B. Dane estate, Chestnut Hill. In the center was a magnificent specimen dipladenia, eight feet high and profusely flowered, from George F. Stewart, of the Lyman estate, Waltham; this was awarded a special silver medal by the committee on exhibits. Along the sides of the hall were splendid displays of dahlias from the Sunbeam Farm, at Beach Bluff, and from Thomas J. Murphy, of Peabody, while the Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., of Boston, filled two alcoves with choice dahlias and gladioli.

William N. Craig, general chairman of the local committees, presided at the opening session and welcomed the visitors. He introduced Mark E. Sullivan, who welcomed the members to the city on behalf of Mayor Curley; the latter was unable to attend on account of the primary election contest. Mr. Sullivan made a most eloquent address and was warmly applauded.

Addresses Valuable.

Robert Cameron, president of the National Association of Gardeners, was most heartily greeted when he arose to deliver his presidential address, in which he brought out many new and interesting points. He was followed by A. W. Gilbert, commissioner of agriculture for Massachusetts, who, in the course of a splendid address, emphasized the necessity of increased food production in New England, owing to the increased freight rates, if industrial New England would successfully compete with the great west. Mr. Gilbert said he had studied the Mendelian theory deeply and had had much correspondence with Hugo de Vries, Burbank and other noted hybridists.

Albert C. Burrage, the next speaker, spoke of the work being done by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and particularly dwelt on the value of its library, the finest of its kind in the world. He pleaded strongly for the preservation and perpetuation of the native flora. Miss Marian R. Case, of Weston, spoke on the training of boys in horticulture, arboriculture and entomology at Hillcrest Gardens, and read one or two short papers from the boys, giving their impressions and observations on knowledge gained there, which would fit them later to take the new professional gardening course at the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

At the close of the opening session, refreshments were served by the ladies' reception committee, in the small exhibition hall. The committee, which did splendid work, consisted of Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, chairman; Mrs. W. N. Craig, Mrs. Duncan Finlayson, Mrs. A. K. Rogers, Mrs. George F. Stewart and Mrs. William Anderson. In the evening Edward I. Farrington gave an illustrated lecture on the Arnold Arboretum before a large and attentive audience. Over fifty ladies were entertained the same evening at a play in the St. James theater.

Election of Officers.

At the morning session September 13 there was an excellent attendance. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved. The membership is now 1,100 and there are assets of over $6,000 in the treasury. The sum of $1,000 was voted as an honorarium to Secretary Ebel and it was further voted to pay him a salary hereafter of $3,000, this to include various office and other incidentals. John Barnet, superintendent on the J. D. Lyon estate, Sewickley, Pa., was unanimously elected president for the ensuing year. There was a close contest for vice-president between David F. Francis, of Cleveland, and William Gray, of Newport, the former winning by the small margin of six votes. M. C. Ebel was reëlected secretary, and Montague Free, of Brooklyn, treasurer. Trustees elected were Thomas W. Hood, Arthur Smith and D. L. McIntosh, from New Jersey; Robert Cameron, from Massachusetts, and Andrew J. Dorward, of Newport, from Rhode Island.

At the afternoon session a change in the by-laws, relative to the reserve fund, was adopted, by which hereafter ten per cent of all annual dues, as well as all life membership fees, will be placed in the reserve fund. A set of by-laws for the governing of local branches was also unanimously adopted after some discussion.

There was considerable discussion over the proposed 2-year college course for professional gardeners at the Massachusetts Agricultural College under the joint auspices of the National Association of Gardeners and the college, which will insure both theoretical and practical training. The project was heartily endorsed by the convention.

W. N. Craig referred to quarantine 37 and said he was pleased to note that President Cameron, who spoke strongly in favor of the quarantine at New York in 1921, had roundly condemned it in his presidential message. Mr. Craig condemned the quarantine as arbitrary and unjust as it applied to noncommercial growers, and he said the F. H. B., which was appointed to protect the country from injurious insect pests and diseases, was functioning as a tariff board. D. L. McIntosh, Robert Cameron and others took part in the discussion and it was unanimously voted to demand a just modification of quarantine 37, so that amateurs could import, without bonds, rare and desirable plants for the beautification of their gardens.

W. N. Craig, H. E. Downer and John Barnet read resolutions of sympathy to be forwarded to the families of members deceased since the last convention. Suitable resolutions were also adopted thanking the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, local committees, exhibitors, estate owners and others for courtesies extended during the convention.

Annual Banquet a Success.

The annual banquet of the association was held at the Hotel Brunswick on the evening of September 13, with an attendance of more than 150. The tables were beautifully decorated and an efficient orchestra rendered numerous selections during the evening. The baritone selections of Joseph Ecker and soprano solos of Mrs. John Tonkin, of Chestnut Hill, Pa., were also enthusiastically encored.

W. N. Craig acted as presiding officer and introduced Judge Charles W. Hoitt as toastmaster. The judge in this capacity is inimitable and kept the company in a continuous roar by his many humorous sallies. Addresses were made by President Robert Cameron; the newly elected president, John Barnet, of Sewickley, Pa.; William Munro, of San Mateo, Cal.; J. H. Troy, New Rochelle, N. Y.; M. C. Ebel, New York; William Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa.; E. I. Farrington, Boston; Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass.; James Stuart, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Thomas W. Head, Red Bank, N. J.; C. M. Wagner, Baltimore; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; Joseph Manda, West Orange, N. J.; James Wheeler, Natick, and David L. McIntosh, Alpine, N. J.

The last-named gentleman presented W. N. Craig with a handsome gold watch, chain and pendant from local gardeners as a token of esteem for valuable services rendered on behalf of the professional gardeners. The presentation was accompanied by cheers and the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." W. N. Craig suitably responded and said that he had been a professional gardener for over thirty-two years in America and that, while he would soon leave the gardeners' ranks, he would always work faithfully as an associate member.

The ladies attending the convention were entertained at lunch at the Brunswick September 13 and were later taken to the fashion show at the Copley-Plaza hotel. All were supplied with handsome corsage bouquets for the banquet by Penn's, Carbone's, the Houghton-Gorney Co. and the Beacon Florist, of Boston.

Tours on Third Day.

On the third morning of the convention a large fleet of automobiles left the Brunswick hotel at 9 a. m., going by way of Revere Beach, Lynn Beach and Salem to the north shore residential section of Massachusetts. The first stop made was at Mrs. H. C. Frick's, Prides Crossing, where the spacious lawns, shrubberies and rock gardens were admired. Next came Rockmarge, the charming estate of William H. Moore, where the many acres of velvety lawns, splendid specimen trees, flower gardens, rockeries and other features, with the glorious ocean views, appealed irresistibly. From Prides Crossing the party went to Albert C. Burrage's estate, Orchidvale, at Beverly Farms, where the extensive and valuable collection of orchids, the greatest amateur collection in America, was inspected. Here were special houses filled with luxuriant odontoglossums, cymbidiums, cattleyas, dendrobiums, phalænopsis, cypripediums, odontiodas, oncidiums, vandas and others. The long corridor show house contained a wealth of orchids in flower, even though this is not a good season for orchid blooms. A generous lunch was served here. Mrs. Gardner M. Lane's beautiful estate at Manchester was next seen. A lovely flower garden, beautiful lawns and wonderful ocean scenery were to be seen here.

Leaving Manchester, the party went, via picturesque Magnolia and Gloucester, to Castle Hill Farm, Ipswich, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Crane, Jr. On this beautiful 2,500-acre estate are many attractive horticultural features, including a beautiful rose garden smothered in bloom, an extensive and charmingly planted Italian garden, a fine maze, a swimming pool, a vegetable garden, greenhouses, terraces and great sweeps of verdant lawns many acres in area, with miles of paths and driveways. The party, which numbered 220, gathered on the shore and enjoyed a real New England clambake furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Crane, including clams, lobsters, chickens and all the "fixin's." Everything but the sweet potatoes came from some part of Castle Hill Farm. There are five miles of rolling dunes of white sand along the boundaries of this beautiful and splendidly kept estate, tended by Robert Cameron and a force of sixty men. A hearty vote of thanks was given Mr. and Mrs. Crane before the party reluctantly reëntered their automobiles.

At Topsfield and Wenham.

The next calling place was Thomas E. Procter's, Topsfield, where James Marlborough is the presiding horticultural genius. The extensive glass range here contained some wonderful specimen plants. Several houses were filled with magnificent plants of the large-flowered race of winter-flowering begonias, of which there are forty-five varieties here. Many were already well in flower. A house of grand standards of fuchsias smothered in bloom; another of heliotropes; still more with cypripediums, streptocarpus, ixoras, allamandas, francisceas, chrysanthemums, roses, carnations, buddleias, camellias, ericas, genistas, eucharis, cyclamens and many others, all beautifully grown, made many of the visitors gasp with admiration. The great rock gardens and shrubberies had to be hastily viewed, as time was passing rapidly. As if a clambake were insufficient, Mr. Procter provided a substantial lunch of ice cream, sherbets, cake, cool drinks, cigars, etc.

The last stopping place of the day was Cedar Acres, Wenham, where B. Hammond Tracy has over fifty acres of dahlias and gladioli, a veritable sheet of bloom. Darkness had fallen before Wenham was reached and the fields could not be inspected. However, in the beautiful show and salesroom Mrs. Tracy had a most artistic arrangement of gladioli and dahlias. The flowers and receptacles of every kind were a whole show in themselves. Just as the entire company had assembled, the electric lights went out, but candles were speedily called into requisition and the power came on again before the bountiful collation provided was served. Hearty votes of thanks were given Mr. and Mrs. Tracy before the company left for a 30-mile ride over the Newburyport turnpike for Boston, which was reached about 10 o'clock.

At the Agassiz Museum.

On the last day, September 15, Harvard College was visited and the world-famous Ware collection of glass flowers in the Agassiz museum was inspected. There are specimens here illustrating 160 families of flowering plants, 540 genera and 803 species. There are more than 3,200 analytical magnified details. All the models were made by Rudolph Blackka and his son. From Cambridge the party was taken to historic Lexington and Concord, where "the shot heard round the world" was fired, and from there via Wayland, Sudbury and Weston to Wellesley, the first stop being at the Henry Hunnewell estate, which covers 650 acres. There are no formal gardens here, but beautiful sweeps of lawns, natural plantings and lovely vistas over woodland and lake, with backgrounds of pine-clad hills, make the location a most enchanting one. The rose garden was a revelation to everyone; visitors from Newport, New Jersey and elsewhere were amazed at the luxuriance of the plants, the wealth of bloom and the entire absence of mildew and black spot. Mrs. Hunnewell takes a great delight in this garden and has every reason to be proud of it. The flower and vegetable gardens and part of the many new, rare and beautiful evergreen and deciduous trees and shrubs, had to be all too hastily scrutinized. Mr. and Mrs. Hunnewell entertained the conventionists at a most generous collation served on the lawns in front of their residence. No more charming spot could have been selected. D. L. McIntosh voted the feelings of everyone in thanking Mr. and Mrs. Hunnewell and Superintendent John G. Duguid for their generous hospitality.

The Walter Hunnewell estate was the other calling place in Wellesley. The great collection of seedling taxus and many seedling evergreens and deciduous shrubs were looked over all too hurriedly. Time would permit but a scant inspection of the hosts of wonderful specimen trees, rhododendrons, evergreen hedges and other features of this notable estate. The magnificent topiary garden, situated on a semicircular sloping bank above beautiful Lake Waban, with Wellesley College on the opposite shores, will live long in the memories of many, and many regrets were expressed that Mr. Hatfield, the superintendent, could not have had the party for half a day instead of a scant hour.

From Wellesley the party rode through Needham and Dedham and drove to Franklin park, 527 acres in extent; the Arnold Arboretum, 270 acres in area; Faulkner Farm, the residence of E. D. Brandegee, the estates of Mrs. O. G. Weld, Prof. C. S. Sargent and Larz Anderson. At the latter estate the visitors inspected the Italian and Japanese gardens and were entertained at lunch. Thanks were tendered

SERVICE AT SIOUX CITY.

Success Greets Rennison.

A 12-acre tract of land, upon a part of which is erected a greenhouse range consisting of 85,000 square feet of glass, at Sioux City, Ia., and 225 agents distributed throughout the states of Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Minnesota, form the equipment with which the J. C. Rennison Co., Sioux City, Ia., serves the flower-buying public.

For more than forty years this business has been in the building. It was started in 1881 by J. C. Rennison. Mr. Rennison built his first greenhouse in partnership with another florist, at Seventh and Pierce streets, Sioux City, Ia., where the Y. M. C. A. building now stands. From this location the business was moved to Eleventh and Pierce streets, then to Twenty-fifth and Jones streets and later to its present location. At the present time the firm is headed by Miss F. L. Rennison, the daughter of the founder. B. Nicholas is in charge of the greenhouses. He came to Sioux City from England, where for twenty-three years he had been engaged in this line of work, handling some of the largest and finest old estate gardens in that country. He has added to the quality and variety of the flowers in these greenhouses. The landscape and nursery department is in charge of Newell F. Guernsey, a local landscape artist. Mr. Guernsey has been in this business in Sioux City for several years.

Greenhouse Stock.

The greenhouses are steel-frame structures of the latest type, as shown in the accompanying illustrations, and are devoted to the culture of carnations, roses, lilies, snapdragons, geraniums and other popular flowers. The carnation planting consists of over 35,000 new plants.

The heating plant is located in a brick building adjoining the greenhouses. Over 800 tons of coal are burned every year. Three large boilers are necessary for the heating plant. Here is also located the high-pressure pump which supplies liquid fertilizer for renewing the soil.

The outdoor flowers produced at the establishment include over thirty-five varieties of hardy perennials and similar plants.

A recent addition to the business is the nursery and landscape department. The work of this department consists of landscape design, landscape construction, retail nursery, tree trimming and surgery and maintenance of grounds. In its own factory the firm makes pergolas, latticework, lawn seats, wooden gates and other outdoor ornamental articles. Pools and fountains are designed and installed as a part of the service.

In the nursery are produced evergreen, shade and fruit trees. The evergreens consist of such specimens as Scotch pine, Austrian pine, Black hills spruce, dwarf mountain pine, Colorado blue spruce and trailing juniper. Among the shade and ornamental trees are the cut-leaf birch, weeping mulberry, weeping mountain ash, the catalpa and the Norway maple. Varieties of lilacs and spiræas are the most popular shrubs grown at the nursery.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Fine!" exclaimed William F. Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., when shown the championship record made by his son, Granville, who is now assistant to Manager Pritchard at the new store. "We also," continued Mr. Gude, "have done some business sculling and, while our sculls sometimes caught light water, causing us to 'feather,' we managed to recover our balance and save the skiff from overturning." The new store, as near perfection as possible in equipment and detail, is a monument to the worthy head, who gives full credit to those who have aided in accomplishing this feat. The joy of accomplishment is somewhat dampened by the departure of Mrs. Supper, for fifteen years a faithful employee. As the good lady is the second widow to accept again the yoke of matrimony, the sobriquet of the "Merry Widows' Bower" is entirely appropriate. "The more the merrier," commented our worthy fellow craftsman; "we have a goodly heritage and, so far as we can see, the flag of optimism shall be nailed to the masthead." Son Ernest has charge of the greenhouses. Stock is in first-class shape. There are Russell, Columbia and American Beauty roses; carnations and chrysanthemums of the leading commercial kinds. Among the bulbs a batch of 10,000 Lilium Harrisii is an interesting item. The result will be received by the trade at large with much interest.

O. A. C. Oehmler, president of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., mentioned that an effort will be made to get a large party to attend the F. T. D. convention at Baltimore, realizing it is meeting at a critical period in the history of the industry and calling for the best efforts of clear minds.

"To see oneself as others see us," commented Charles Feast, of Samuel Feast & Sons, Baltimore, Md. "As in a looking glass," added Miss Hill, of the same firm, referring to the fine mirrors, indispensable to the present-day flower shop. Visiting members of the F. T. D. will be delighted with this latest addition to the list of up-to-the-minute flower shops.

T. J. Opperman, Camp Hill, Pa., is in the hospital suffering from hernia, but it is hoped he will soon be around as usual. Meanwhile the business is being well taken care of by Mrs. Opperman and a loyal staff. "The Review is being studied more closely than ever, if that were possible," observed the busy lady.

A walk through the market with Charles Baum demonstrated the fact that Knoxville, Tenn., has made big strides in a few years, both floriculturally and pomologically. The finest samples of apples were grown on the orchard of Professor Watson, of the department of horticulture of the University of Tennessee, who, by experimenting upon an old, worn-out orchard adjoining the Baum lily field on the mountain top, has demonstrated the possibility of producing fine fruit and crops by the methods taught in the lectures he gives. While this is primarily interesting to nurserymen, there are many florists who have a small orchard that can be made more profitable by following Professor Watson's example.

A chat with A. J. McNutt at his flower stall in the market at Knoxville, Tenn., secured some idea of the working out of the new Crouch-McNutt store, an appropriate name for which is being voted on. It means something novel and will doubtless attract a host of flower lovers by the publicity rendered. This in itself should help along the industry. The Watson Flower Store is ready for opening, but has not yet announced the date. The original Crouch Flower Store is doing business at the same place.

That The Review is not read, laid aside and contents forgotten is proved by an inquiry from Texas to Baum's Home of Flowers, Knoxville, Tenn., for copies of the records used in the entire system of store management as described in the issue of April 27 by the bookkeeper, R. E. Mapes.

"Most encouraging," commented Frank Fallon, Roanoke, Va., "is the way fall business has opened. The strike must have some effect. Funeral work has been good." The three brothers, though separately engaged, work as a unit. They are planning for the visit to Baltimore in the interests of the F. T. D.

AS TO COAL PRIORITY.

Acting upon the instructions of the convention of the Society of American Florists at Kansas City, August 17, William F. Gude, the society's Washington representative, conferred with H. B. Spencer, federal fuel distributor, at the national capital. Mr. Gude represented the florists so well that the trade will read with satisfaction the letter from Mr. Spencer to Mr. Gude:

Referring to our recent conference and your favor of September 7, enclosing copy of resolution adopted at the convention of the Society of American Florists, held at Kansas City, Mo., August 17, 1922.

As you doubtless know, since the end of the coal strike, coal production has rapidly been approaching normal and the conditions have changed so much since the date on which your society held its convention (August 17) that the florists would not now have difficulty in obtaining sufficient coal to prevent the freezing of the plant material in greenhouses.

It is hoped that within a short time the conditions with respect to coal production will be such that all priority restrictions may be removed. However, if, in the interim, any of the florists find themselves in urgent need of coal, which they are unable otherwise to obtain, and they will advise us fully, we will give consideration to advancement to class 2 priority to meet the emergency in individual cases of this kind that may arise, and prevent freezing.

AN AUTOMATIC PUMP.

On page 25 in The Review for August 31 a correspondent wants to know if there is a pump made that will return the water to the boiler on low pressure. We had all manner of trouble for three years with a steam pump. We now have a Gould pump, which is made in Seneca Falls, N. Y. The pump costs $25. It throws, in our case, the water through about fifty feet of pipe to a height of sixteen feet, to the top of the boiler. We run it from the electric light socket. It can be operated with gasoline. We have a tank in the cellar, as well as an automatic device, so that, when the tank is full of water, the pump will start and will stop as soon as the water is out. The whole arrangement cost us a trifle under $100. J. C. Bigelow & Son.

EUPHORBIA JACQUINIÆFLORA.

It is surprising how seldom that fine old Mexican plant, Euphorbia jacquiniæflora, is to be met with either in private or commercial places. In England thirty or thirty-five years ago we used to grow this plant in considerable quantities in 6-inch to 8-inch pots, with three to five stems on a plant, each three to four feet in height and as thick as a good-sized lead pencil. A few hundred of these plants standing among the ferns, palms and other plants, produced a wonderful effect; and in a temperature of from 50 to 55 degrees they would last a considerable length of time, while for cutting purposes and vase work they had no superior at that time of the year.

We frequently used them in bouquets also, tying the stems together in the center and then with fine wire pulling the stems down to a horizontal position and building the bouquet around them. From three to five stems were used in each bouquet, according to the size desired.

The system of cultivation adopted was as follows: After the plants were through flowering, they were stored away until the beginning of February, when they were brought out and given a thorough watering and placed in a temperature of about 65 degrees. As soon as the plants had made a growth two or three inches long, the young shoots were taken off with a heel of the mother plant, inserted in pots and placed in the propagating frame, where they rooted readily. After this they were potted into small pots. When the roots had filled these pots, the plants were transferred to 3-inch pots. The points were pinched and the plants were laid on their sides on a sunny shelf, in order to induce them to break bracts. When ready they were shifted into 4-inch pots and then into 6-inch and 8-inch pots, according to the size and strength of the plants. This was their final shift. The soil used was composed of equal parts of good loam and peat, with a free mixture of sand and a little old mortar broken up fine, of which they are fond. This plant needs plenty of heat and light to grow well. When the flowers begin to show, the plants are given liquid manure two or three times a week. H. J. Corfield.

TOO MANY COAL MINES.

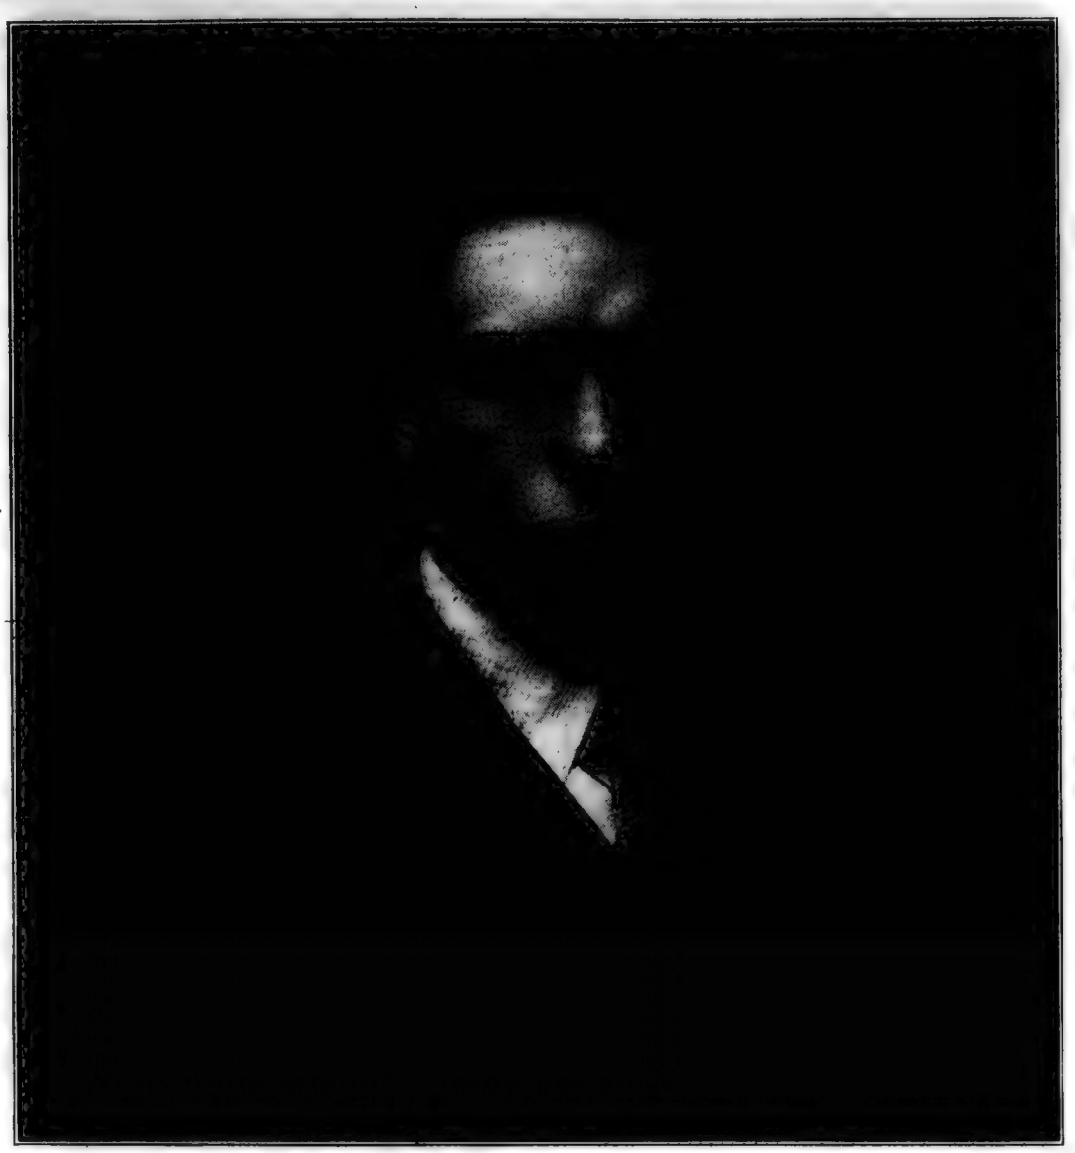
In an address favoring the establishment of a national coal commission by the federal government and enumerating the problems such a body would have to solve, Secretary of Commerce Hoover last week gave figures that showed how much overexpanded our coal industry is. He said:

"There are 8,000 bituminous mines, with an annual capacity of 850,000,000 tons, 300,000,000 capacity beyond our national needs. The overcapacity in the industry results not in the permanent closing of some mines, but in the operation of all of them more or less intermittently. Thus the working personnel is held attached to each mine in daily hopes of employment. In the best year of their history the bituminous mines operated an average of only 249 days in the year, out of a possible 308, whereas in most years the average is about 210, as against about 295 days in England and over 300 days in Germany. If we subtract the mines which are operating regularly for certain metallurgical and railway supplies, we find that the situation is even worse, for the remainder of the bituminous mines are probably operating an average of less than 180 days, or losing over 120 days' time out of the year.

"There are 2,500 too many bituminous mines and 200,000 too many people in the business. This waste of labor, of capital and of coal levies tremendous tribute on the entire country. Investment in the industry is extremely speculative. Distribution costs are excessive. The operators vibrate between bankruptcy and high profits. And the public in ordinary times is paying far more for its coal than would be necessary with a stabilized industry.

"The perpetual labor difficulties are but one of the inevitable by-products of this poor organization. Labor is struggling on one side to set up remuneration based on such day's pay and such piece-work rates as will give a standard of living from sixty per cent of time employed. Labor is thus honeycombed with the worst of stimulants to unrest, insecurity of employment. At the same time, men who have the opportunity to work full time in regularly operating mines earn returns far above the average income of our most prosperous farmers and other workers. There can be no solution either to the operators or to the workers as long as this condition continues."

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.



Plan for Committee Meeting.

The work of the campaign just now is being pushed most actively. A call has gone out for a meeting of the publicity committee, to be held at the society's administration offices, 43 West Eighteenth street, New York, Monday, October 9. As the members of the committee will at this time be en route to attend the annual meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, the date for the committee's meeting was chosen as one necessitating little expense. It is planned that the morning of the day for the meeting shall be given over to a conference with representatives of local publicity bodies of different cities, and the president and secretary of the F. T. D., and the business manager of that organization's publication, the F. T. D. News, have been invited to attend. In the afternoon the committee will go into executive session, and at this time plans for late fall and winter advertising will be discussed and appropriations made, so that contracts with the magazines may be made to the best advantage. A regular meeting of the New York Florists' Club occurs on the evening of October 9, and the club will act as host to the visitors.

Pay Up, Please.

There is still a large number of subscribers to the campaign fund who have not taken up their pledges, on the amounts of which the committee, necessarily, must depend for means to prosecute the advertising campaign. The committee properly looks upon the collection of these amounts as materially necessary in the conduct of the campaign, and hopes that no subscriber is willfully negligent in making remittance. Bills to all delinquents are going out from the secretary's office and prompt responses are expected. It is not a matter of whether these tardy

THOMAS J. WOLFE, JR.

ADMONISHES the time-worn axiom: "Keep the wolf from the door." But here is one Wolfe that opportunity and the gods of all our fortunes have refused to keep away from the portals. As a matter of fact, Thomas J. Wolfe, Jr., manager of Wolfe the Florist, Waco, Tex., is of that type of individuals who never let doors remain closed to their progress. Just turned 21 years, this young man accepts responsibility and likes it. He started in business five years ago with his father of the same name. On the death of his parent, the junior Wolfe, along with his mother, took hold of the business, with highly successful results. Tom Wolfe, as he is known, after the fashion of the father, is a member of the Waco Rotary Club. He belongs to the Masonic order, is a life member of the Texas State Florists' Association and a member of the S. A. F. Last year he was elected to the board of directors of the Texas state association and this year was honored by being elected vice-president of that association; he is the youngest man who ever held office in the organization.

EUPHORBIA JACQUINIÆFLORA.

It is surprising how seldom that fine old Mexican plant, Euphorbia jacquiniæflora, is to be met with either in private or commercial places. In England thirty or thirty-five years ago we used to grow this plant in considerable quantities in 6-inch to 8-inch pots, with three to five stems on a plant, each three to four feet in height and as thick as a good-sized lead pencil. A few hundred of these plants standing among the ferns, palms and other plants, produced a wonderful effect; and in a temperature of from 50 to 55 degrees they would last a considerable length of time, while for cutting purposes and vase work they had no superior at that time of the year.

We frequently used them in bouquets also, tying the stems together in the center and then with fine wire pulling the stems down to a horizontal position and building the bouquet around them. From three to five stems were used in each bouquet, according to the size desired.

The system of cultivation adopted was as follows: After the plants were through flowering, they were stored away until the beginning of February, when they were brought out and given a thorough watering and placed in a temperature of about 65 degrees. As soon as the plants had made a growth two or three inches long, the young shoots were taken off with a heel of the mother plant, inserted in pots and placed in the propagating frame, where they rooted readily. After this they were potted into small pots. When the roots had filled these pots, the plants were transferred to 3-inch pots. The points were pinched and the plants were laid on their sides on a sunny shelf, in order to induce them to break bracts. When ready they were shifted into 4-inch pots and then into 6-inch and 8-inch pots, according to the size and rength of the plants. This was their nal shift. The soil used was composed f equal parts of good loam and peat, ith a free mixture of sand and a little d mortar broken up fine, of which they re fond. This plant needs plenty of eat and light to grow well. When the owers begin to show, the plants are ven liquid manure two or three times week. H. J. Corfield.

TOO MANY COAL MINES.

In an address favoring the establishent of a national coal commission by ne federal government and enumerating the problems such a body would ave to solve, Secretary of Commerce oover last week gave figures that owed how much overexpanded our al industry is. He said:

"There are 8,000 bituminous mines, ith an annual capacity of 850,000,000 ns, 300,000,000 capacity beyond our ational needs. The overcapacity in the dustry results not in the permanent osing of some mines, but in the operaon of all of them more or less interittently. Thus the working personnel held attached to each mine in daily pes of employment. In the best year their history the bituminous mines erated an average of only 249 days the year, out of a possible 308, where in most years the average is about 0, as against about 295 days in Engnd and over 300 days in Germany. If e subtract the mines which are operatg regularly for certain metallurgical d railway supplies, we find that the tuation is even worse, for the reainder of the bituminous mines are robably operating an average of less an 180 days, or losing over 120 days' me out of the year.

"There are 2,500 too many bituminus mines and 200,000 too many people the business. This waste of labor, of pital and of coal levies tremendous ibute on the entire country. Invest ent in the industry is extremely specutive. Distribution costs are excessive. ne operators vibrate between bankptcy and high profits. And the public ordinary times is paying far more for s coal than would be necessary with a abilized industry.

"The perpetual labor difficulties are t one of the inevitable by-products this poor organization. Labor is ruggling on one side to set up reneration based on such day's pay and ch piece-work rates as will give a andard of living from sixty per cent time employed. Labor is thus honeymbed with the worst of stimulants to rest, insecurity of employment. At e same time, men who have the opportnity to work full time in regularly erating mines earn returns far above e average income of our most prosperus farmers and other workers. There n be no solution either to the operars or to the workers as long as this ndition continues."

ATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Plan for Committee Meeting.

The work of the campaign just now is ing pushed most actively. A call has ne out for a meeting of the publicity mmittee, to be held at the society's ministration offices, 43 West Eight th street, New York, Monday, Oer 9. As the members of the committ will at this time be en route to atd the annual meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, the date for the committee's meeting was chosen as one necessitating little expense. It is planned that the morning of the day for the meeting shall be given over to a conference with representatives of local publicity bodies of different cities, and the president and secretary of the F. T. D., and the business manager of that organization's publication, the F. T. D. News, have been invited to attend. In the afternoon the committee will go into executive session, and at this time plans for late fall and winter advertising will be discussed and appropriations made, so that contracts with the magazines may be made to the best advantage. A regular meeting of the New York Florists' Club occurs on the evening of October 9, and the club will act as host to the visitors.

Pay Up, Please.

There is still a large number of subscribers to the campaign fund who have not taken up their pledges, on the amounts of which the committee, necessarily, must depend for means to prosecute the advertising campaign. The committee properly looks upon the collection of these amounts as materially necessary in the conduct of the campaign, and hopes that no subscriber is willfully negligent in making remittance. Bills to all delinquents are going out from the secretary's office and prompt responses are expected. It is not a matter of whether these tardy

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

THOMAS J. WOLFE, JR.

ADMONISHES the time-worn axiom: "Keep the wolf from the door." But here is one Wolfe that opportunity and the gods of all our fortunes have refused to keep away from the portals. As a matter of fact, Thomas J. Wolfe, Jr., manager of Wolfe the Florist, Waco, Tex., is of that type of individuals who never let doors remain closed to their progress. Just turned 21 years, this young man accepts responsibility and likes it. He started in business five years ago with his father of the same name. On the death of his parent, the junior Wolfe, along with his mother, took hold of the business, with highly successful results. Tom Wolfe, as he is known, after the fashion of the father, is a member of the Waco Rotary Club. He belongs to the Masonic order, is a life member of the Texas State Florists' Association and a member of the S. A. F. Last year he was elected to the board of directors of the Texas state association and this year was honored by being elected vice-president of that association; he is the youngest man who ever held office in the organization.

subscribers are good for the amounts subscribed, but rather of whether they are going to make their pledges good at this time, when the committee is in urgent need of funds to carry out the plans they are formulating. Some of the contracts contemplated must be placed two or three months ahead of date of publication, and the earlier they are placed the better the advantage to the campaign. The committee should not be expected to enter into obligations for expenditures unless it has the money in hand to cover them; therefore, it is hoped that all subscribers in arrears will look at the matter of their delinquency in the right way, and take up their pledges without further delay. Our wonderful slogan, "Say It with Flowers," is worthy of all the push we can get behind it. Only last week the greatest of the New York papers, in an article on trade slogans, said that the slogan of the florists was one "the worth of which as a business builder has been attested to by the extent to which it has been paraphrased by other organizations and individual concerns."

BLIGHT ON MUMS.

We have mailed specimens taken from our mum plants, which have been attacked in the last few days by a peculiar disease or blight with which we have had no experience and which we fear will destroy our entire planting if not checked at once.

The leaves drooped and their under sides became glazed-brown. Brown spots appeared on a part of the buds and they immediately withered. We have been using fungicides, but without results. These mums have been grown with full air except in rainy weather. The plants have never been wet at night, but the houses have had a light shade of lime on the roof. The crops have made excellent growth, and while we have had some midge trouble, the plants appear to be entirely free from it at this time; in fact, we have had it under control for several weeks. The stock affected was planted in the latter part of June. H. G. C.—W. Va.

The specimens were badly withered on arrival, but according to your description of the trouble, your mums are attacked with blight, and once this disease gets hold of the plants, it is impossible to make good stock out of the plants for this season. It has been our experience that this trouble is due principally to extra rich soil and high feeding, together with damp, close conditions and high temperature. The first time the trouble came to our notice was on a batch of plants growing in an old sash house that did not have sufficient light and air. I would suggest that you clean the shade from the glass, dispense with any syringing of the foliage, hold the soil a little drier at the roots and ventilate freely at all times, except when severe rain storms are on. M. P.

CHRYSANTHEMUM LEAF-TIER.

Kindly examine the chrysanthemum leaves which we have mailed you. It is our belief that the pests which are seen feeding upon the leaves are the dreaded leaf-tier. What is the best method of ridding our stock of the pests?

C. C. W. & S.—Mo.

You were correct in your judgment regarding the identity of the pests. The nature of the destruction to the chrysanthemum leaves and the appearance of the insect proves unquestionably that the pest is the chrysanthemum leaf-tier.

In the greenhouse this insect may breed throughout the year, but as a rule it is not to be found during the winter months, when temperatures in the greenhouses are decidedly cooler than at other seasons. The pest eats away the under side of the leaves of the plant, and sometimes the whole tissue, thus destroying the appearance of the plant and ruining the commercial value of the blooms. The larva ties two leaves together or folds one over where it weaves itself into a sort of silken enclosure.

The adult is a pale-brownish moth, with a wing expanse of about three-quarters of an inch. The moth flies at night, resting on the lower leaves of the plant, under the benches, or in any other places of concealment during the day. The eggs are deposited on the under side of the leaves in groups of two to twelve, or more. They are white and translucent, which makes them appear green on the leaves. The larvæ hatch in about ten or twelve days, and pupate fifteen to twenty days later, eating the leaves continuously, and going from one leaf to another as a fresh supply of food is required.

As stated above, the insect makes its first appearance in April or May, and it therefore is well to begin spraying the plants as soon as they are well started. If this is done, the larvæ are destroyed when their number is comparatively small. Arsenate of lead is preferable to all other poisons as a remedy in killing them, as this does not injure the plants and remains on them much longer than Paris green. The under side of the leaves must be properly sprayed, because this is where the insect spends most of its time. Be sure to get a standard brand of arsenate for best results.

TERMITES ON MUMS.

Please let us know if there is anything we can use to kill white wood ants. They are doing terrible damage on our chrysanthemums. They eat all the outside of the stems in the soil and then work up the stems, eating them perfectly hollow. The ants work underground. A. F. C.—Ala.

Termites, or white ants, are exceedingly destructive when they are allowed to obtain a foothold. Their damage is usually done by attacking the woodwork of buildings, starting in foundation timbers in the ground and eating their way through them. If they are forced to travel over the surface, they construct a covered passageway in the shape of a tube, made of soil and bits of masticated wood, which harden. It is apparently necessary for termites, which are not true ants, to have access to the soil, as they require a large supply of moisture at all times.

In order to destroy them, the main colony should, if possible, be located by tracing the passageway of the termites back from the point where they are working. The passageway should be broken up and the colony dug up and destroyed by being saturated with kerosene. If the termites find their way into the greenhouse through woodwork, the infested timbers should be removed and destroyed. Wood can be rendered proof against a renewal of their attack by being treated with creosote or impregnated with a one per cent solution of bichloride of mercury; the creosote treatment is preferable. Termites are more generally found in warmer climates, but they are occasionally found to be highly destructive in the northern part of this country.

BALTIMORE PROGRAM

F. T. D. PROGRAM.

At Baltimore October 10 to 12.

The preliminary program has been announced of the annual business meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, to be held at Baltimore, Md., October 10 to 12. The Emerson hotel will be headquarters. The first two days will be devoted to business and the third to pleasure, the events of which were described in last week's Review.

For anticipatory discussion of business, an informal meeting of early arrivals will be held Sunday, October 8. At 10 a. m., Monday, October 9, the board of directors will meet. At 3 p. m. that day the district representatives will hold a meeting.

The sessions proper will open Tuesday, October 10, at 10 a. m. The program for these has been laid out as follows:

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 10.

Meeting called to order by Vice-president Charles F. Feast, Baltimore, Md.
Invocation.
Address of welcome, by mayor of Baltimore.
Response, by senior director, W. J. Smyth, Chicago, Ill.
Welcome address to all F. T. D. members and retail florists from the United States, Canada and foreign countries, by "Dad" Graham.
Response, by F. T. D. director from the Dominion of Canada, W. W. Gammage.
President Philip Breitmeyer taking over meeting.
Two minutes' silence in reverence to all F. T. D. officers and members who have gone to the Great Beyond.
President's address.
General introduction of all F. T. D. members in attendance by the F. T. D. roll call committee.
Treasurer's report, by William L. Rock, Kansas City; and unit on finances: Wm. J. Smyth, Chicago; Karl P. Baum, Knoxville; W. W. Gammage, London, Ont., assisted by auditor, John M. Besemer, Detroit, Mich.
F. T. D. News report, by M. Bloy, editor and business manager; Hilmer V. Swenson, advertising manager, and F. T. D. News unit, Max Schling, New York; Irwin Bertermann, Indianapolis; Charles H. Grakelow, Philadelphia.
Secretary's report, by Albert Pochelon; on past due bills and clearing house, by Miss Helen Wick; on Canadian exchange and clearing house, by W. W. Gammage and John M. Besemer.
Greetings from European florists, by C. Engelmann, Saffron Walden, England.
Report on district units plan, by J. Fred Ammann, field manager, supported by staff of district representatives and chairman of district units, Karl P. Baum.
Report on F. T. D. clearing house plan, by the F. T. D. unit on clearing house, Wm. L. Rock, A. F. Borden, Los Angeles; Herman P. Knoble, Cleveland, assisted by John M. Besemer.
Report on F. T. D. publicity bureau, by Hilmer V. Swenson.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11.

Selection of next meeting place.
Nomination of officers.
"Final Results of Canadian Exchange," by Director W. W. Gammage.
"Europe and Its Florist Industry," by C. Engelmann, assisted by some members who have visited Europe lately.
"F. T. D. Steamer Service, East," by Harold C. Perry, of Dard's, New York.
"F. T. D. Steamer Service, West," by F. C. Jaeger, Jr., San Francisco.
"Advertising F. T. D. Service to Public," Herman D. Schiller, Chicago; Frank Schramm, Toledo, O.; George A. Washburn, Bloomington, Ill.
Report on F. T. D. window displays, by committee on judging.
F. T. D. membership uniform sign put on store doors and windows: Adco Co. correspondence.
"F. T. D. Coöperation with Wholesaler," by W. A. Hansen, Chicago.
"Holiday Business: How to Handle It, Making Sales and Delivery Easy," by Harry Crouch, Seattle, Wash.
"Cost of Doing Business," by Hilmer V. Swenson, Chicago.
"How to Make a Dollar in the Flower Business," by Herman P. Knoble, Cleveland.
"Future of an F. T. D. Temple or Permanent Institution to House all F. T. D. Departments," by Irwin Bertermann, president-elect S. A. F. and former president of the F. T. D. for years 1913-14-15.
Election of officers and directors.
Indianapolis flower show F. T. D. exhibit and what disposal shall be made of same.
"A Special Tribute," by Z. D. Blackistone, Washington, D. C., giving a practical demonstration.
A demonstration of a new idea, by Charles Henry Fox, Philadelphia.
"Store Management: Dividing Store into Distinct Departments—Sales, Designers, Packing, Shipping, Billing—Responsibility of Each and How I Check Up," by Henry Penn, Boston.
Salesmanship.
Store display.
How to take orders and fill same.
Display of arrangements.
Packing of baskets, etc., for shipment.
Serving of customers in consideration of future business and increase of same.
Plan for practical flower shop.

Window Displays.

Following established custom, the F. T. D. News will award three silver cups to the winners of first, second and third prizes at Baltimore. Competition for these awards is open to all florists of Baltimore, whether members of the F. T. D. or not. It has been deemed wise to make this an open competitive affair as an encouragement to all who desire to enter the field, thereby giving the public a greater opportunity of observing what F. T. D. service stands for.

The schedule of points for window judging unanimously adopted at Buffalo at the association's meeting in 1919 is as follows:

Attention compelling, 40 points: Why the public would be attracted to the display. The entire arrangement, neatness, accessories and artisticness, must be considered.

Quality of stock exhibited, 30 points: It should be the desire to exhibit fresh flowers and growing plants. Quality, varieties and freshness must be considered. If artificial flowers are used, it will score against in proportion to amount of natural to artificial used.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association idea, 30 points: Conveying the idea how flowers can be ordered through our members everywhere.

Houston, Tex.—A. W. Schoenherr is starting in the florists' business on a small scale in a suburb of this city.

Belle Plaine, Ia.—H. W. Fuller has just completed a greenhouse and expects to open for business in a short time. He was formerly in business at Cedar Falls, Ia.

CARNATIONS IN THE BENCHES.

Early Treatment.

By this time your carnation plants will be getting established in their new quarters, you have done about all the topping for the season and the beds have been cleaned of the weeds. The next thing will be to plant in, from the lot you potted right after you finished benching, wherever a plant failed to take hold. The extremely hot spell a week ago caused unusual loss from stem-rot, which will no doubt subside now that cooler weather has returned. The beds that were planted in July and are through the weeding and scratching process will be benefited by a light mulch of well rotted cattle or stable manure. This mulch is not so much for the food it contains as for the purpose of preventing the water from running off when a heavy watering is given. After the plants have taken hold, it is well to allow them to get moderately dry between waterings and then to apply enough water to go to the bottom. Overhead spraying will be discontinued almost altogether, with the exception of occasional syringing to keep down red spider. During such hot spells as we had a week ago, you must watch out for the spider, else it will infest your plants before you are aware of its presence. Begin spraying with a nicotine solution to prevent attacks from aphis and thrips, especially the latter. The cool nights will drive them in from the outside and, unless you guard against them, they will overrun your carnations quickly.

The next thing will be to affix the supports. These should be put in place before the shoots begin to run up much, causing the plants to become top-heavy and resulting in a lot of crooked stems. Your customers will not mind the lack of length in the stems so much, if they are strong and straight. In the style of support to be used, you have a wide range of choice. There are the various styles and shapes of wire supports, each of which is favored by some growers. Then there are several ways of applying the wire and string supports, and you can get an argument any time you want it out of a grower who uses the kind you do not use. Any one of these supports is good as long as it holds the blooming shoots upright, allowing the plants to produce long, straight stems. Your own peculiar conditions will determine which is most desirable in your case. We stretch wires between the rows, lengthwise of the beds, and tie strings across the beds. We cut the strings to proper length to reach across, tying to the edge wire on one side and wrapping around each wire as we go across and tying to the edge wire on the other side. It takes two men to do this properly, but we find it satisfactory from the viewpoints of rapidity in putting them in place and effectiveness in supporting the plants. One tier after another is put on, as needed. Three tiers are usually sufficient, but sometimes four are needed, in case of extra long-stemmed sorts. Be sure the cross pipes and the braces at the ends of the beds are strong. If they give even a little, it will cause a slackening in the wires, which will let the plants down. Wooden strips across the beds about every twenty feet will help to prevent sagging.

OBITUARY

Daniel K. Herr.

Daniel K. Herr, of Lancaster, Pa., a former florist, died from a complication of diseases at the St. Joseph hospital Saturday morning, September 16.

About twenty years of Mr. Herr's early life were spent in the milling business, followed by twenty-five years as a market gardener and florist; during this time he became well known to the trade. For a number of years he grew annuals by the thousands as transplanted stock and later on went into the rooted cutting business, paying special attention to large-leaved fancy coleuses, of which he introduced many new varieties.

About twenty years ago he retired from business and lived to the ripe age of 85 years, maintaining his full physical and mental faculties to within a few days of his decease.

Mr. Herr was a member of the Mennonite church and a great religious student all his life. He served as minister in the Reformed Mennonite church for a number of years.

He is survived by one son, Albert M. Herr, and one grandson, Daniel Irwin Herr.

William Allan.

William Allan, for a number of years head gardener at Miramar, Newport, R. I., the summer estate of Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, of Boston, died at the Newport hospital, Saturday afternoon, September 9, after a long illness. He had been in poor health for nearly six months and had failed steadily.

He was a son of the late William Allan, who was also a well known gardener, and was a cousin of John T. Allan, gardener for the John R. Drexel estate. He was born in Newport sixty-five years ago and, after attending the public schools, began the study of horticulture under his father.

He was an active member of the Newport Horticultural Society and among its most ardent supporters. He was a great lover of dogs and was an expert breeder of Boston terriers. He owned one of the best kennels of terriers in the United States and won many prizes in bench shows all over the country.

His funeral was held at Emmanuel church Wednesday afternoon, September 13, and was attended by a large party from the Newport Horticultural Society. There was a beautiful array of floral tributes. The pallbearers were Thomas J. Kelley, Andrew S. Meikle, John B. Urquhart, Ernest Phillips, Henry A. Burgess and Alexander Fraser, all members of the Horticultural Society.

The deceased is survived by his wife and one daughter, Miss Agnes Allan.

W. H. M.

John McCleary.

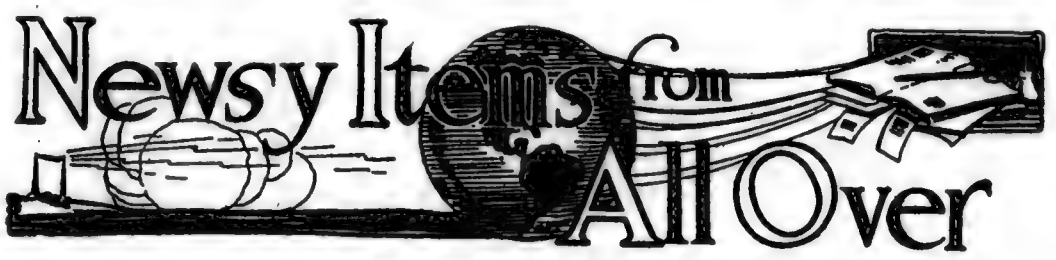
John McCleary, a retired nurseryman of Sewell, N. J., died at his home in that city September 12. The deceased was 86 years of age. Mr. McCleary was proprietor of the Sewell Tree Nurseries for more than forty years, and was an expert on the care of young peach and apple trees. He leaves two sons, Joseph and John McCleary, and two daughters. His wife died several years ago.

Robert B. Brown.

Robert B. Brown, a violet grower of Rhinebeck, N. Y., was found dead in his home August 30. Upon investigation, the coroner found that Mr. Brown had taken poison. Mr. Brown was well known and well liked, and it is generally believed that he feared insanity. He was 50 years of age. Rhinebeck was his birthplace.

PESTS FOUND ON IMPORTS.

The federal horticultural board has issued its annual letter of information regarding insects and diseases found in shipments of plants and plant products imported during the calendar year of 1921. In its introductory notes to the thirty-five pages of lists of the pests found, the board says:



"Particular attention has been given to the pathological inspection of plant material passing through the inspection house at Washington, D. C., under special permit. Crown gall, Bacterium tumefaciens, has been very prevalent, as in former years, on shipments from Europe, apparently no effort being made to free shipments of diseased plants. Fruit and rose stocks have been the commonest hosts found affected.

"Exobasidium vaccinii has been especially common on azaleas from Belgium. A wide range of miscellaneous fungi have been intercepted, not all of which have as yet been identified.

"A fungus causing a serious rot of iris rhizomes was found on material from Germany. Two entire shipments have been destroyed and parts of a third. Partly rotted rhizomes were planted for observation, but were destroyed by the fungus within a short time and it was found that the fungus grew out through the soil, forming large numbers of sclerotia (resting bodies).

"During the period under review, 192 nests of the brown-tail moth were intercepted and reported by state and federal inspectors, in contrast with eighty-five nests collected during the past eight years. With one exception, all of the nests taken in 1921 were on fruit and rose stocks from France. The sorrel cutworm, Acronycta rumicis, was taken on four shipments of fruit and rose stocks from France and sixty-two nests of the white tree pierid, Aporia cratægi, were found on plants from the same country. The pink bollworm, Pectinophora gossypiella, was intercepted on thirty-two occasions, and the spiny citrus white fly, Aleurocanthus woglumi, was taken on tropical plants by Florida state plant board and federal inspectors. Avocados from the Canal Zone and Mexico were infested with larvæ of Stenoma catenifer, and the same fruit from the latter country and Costa Rica was infested with a species of conotrachelus, probably C. perseæ.

"What appears to be an injurious thrips, Thrips communis pulla, was found infesting chrysanthemums from England and France. Astilbes from Holland were infested with Brachyrhinussulcatus. The larvæ of this weevil were not only in the roots, but in some instances were rather abundant in the soil surrounding the roots, which is definitely prohibited by quarantine 37."

Kennebunk, Me.—J. O. Elwell has leased his greenhouses to Alexander Burr.

Detroit, Mich.—Berry & Gibson are about to open a second retail flower store and have placed a contract with the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, for the fixtures.

Greensboro, N. C.—E. C. Sutton, manager of Sutton the Florist, recently announced the completion of arrangements for opening a florists' store at High Point, N. C.

Selma, Ala.—N. Finkelstein, of the Selma Drug Co., has purchased the Selma Flower Shop from Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Bolin. The florists' shop is being run in connection with the drug store.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Strongs, Florists, report that the firm has found business exceptionally good during the months of July and August and that the gain over the same months of 1921 has been considerable.

Sac City, Ia.—Willard H. Montgomery, proprietor of the Montgomery Gardens, has been taken to the Samaritan hospital, at Sioux City, to undergo an operation. He was injured while fighting fire in his home town several months ago.

Sheffield, Ala.—D. H. Mangum has transferred the business of the Tri-City Floral Co. to Mrs. A. C. Redus.

Hamilton, Ont.—Walter Holt has retired from the trade. Some time ago his health failed him and he is now confined to a hospital.

Benton, Ill.—Miss Corinne Allen has announced that she has sold her half interest in the business of Allen & Heasley to Mrs. E. G. Heasley.

Queen's Borough, N. Y.—P. Haas, Sr., has erected two new greenhouses, each 40x150. They will be used for the cultivation of American Beauty roses.

Marion, Ill.—The Marion Greenhouse will open a store on Main street, and the proprietor, Mrs. Minnie Lilley Copeland, plans an early trip to Chicago to purchase fixtures for it.

Olathe, Colo.—Albert N. Froom has recently built a greenhouse here, 20x60 feet, with a lean-to, 8x60. The house is of pipe-frame construction. His business will be devoted to the vegetable plant trade; besides, he will grow flowers. Mr. Froom has blooming this season 25,000 gladioli. He plans to enter the commercial list of trade growers in a short time.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

STEVIAS.

Rampant growth is being made by stevias now and, if you are growing them in pots, a final shift may be needed now. No more pinching back should be done. For plants which are in their flowering pots—there is no better way to grow stevias than in pots—a little feeding will now be of benefit. Lifted plants will need spraying several times daily on clear, warm days and should be protected for a short time from the hot sun. Remember that these useful winter-flowering plants are tender and will not stand the least breath of frost, although they are at their best in a cold greenhouse.

FREESIAS.

The earliest freesias are now several inches high. If they are in a frame and can be protected from excessive rains and cold, they will be all right until the end of the present month, when they should have a sunny place in a carnation bench, if early flowers for the holidays are wanted. If there is no vacant bench space available, a shelf will be found an ideal place for these freesias. A further batch of bulbs should now be put in pots or pans to give a succession crop and, if extra late flowers are desired, a still further planting may be made as late as the end of October, but the late batches never carry stems of the length and strength of the early ones. This applies to other bulbs as well as to freesias.

EARLY ANTIRRHINUMS.

Our earliest lot of snapdragons are now well established and are throwing flower spikes, which are removed as soon as the first flowers open, by pinching them back fairly hard. If you top snapdragons while the shoots are soft, before the flowers show color, the plants will break weakly and many of the growths will come blind. Be sure, therefore, not to head plants back while the shoots are young and soft. Avoid wetting the foliage and, if you see any rust, give the plants a dusting with a mixture of lime and sulphur. For a later batch, the present is a suitable time to make a sowing of seeds. Use the intermediate in preference to the tall or dwarf strains; it will give you all the length of stem you want. Cuttings are much more subject to diseases than seedlings and lack the vigor of the latter.

VIOLETS.

If double violets, like Lady Hume Campbell and Marie Louise, are still outdoors, they should be housed at once. Weather such as we usually get in September is liable to start the dreaded "spot" and plants under glass are much more under control. Be sure to give the plants abundant ventilation day and night, and use the spray nozzle on the hose occasionally, so that red spider may not get any foothold. Single violets, like Princess of Wales and Governor Herrick, will be better outdoors for some time yet. If planted early, they start to make a luxuriant leaf growth and that means a paucity of flowers the balance of the season. Leave them out until the leaf growth is checked by one or two frosts. A temperature of 24 to 28 degrees will give the plants the necessary check, which will retard leaf-growth and cause flowers to be produced. Single violets can scarcely be grown too cool; 40 degrees at night in winter is an ample temperature. Remove all runners, keep weeds down and run the cultivator through the plants until nearer housing time.

DAHLIAS.

These popular outdoor flowers have made a wonderful showing this season. The abundant moisture which we have had seems to be much to their liking. There are many complaints of cut dahlias keeping unsatisfactorily. If, however, the stems are dipped in hot water for a few seconds, or seared with a hot iron or hot cinders right after cutting, thus being treated in the same way as poinsettias, they will hold up much better. Before the advent of frost, look over your dahlias and mark those you have found especially useful. Poor ones may as well be discarded; there is really nothing to be gained by growing them while so many superior sorts are offered. The cactus, peony-flowered and decorative dahlias are the popular types today and now is the time to make selections of good varieties for another season. Do not overlook the pompon section. In floral designs you will find them particularly useful; they carry stems of good length and flower with great freedom.

HARD-WOODED STOCK.

All ericas, camellias, azaleas, rhododendrons and other hard-wooded plants, which have been planted out for the summer, should now be lifted and potted. Be sure to have a good ball of earth on each. There is sure to be a mass of fine, hair-like roots, and some of the loose soil will need shaking off or removing with a pointed stick. All hard-wooded plants must be firmly potted. It is not possible to get the soil too firm. Leave ample space in the top of the pot for the water. All of these plants enjoy a little leaf-mold and some sharp sand mixed in their compost. It is not at all necessary to use a soil containing much peat. I use loam and have done so for many years. Be careful to avoid the use of lime, which is harmful to all members of the ericaceæ family. We always grow some azaleas and ericas in pots; these set buds earlier than when they are planted out and it is usually possible to have some nice Erica melanthera in flower for Thanksgiving day.

POINSETTIAS.

Increased care in watering is now necessary with poinsettias. With the serious fuel shortage facing us, fire will not be started so early as usual and every effort will be made to economize on fuel. Some plants resent a lack of fire heat when the cool nights follow hot days. Among these are poinsettias. Begonias, like Melior, Cincinnati and Lorraine, are others. These must have a little fire heat on chilly nights, or they will speedily show bad effects. Be careful not to overwater poinsettias. It is well to run them a little on the dry side.

Now is a good time to make up pans. Work a few pteris or other small ferns among them, or even asparagus, to cover up the base of the pans. Drain the pans well and disturb the roots as little as possible. Wide temperature fluctuations, careless watering and heavy fumigation must be avoided. Each of these will account for a loss of foliage.

SCENTED-LEAVED PLANTS.

About everyone possessing a garden wants to purchase one or two scented-leaved plants each spring. The various scented geraniums, of which there are a number of varieties, and the lemon verbena, are the most popular plants. They make rampant growth outdoors in summer and now, before frost comes, a batch of cuttings of each kind should be taken. In addition, lift a few of the old plants of lemon verbena a little later and keep them dry over winter. They will keep well in a potato cellar or bulb cellar with some soil packed about their roots. There are one or two other scented plants popular with many and much hardier than the geraniums and lemon verbena. I refer to lavender and rosemary. Seeds of these two herbs, if started under glass now, will give you nice little plants for spring sales. I am sure, if you let customers know you can supply rosemary and lavender, they will buy them. Why not make the trial?

SHADING.

As summer nears its end and the nights grow longer and cooler, plants need all possible light, with a few exceptions. Cyclamens will need protection from the hot sun for some time yet. Begonias from this time on can go shadeless. Nephrolepis ferns will want but little, but adiantums need a little more protection. Calceolarias, cinerarias and primulas are liable to burn if not given a light shade, and, similarly, all orchids still need some protection. With these exceptions, practically all greenhouse plants should, from now on, have the fullest possible light, which means the removal of any shading from the roof.

GROW quality. It is only in times of pronounced shortage that the producer of low-grade stuff has an equal show with the man whose stock has a reputation for quality.

THERE is a steady tightening of credit lines, both on and in this trade. Florists who do not pay when asked are finding it increasingly difficult to locate sources of supply.
